OIL FIRMS HIKE EAST PRICES

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. announced Wednesday it has increased the price of its main products by one cent a gallon in areas east of the Ottawa Valley.

Shell Canada Ltd. said today it also will be increasing the prices of its products east of the Ottawa Valley but the amount of the increase and the timing are still undecided.

Meanwhile, John Coleman, chief of Maryland's gasoline tax division, said Wednesday that, despite claims of a shortage by major distributors, there was more gasoline in the state last December than in the previous year.

"Judging from our figures there is no shortage in Maryland and we have no evidence there will be a shortage," said Coleman. "The only place we hear there will be one is from the major fuel companies."

Harry Waller, owner of seven small stations in the Baltimore area, said, "they're playing games, pure and simple. The major companies are out to kill the independent guys and increase their own pocketbooks."

In Ohio, the East Toledo division of Sun Oil Co. said it will ration gasoline this summer.

The company said dealers in the Toledo area will be given 90 per cent of their projected need. He said further cuts could be made in the next few months.

Joey Will Join China Commune

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Smallwood says he's so impressed with China he's going to join a Chinese commune—perhaps this fall.

The 72-year-old former Newfoundland Liberal premier said in an interview here Wednesday he was so taken with China on a visit last year he will join a commune "for several months at least."

"I'll work with my hands in the fields," he said. "I'll do any of the jobs required of me as a full-fledged member of a commune. I'll be able to attend all the commune meetings, to listen—and talk, too."

He was in a sprightly mood as, fresh from writing his memoirs—300,000 words for a 600-page book—he talked at his publishers, Macmillan Co. of Canada.

"If I were 10 years younger, I would want to settle down for two or three years in China to help them build the society they are building," said the man who brought Newfoundland into Canada in 1949.

He said Mao's cultural revolution, which rocked China several years ago, was necessary to prevent the creation of a new aristocratic class of professors, doctors and officials.

"They sent the college professors out to clear the latrines — they got the dirtiest jobs until they understood that everyone was the same."

"I'm excited about China — they are working like Trojans with incredible devotion, love and affection. There's nothing more ludicrous than saying the Chinese are being bludgeoned into submission."

Smallwood added "for no moment have I been a Communist" but "we are shipmates tonight with the greatest revolutionary change in the world, now or in the past," and he called Chairman Mao Tse Tung of China the "greatest practising revolutionary in the history of man."

Copper Smelter Start This Year

By ALAN FORREST
Times Staff

Construction of a long-awaited copper smelter in British Columbia is expected to begin this year, the Times learned today.

G. H. D. Hobbs, president of Cominco Ltd., said in an interview an agreement in principle had been reached with the provincial government for Cominco to build a $20 million smelter near its fertilizer complex at Kimberley.

The project would be completed in 18 months and would have a capacity of 70,000 tons of copper per year.

Hobbs said the company would make an official announcement of the project "very soon."

He said: "There are no contentious matters outstanding between ourselves and the provincial government. They are as anxious to begin this project as we are."

Provincial Mines Minister Leo Nimsick was not available for comment. He had said earlier he was hopeful the province and Cominco would soon come to terms on the proposed smelter.

Construction of a copper smelter is a high priority for the New Democratic Party government which came to power on a pledge to convert British Columbia's economy to secondary processing and manufacturing and reduce export of raw materials.

Hobbs said the smelter would be available to any company wishing to supply concentrate.

The fertilizer plant would be used to absorb sulphuric acid used in the smelter and would reduce or eliminate the sulphur smell, a major air pollutant.

Hobbs said he was not concerned about provincial anti-pollution standards because the company's technology had advanced to the stage where it believed it can run an operation virtually pollution-free.

"The company would not be proceeding with this project if we thought there might be a pollution problem," he said.

Proximity of the fertilizer plant will greatly reduce costs of the smelter.

Normally, to construct a new smelter from nothing would cost between $50 million and $70 million, he said.

"In effect we are expanding our present facilities in Kimberley."

The $20 million, however, was just a ballpark figure, he said.

"It should be about $20 million. And I cannot define precisely when the project is likely to begin. We are still in negotiation. But it will be very soon. It will start this year."

He said negotiations are continuing with the federal government as well to obtain a grant under the Department

BRINK'S MEN SURRENDER

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of Brink's Canada Ltd., wanted for a $700,000 theft from the security company's Saint John, N.B., office, surrendered today to Toronto police.

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne of the Metropolitan Toronto police announced that Leslie Dominey, 32, and Melvin Edward Downs, 36, gave themselves up shortly after midnight.

"A large sum of money . . . a considerable amount over $600,000 was recovered," said Supt. Payne.

The money was recovered from a large suitcase, he said.

Supt. Payne said the men were being held for officials of the Saint John police department expected to arrive this afternoon.

The theft occurred during the weekend after two employees of Brink's Saint John branch had collected the Saturday collections from supermarkets, liquor outlets and other stores.

And Now TV Poll Rigged

By BOB WOODWARD and CARL BERNSTEIN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon's re-election committee rigged Washington television station WTTG's poll on the public's response to the president's decision to mine Haiphong Harbor last year by sending 2,000 — 4,000 phony ballots to the station.

The Metromedia station asked its viewers last May to send in cards indicating whether they agreed or disagreed with the mining decision and placed a sample ballot in newspaper ads. The final result of the poll as announced by the station was 5,157 viewers agreeing with the president and 1,158 disagreeing.

One former Nixon committee official said Wednesday that committee employees sent in at least 4,000 of the responses agreeing with the president, which would have completely distorted the poll's results.

Another official, DeVan L. Shumway, spokesman for the Nixon re-election committee, confirmed the effort but said the committee sent in only "about 2,000 ballots and responses."

James Dooley, former head of mail room at the Nixon committee, said Wednesday committee workers were sent to buy about 1,000 newspapers from which the ballots were clipped and sent to the television station. In addition, Dooley said, 2,000 postcards were filled out and mailed in — all showing total support of the president.

"Work ground to a halt in the press office while everyone filled out 15 post cards," Dooley, 19, said in an interview. "Ten people worked for several days buying different kinds of stamps and postcards and getting different handwriting to fake the responses."

Asked to comment on the tampering with the poll, Ed Turner, news director for Metromedia, said: "I think it's a most unfortunate abuse of an honest attempt to survey public opinion."

Nixon committee spokesman Shumway said: "When you're involved in an election, you do what you can. That type of voluntary poll is the most stackable type thing. We assumed the other side would do it also. On that assumption we proceeded. I don't know if the other side did."

Frank Mankiewicz, a top official in the Democratic presidential campaign of Sen. George S. McGovern, said that "we didn't do it. It didn't occur to us. Jesus, these guys (the Nixon committee) are something. They assume we have the same sleazy ethics as theirs."

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that the Nixon committee also conducted a campaign last May to distort the over-all view of the U.S. public's response to the mining.

That effort included paying for telegrams supporting the president to be sent to the White House and the placing

Reds Ring City

PHNOM PENH — Cambodian insurgents have overrun a string of weakly-defended government positions across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh and now control a long stretch of the east bank parallelling the capital city, refugees from the area said today.

Phnom Penh was also menaced from the west. More than 20 rockets hit the airport 2½ miles west of the capital and an adjoining shantytown crowded with refugees early today, killing 19 persons and wounding 62.

Reuter news agency said 24 persons were killed and 55 wounded.

No aircraft were damaged, but one rocket killed an officer and wounded seven soldiers at the entrance to the military part of the airfield.

The assaults across the rivers are the closest the anti-government forces have struck to the capital since Viet Cong sappers raided northern Phnom Penh Oct. 7.

Heavy ground fighting was also reported in areas six, nine and 11 miles from Phnom Penh as the Communists slowly tried to close a noose on the city. The military situation was reported as "critical" in some of these outer defense areas.

U.S. fighter-bombers and B-52s heavily bombed the Communist-held area Wednesday and again this morning in the 50th consecutive day of such attacks while thousands of Phnom Penh residents watched from the river bank.

Pirate Yukon Station Kidnaps Playoff TV

Times News Services

ROSS RIVER, Y.T. — The 300 residents of this isolated mountain mining community have "kidnapped" a CBC television signal in time for the Stanley Cup play-offs.

And they face the wrath and full weight of the law from the federal and territorial governments, The Canadian Radio-Television Commission or the CBC.

Calling it Radio Free Ross River, the people erected their own relay station to snare a legal signal from Faro, 40 miles away.

The people claim they are willing to pay the price, which could include fines or jail, to keep the station alive.

Ross River is about 150 miles north of Whitehorse, the territorial capital, in the heart of the Yukon mining country, and prior to the private TV relay station had no radio or television service.

Its residents have been battling bureaucrats and red tape for years in an effort to get television into their community, but with a marked lack of success. The final straw was when the federal government's multi-million-dollar Anik northern communications satellite went into orbit at the New Year, bringing northern communities with more than 500 residents live television for the first time.

Ross River missed the boat because it was 200 people short of the criteria set for construction of legal TV relay facilities, and the CBC wasn't allowed to build a relay station here.

The problem was especially vexing to millionaire mining prospector Al Kulan of Ross River—once the proud owner of the only Rolls-Royce limousine in the Yukon. He's a hockey fan and has had a color TV set sitting in his living room collecting dust for several years in anticipation of the advent of TV service.

When he learned that Ross River wouldn't be joining the Anik network, he took the matter up with some engineering and electronics experts in Whitehorse.

Although Faro, which has a legal Anik relay station, is only 40 miles away, Ross River is nestled in the Pelly Mountains, which effectively block reception of the Faro signal.

They established a company known as Total North Communications, and bankrolled by Mr. Kulan, started shopping for a suitable peak, mountain-hopping by helicopter.

Baby Bonus Boost Seen By Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial backing for proposed changes in the social security system practically guarantees a boost in family allowance payments by next Jan. 1, Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

Legislation that would roughly triple to $20 the average monthly payment to children will be introduced in the Commons within weeks, he told reporters after the opening session of a three-day federal-provincial welfare minister's meeting.

All provinces agreed in their opening position statements with recent federal suggestions to increase family allowances and modify Canada Pension Plan provisions.

Further word on the pension changes came today with the statement that legislation probably will be introduced in the Commons next fall following further high level talks.

Under recently proposed federal suggestions to revamp pensions, the two-per-cent escalation limit on CPP increases would be dropped.

As a result, there appeared nothing to prevent an increase from the current average $7.21 a month per child in family allowance payments by the federal target date of Jan. 1.

B.C. welfare minister Normen Levi suggested Canada should take a "real initiative" and come up with a plan to provide all orphans, regardless of race, culture or nationality, with a family of their own.

In a short position paper, buried in a mass of dissertations on ways and means to rework the country's welfare system, the B.C. government said there are "growing numbers of families" who want to adopt children.

"While adoption is a matter that falls within provincial jurisdiction, the existing legislation could reasonably be amended to accord uniformity across our boundaries to make for a singular approach to international adoption proceedings," the paper said.

It suggested the federal government set up a study group to come up with a uniform method of dealing with international adoptions, establish and inter-provincial agency to "expedite and facilitate inter-country and inter-

Police Raid Broker

MONTREAL (CP) Inspectors from the provincial department of financial institutions and RCMP officers Wednesday raided the offices of Onyx Investments Ltd. and L. J. Forget and Co. Ltd., a Montreal-based brokerage firm.

At the same time, the Quebec Securities Commission suspended the brokerage firm's registration and stopped trading in eight stocks on the Montreal stock market.

In a separate move, the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges have suspended the brokerage firm's membership "in view of the failure of the member firm to conform to the exchange requirements."

In recent weeks, stocks involving either Onyx or L. J. Forget have accounted for about 50 per cent of trading on the CSE and for about one-third of combined trading on the two Montreal exchanges.

NASTY DEAL REPRIMAND

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald today criticized Canadian forces personnel who took part in "Operation Nasty Deal," which resulted in soldiers with rifles entering a local tavern as part of an army exercise.

Macdonald said, however, that he will not intervene in his capacity as attorney-general to ask that criminal charges be laid against any soldiers.

The attorney-general was referring to an exercise which originated from CFB Esquimalt. Two civilian employees of Chew Excavating Ltd. were held at gunpoint April 2 while working at HMC Dockyard.

They were released, they said, after two hours.

The following day, two soldiers armed with rifles entered Tudor House beer parlor in Esquimalt and stood at attention at each of two entrances. They apparently had been pursuing two other soldiers who had gone into the pub for a beer while the exercise was taking place.

"This was an exercise in which the army boys exhibited some bad judgment and a great deal in the way of animal spirits," Macdonald said.

"They certainly overdid things that day."

He said the two civilian employees — Hans Gajowski and Jose Maceiras — have not asked that charges be laid against the soldiers who subjected them to false imprisonment, "and I rather congratulate them for that decision."

"They have made their protest and the matter has gone to the higher echelons of the army so that I hope that it will never happen again. I feel pretty sure that the army has learned a lesson in this respect," he said.

Maddonald added that reprimands have gone forward through the army. "They know that we regard this with some seriousness and I feel that it will not be repeated," he said.

The attorney-general said reports he has received on the incidents indicate that the patrons of the Tudor House were "badly scared" at the presence of the armed soldiers.

"I am happy to know that the battle of Tudor House ended without effusion of blood," he said.

"Operation Nasty Deal" was originally intended by the forces to have been a week-long exercise. It was called off after about four days and the commandant apologized for inconveniencing the public.

Benson Scandal Hinted

OTTAWA (CP) — While a cabinet minister in 1968, Edgar Benson gave the accounting firm in which he had been a partner a two-year contract to audit the government-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

CMHC records reveal that Benson, as minister responsible for housing between January and April, 1968, gave the contract to a member of the Kingston, Ont., firm of England, McPherson.

Benson was a partner in the firm from 1952 to June 29, 1964, when he first joined the cabinet as revenue minister. He was appointed president of the Canadian transport commission last September.

Asked Wednesday whether he had appointed the firm during that period, Benson said he could not recall.

"It's possible. I'm not sure."

But authoritative sources confirmed the appointment was made by the former minister.

Officials refuse to disclose the value of the auditing contract, considered a confidential business arrangement.

Industry sources say, however, that the price of an annual audit of an organization the size of CMHC might reach into the six-figure range.

Benson, a chartered accountant himself has also been mentioned in recent news reports involving the audit of Canadian National Railways and Air Canada.

Unlike the CMHC audit, Parliament must name the CN-Air Canada auditors in a financing bill introduced annually.

While he was finance minister in 1971, Benson decided to switch the CN-Air Canada account to Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. from Touche Ross and Co., which had held the job the better part of 40 years.

Peat, Marwick is the firm from which James Brown took a five-year leave to help Benson draft the mammoth 1971 bill revising the income tax.

As the tax changes became law, Brown returned to Peat, Marwick and within months the firm had the CN-Air Canada contract, the record shows.

Benson rejects any suggestion of patronage.

"We didn't owe Peat, Marwick anything."

of Regional Economic Expansion. (DREE).

Kimberley is one of the few areas in B.C. eligible for DREE grants which go to economically depressed districts.

Earlier, the federal department indicated a grant of $1.5 million might be available for a smelter project.

On the provincial scene, the Social Credit government had told Cominco it would be eligible for a provincial grant for a smelter but the NDP government said it would not give grants to private companies unless equity or other considerations were received in return.

GOVERNMENT SHARE?

Hobbs said he could not comment on whether the provincial government had asked for a share in the smelter operation.

"The smelter is not a separate project as far as Cominco is concerned," he said. "It is part of our over-all operation and cannot be separated from it in any way."

Hobbs said concentrate would be welcome from any company in B.C. or other provinces, but it might be more efficient to handle ore from the interior rather than the coast.

Utah International Inc., which operates a giant copper mine at Port Hardy, has indicated an interest in sending concentrate to a B.C. smelter.

However, it is more likely to prefer a coast location. Discussions have started between Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting and Alcan officials about the possibility of a copper smelter at the upcoast port of Kitimat.

SHAREHOLDERS HEAR

First word that a Kimberley smelter might be near came Wednesday at a Cominco annual meeting in Vancouver.

Retiring chairman Robert Hendricks, in reply to a shareholder's question, said Cominco is eager to begin construction of the smelter and negotiations are continuing with the provincial and federal government.

Hobbs, who was promoted to president at the meeting, said today the federal negotiations referred to involved the bid for a DREE grant. The provincial negotiations are nearly completed.

Hobbs succeeds F. E. Burnet who became chairman replacing Hendricks. Hobbs was executive vice-president.

The company told shareholders a smelter would not be a high-profit venture but would be a key link in moving into higher stages of processing of the company's ores.

The company's research facilities at Trail and Sheridan Park, Ont., near Toronto, have made "important advances" on a new method to produce copper.

The process would involve an adaptation of the idle iron and steel electric furnace plant at Kimberley and the fertilizer facilities.

DES SUBSTITUTES ALSO CANCER-FORMING

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — All three livestock-growth drugs recommended by the United States agriculture department as substitutes for outlawed DES have been classified by government scientists as proven or potential cancer-causing chemicals.

"All estrogens are considered to be carcinogens, since all estrogens that have been adequately tested have been shown to be carcinogens in animals," a Food and Drug Administration FDA biologist concluded in an internal memo two years ago.

The FDA also expanded its ban on a suspected cancer-causing chemical, DES, that stimulates the growth of beef cattle and sheep. Effective Friday, implants of DES into the animals are forbidden, as DES feed already is.

BLVD. TAX HIKE LOOMS

But they still would be subsidized almost 50 per cent by taxpayers in the rest of Oak Bay.

Under the increase recommended Wednesday by council's parks and recreation committee, homeowners would pay 54.69 per cent of the cost of maintaining their boulevards.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White told the committee the tax had not been increased for 13 years. Maintenance costs had increased 76 per cent in that time.

The increase, if approved at the next council meeting, will range from $4.25 for some homes to $10 a year for others.

Streets affected in the southern part of Oak Bay are St. Patrick, St. David, Oliver, Monterey, Newport and the part of Hampshire north of Oak Bay Avenue.

By footage the rates will go from 32 cents to 40 cents a foot, 29 to 36 cents a foot, and 19 to 25 cents a foot.

The recommended increase is a compromise for one which had been presented by municipal treasurer Ian Forster.

It would have hiked costs from $6.38 to $14.40 a home and resulted in the homeowner paying 75.3 per cent of the costs.

The committee agreed that this was a good percentage but the increase would be too large to be levied in one year.

Ald. John Goult said the boulevard tax should be adjusted every three years.

Trade Gap Narrows For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' trade deficit narrowed to $52.6 million in March, the best month since September 1971, the commerce department reported today.

The department said seasonally adjusted imports for March totalled $5.4 billion and exports totalled $5.3 billion.

There was a worsening in the deficit with Canada because of strong U.S. demand for paper, lumber, metals and oil.

The March overall deficit of $52.6 million was a considerable improvement over the deficit for February of $476.2 million when imports totalled $5.5 billion and exports totalled $5.06 billion.

The department said the improvement in the U.S. trade position during the first quarter was mainly with Western Europe and Japan.

provincial" adoptions and look at ways to strengthen international social services to support those interested in finding homes for orphans.

Whether or not the proposal would even be considered by the delegates at the conference was unknown.

Lalonde said he does not expect the conference to discuss specific figures and financial arrangements for proposed changes in the social security system. This would be left for future meetings.

GENERAL TALKS

Rather, the conference would deal with broad issues involved in revamping current social assistance programs.

Quebec Welfare Minister Claude Castonguay, in another interview, agreed.

If agreement on basic principles can be reached, he said, administrative matters will take on less importance. Like most of the other ministers, he said he is pleased the federal government has decided to take an integrated approach to the social security issue.

Basis for the meeting, held behind closed doors after the opening session, is a 14-point federal plan revealed by Lalonde last week.

It suggests implementation of a guaranteed minimum income for disadvantaged groups, financial supplements for working people who earn too little to support themselves and their families, community employment programs, removal of the current two-per-cent ceiling on annual cost-of-living increases in the Canada Pension Plan, and other measures.

A feature generally lauded by the provincial ministers was a pledge to keep any changes flexible to allow heavy provincial participation in programs.

DESIGN FLEXIBLE

The federal paper suggests that provinces be given freedom to vary levels of universal and other allowances, and would permit them to transfer payments from one program to another as long as benefits did not slip below minimum standards.

Despite general agreement with many suggestions, some provinces expressed concern about the speed at which they may be implemented.

Lalonde has suggested a two-year review of current programs, and a three-to-five-year period during which those agreed on could be implemented.

New Democrat welfare ministers Alex Taylor of Saskatchewan and Levi said such a timetable is too slow.

"While we sit and talk," Taylor said, "many of our people suffer."

Most of the ministers also stressed the need for employment programs, arguing that much of the social security system would fall into place if people who want to work are given the opportunity to work.

All welcomed the federal pledge to remain flexible, but said it should not be assumed that existing social security arrangements need to be torn down completely.

Welfare Minister Brenda Robertson of New Brunswick said the conference should concentrate on broad social security goals and avoid tinkering with specific mechanical problems until a concensus is reached on general aims.

Castonguay agreed, adding his concern that existing programs be adapted rather than scrapped.

Armed with a portable TV and a 12-volt battery, they tested the signal from Faro from a number of mountaintops and finally settled on Grew Creek Hill. Mr. Kulan gave the Total North crew the go-ahead to build the pirate relay station and work was completed in early April.

Total cost: $6,200. Mr. Kulan has since turned the pirate operation over to the Ross River Community Club, which plans to repay him by instalment and assume ownership. All club members have signed a statement accepting full legal and financial responsibility for the station.

"Everyone in the community signed the statement, except two people who were out in the bush—they were angry because they missed signing it," said Mr. Shortt. "If someone tries to shut it down, there's going to be hell to pay.

"All of the people are going to be behind trees with bows and arrows just waiting for someone to try it."

At last count, Ross River boasted 20 television sets with more coming in almost daily. Mr. Kulan said he has been enjoying the Stanley Cup playoffs in color, and was looking forward to the baseball season.

Total North spokesman John Dunne estimated it will take the CRTC about five months to get around to reviewing the Ross River case.

Meantime the bleary-eyed residents of Ross River are happily soaking up every piece of TV fare from Secret Storm to Bugs Bunny. Thanks to an irate millionaire, a territorial bulldozer, and a relay station assembled from scrap metal, plywood and a propane gas generator.

Bible Reading No Big Issue

Bible reading in schools is not the fiery issue it once was.

Greater Victoria school board's decision to support a proposal ending compulsory religious exercises in schools sparked only mild reactions today from local ministers and school principals.

According to the Public Schools Act, every teacher and class must read the Bible and recite the Lord's Prayer each day.

"I think if it's only done in a perfunctory way, it really loses its value," said Lutheran minister Alfred Johnson.

"I would like to see Bible reading and prayers if it's done in the right spirit," he said, "but if it's not it's better not to do it."

Most ministers said they were hesitant to make any quick decision on the proposal and would like to consider possible alternatives.

Christianity is part of the Canadian heritage, said Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church, and should probably not be eliminated from the educational process.

Watson said religious studies can remain compulsory, however, and school boards should be encouraged to consider elective courses in religion.

Rev. Michael O'Connell of St. Patrick's Church said he felt parents should meet with teachers and ministers to discuss some kind of alternative religious study.

"One such alternative might be provision of optional courses in the history of Christian denominations and other faiths which are important in Canada," he said.

O'Connell agreed that religiouus exercises in their present form "aren't very meaningful" but said religious values and principles could be discussed in classrooms "not so much as doctrine but as history."

James Bay United Church minister Rev. K. M. Wood said he was not in favor of the compulsory aspect of religious exercises.

It should be the decision of the local electorate, especially parents, he said.

School principals were difficult to contact today because of the Easter vacation but most interviewed said the exercises were meaningless.

"It's become a farce," said A. I. Isaacson, principal of Cedar Hill Junior Secondary. "The way it's set up, it can't be effective."

The proposal, which will be presented to the B.C. School Trustees Association (BCSTA) annual convention next month by the Vancouver school board, also recommends religious studies be provided for in school curriculums.

Oak Bay High School principal David Voth, who said he totally agreed with ending the compulsory exercises, added that religious studies at the high school was an excellent idea that would be well-received by teachers and students.

Blanshard Talks Resume

Alternatives dating back to the mid-1960s may be hauled out for reconsideration next week as Saanich again meets the provincial highways department over the Blanshard Street extension.

Mayor Hugh Curtis, members of council and senior municipal staff meet Monday morning with Highways Minister Robert Strachan and engineers for their second discussion of the long-awaited link with the Pat Bay Highway.

A number of new land developments have been allowed in the general area north of Tolmie and east of Douglas where any connection from Blanshard must run.

Before the old government abandoned the route, it had been assumed Maple Street would be redeveloped through Seymour and past Town and Country shopping centre, connecting with the highway west of Swan Lake.

Because of new development along this route, at least two other alternatives are being considered, one of which may be to route the extension further east to use Alder, Bethune and Darwin, that could see the connection passing between Saanich municipal hall and Swan Lake, which is being reserved for park development.

Not Out of Thin Air

The federal and provincial welfare ministers have met in an apparent mood of generosity and haste. The Ottawa conference appears to be enthusiastically in favor of higher payments to individuals in almost every field of government aid, and impatient with any delay in implementing the new programs of federal health and welfare minister Marc Lalonde.

The mood represents the cumulative effect of a long period of steadily escalating inflation during which prices and incomes are being described in larger figures than ever before. This is conducive to an open-handed approach to payments, in the belief that what seems large today will seem small tomorrow. The inflation has also conditioned taxpayers — who must support governmental welfare plans—to the sight of ever-larger figures with dollar signs in front of them. There is far less outcry caused by an announcement of large payments for this or that welfare scheme than there was in an earlier time when relatively miniscule sums were voted for the relief of poverty.

There is, too, a larger consideration: the modern trend to social reform of various kinds — government expenditure in many forms designed to remove the threat of penury from larger segments of the population. With ministers present from three socialist provinces, and a federal minister whose government's continued existence depends on the support of the federal New Democratic Party, the trend of the Ottawa discussions was given an early direction. Not that the other provinces were backward with plans for wider welfare protections. The unanimity on the general theme of the conference was sufficient to move Mr. Lalonde to describe the provinces' attitude as "beyond my hopes."

There is no question that the welfare structures of Canada are due for a whole new approach. If income support payments are to be made to the aged, the permanently needy, the physically and mentally underprivileged, the temporarily unemployed, then they should logically be large enough to accomplish their purpose, which is to keep the recipients alive at a reasonable level of wellbeing. With that policy should go a parallel determination to ensure that the system shall operate efficiently and without opportunity for misuse of public funds. In other words, the recipients should be deserving, the graft should be minimal.

But back of all such considerations a deeper truth should be noted. The wealth of Canada — apart from what we have imported from the United States in the form of investments—depends on Canadian production. There must be earned incomes to support welfare programs. Therefore the efforts of government, at all levels, should be exerted equally as energetically in the direction of encouraging Canadians to engage their money and their energy in productive, profitable enterprises.

Without a healthy, rising Gross National Product the worthy plans of welfare experts can result only in impairment of the taxpayer's ability, increased national debt, or both. Admirable social motives govern the development of welfare programs; economic law governs acquisition of the funds to support them. Neither today can be dodged.

'Luxury'

It is the opinion of some Fiji senators that jails in that country are too luxurious. Inmates are supplied boots and socks, mattresses to sleep on and three square meals a day, sometimes including steak.

For many of the inhabitants of that country it's reportedy so much better inside than out that an increasing crime wave is attributed in part to the desire of some to enjoy the amenities of prison.

Such reports might suggest a society emerging from barbarism. But it shouldn't to residents of British Columbia. Although nothing has been said on the matter recently, cases are on record in which Indian youngsters have committed offences in the hope of being caught and sent to Brannan Lake School, where they are clothed, fed and warmly housed in the winter.

In that sense, crime does pay.

Taking Its Niche in History

Rising costs and educational change are bringing to an end the historic role of St. Ann's Academy, founded here under Roman Catholic auspices in 1858. For more than a century this pioneer among Victoria schools — first of its kind in western Canada — has served succeeding generations from the days of Sir James Douglas, whose daughters attended. St. Ann's earned wide respect regardless of religious denomination.

Among its graduates have been medal winners in matriculation examinations and highly competent young women who have taken their places in a wide range of activities in this city.

The decision to close the school's doors was taken on two grounds: falling enrolment and increasingly expensive operation. Parents who might prefer to place their children in an institution providing religious instruction in the Roman Catholic faith are subject not only to the relatively modest fees but also pay continually escalating municipal taxes. The double load has obviously become too burdensome for a number of them.

While this critical situation has prevailed for parents, difficulties have increased for the school itself, with rising costs of instruction making demands which the order considers not justified under present circumstances.

The convent moves toward its niche in history — a history it has helped to shape in this community and a record of which the order may be justly proud.

". . . do you have a calm, reflective, current history which avoids any mention of those dreadful people to the south of us . . . ?"

MAURICE WESTERN

A Saying That Money Talks

OTTAWA — In the conditions of the modern subsidy state, the relationship of political parties to principles becomes more and more elusive. What remains remarkably constant is the sensitivity of politicians to any suggestion that principles are negotiable or may, in any instance, be abandoned.

The point was very well illustrated last weekend when Mr. Marc Lalonde appeared on television to defend the Government's new scheme of family allowances and social security. Beyond question, there has been a radical change, for the Lalonde proposals cannot possibly be regarded as Family Income Supplements Plan with minor modifications.

It was the position of the Government, in its majority years, that we should move away from programs conferring universal benefits with resultant waste. The new approach was to be specific, directed to particular targets of need. Thus, in the case of family allowances, resources were to be concentrated with large payments going to lower income parents. No longer would cheques go out to those who did not need them and no longer would childless families be taxed on the scale necessary to provide benefits for those in the higher brackets who had dependents.

This was an understandable policy. It displeased critics who argued for universality and may have offended some voters. But it appeared to carry the convictions of the Ministers who argued for it with vigor, rejecting as irresponsible the alternative course of increased demogrants.

Payments Tripled

Now, after a few months of minority government, demogrants are back in favor with payments to be tripled. Mr. Lalonde, not surprisingly, found himself confronted with the objection that old principles had been traded for new, plus the support of David Lewis.

The Minister had explanations. All these things, he said, are not so much principles as application of techniques to remedy the problem of poverty and the distribution of income in this country. This is fascinating. When official language is employed with sufficient skill, there is no problem with principles. Like old soldiers, they merely fade away.

In addition, the principles or applications of techniques have been satisfactorily fixed—as happened earlier with protection and free trade. As Mr. Lalonde pointed out, the principle of selectivity has been retained for back-up allowances. For some, payments averaging $20 per child per month will not be enough. They too will be covered in the overall scheme.

To quote the Minister: "Now we are acting on the demogrant aspect, on the universal aspect of the family allowance system and later on there will have to be a supplementation, so there is no contradiction, you know, between what was being put forward before and what is being put forward now."

Thus, in the official view, there can be no question of principles being bartered when they are merely scrambled in a policy omelette.

Mr. Lalonde was pressed to say that the new policy paper is a reflection of Liberal philosophy, as it has always been. He replied, very carefully, that it is definitely the expression of the present Government's philosophy on social security. This seems to mean that the surviving Liberal Government should not be confused with past Liberal governments — a risk that may be minimal, all things considered.

In accepting the new, citizens will also be encouraged to accept a new terminology. Some words give people hang-ups; agreeable alternatives are accordingly developed by officials, fastidious in these matters.

The term, "baby bonus", is a case in point. For more than a quarter century it has been common currency in this country but we shall have to part with it because it gives Mr. Lalonde the creeps, as he advised erring reporters on the weekend. Well disposed citizens will refer in future to family income supplements.

The obvious weakness of the older expression, mentioned by the Minister, is that a 17-year-old is a fairly aging baby. But there are probably deeper reasons counselling change. Government being at the summit of everything, must be concerned with its image.

This is the age of bonuses. We collect them at gas stations and receive them through the mail. It should not be thought that government, except for tax purposes, is in the retail business or thinks in crass, commercial terms. If such opinions gained ground, the Minister of National Revenue would probably be expected to encourage early filings with offers of free tableware which he has not had to do, up to this point.

Mr. Lalonde has another explanation

MARC LALONDE
. . . had explanations

for the Government's change of heart or conversion to new applications of technique. While the latest proposals, as he concedes, are more costly than the old, the circumstances have also altered. In approving FISP and rejecting universality, the Government acted at a time when you had tax reform being introduced and at a time when you had a very large reform, a very substantial reform of unemployment insurance, which implied also substantial expenditures of funds . . .

With an improved situation, fresh possibilities have presumably opened.

Tax reform was criticized because it appeared to be a method of over-filling the treasury. Indeed, important changes were introduced for that very reason. Is Mr. Lalonde now saying that official forecasting was even worse than had earlier been assumed? Unemployment insurance certainly imposed huge costs; perhaps, in that respect, the outlook is now better although the Government was rather careful to avoid future embarrassment by removing the former ceiling.

But suppose official calculations are as fragile as those to which we have grown accustomed? Whether the economy goes up or down, we are being committed to upwards of $800 millions annually over and above what was previously contemplated and what will be recovered in taxes on handouts.

Unquestionably, the demogrant system has one advantage; it avoids the administrative nuisance involved in income declarations. As Mr. Lalonde said: It is much simpler administratively to do it on that basis and recover through the taxation system.

But the fact is, of course, that the Government made light of administrative difficulties when it was defending FISP. The argument then relied upon had been a favorite of the Prime Minister even before he achieved the Liberal leadership. As he said about the guaranteed income, now largely being implemented:

"It is theoretically very attractive in the sense that it tends to do away with endless bureaucratic solutions to a whole different set of problems and tries to solve them through one income tax report. And therefore it is attractive in the sense that it would simplify the administration of these things. But it doesn't meet the kind of point that I'm making. I think the people that we want to help now are people who won't be helped just because they are getting a cheque which will bring them up to the minimum of what we decide to be the good standard of living for the average Canadian . . . If it would simplify some bureaucratic problems, it's good but I would hate to have people believe that it is a solution for the pockets of poverty which are plaguing us now."

Complications

There are some distinctions to be made. Mr. Trudeau was thinking in simpler terms: one income tax return. The guaranteed income is turning out to be a more complicated affair. Also, there was no question, at the time, in his mind of helping people not in need. But plainly, he was not much moved by the argument of administrative simplicity which seems so strong to Mr. Lalonde. Nor was the pre-election Government when it stood before the country as the proud author of FISP.

So everything has changed, but the Government, miraculously, remains steadfast in its principles. To the extent that they are involved at all, which is not admitted, they are flexible; one may apply this technique and condemn that or reverse the order, condemning the first and applying the second.

It may be rather confusing for voters, who perhaps shed their convictions with less agility than governments. But the Opposition parties seem strangely reluctant to take a chance and make an issue of it. Mr. Lalonde proposes to redistribute a great deal of money and there is of course, a saying —obviously not underestimated by those to the left of Mr. Speaker—that money talks.

C. L. SULZBERGER

Joan of Arc in a Sari

SRINAGAR, Kashmir, India — The Nehru family of Kashmiri Brahmins has already furnished India with two prime ministers and it is no accident that the second, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, should have adopted as her special hero Joan of Arc, about whom the first, Jawaharlal Nehru, wrote when he was a political prisoner of the British.

The Maid of Orleans, so separated in time and space from the distinguished descendants of this lovely mountain vale, had as her goal the expulsion of England from her country. This was the primordial objective of Mrs. Gandhi's father. But, in addition, the French warrior-saint had a will power that the present chief of the world's largest democratic government seeks to emulate.

"I admire her," said the prime minister in a recent conversation, "for seeing the necessity to do something regardless of whether it was appreciated or not. And, as for how it was appreciated, you know her end. But she knew she was right and she pursued her goal all out, even when no one was with her at the start. Unless one tackles problems with that determination, regardless of sacrifice, nothing can be done."

Hidden Strength

The resemblance between the two is limited to indomitable resolution. Mrs. Gandhi is no heavy-set girl in medieval armor but a delicately featured, fine-boned woman who, when she talked with me, was wearing a green sari set off by a dashing yellow sash. Yet there was no mistaking the iron determination hidden beneath her velvet complexion.

Although virtually all of our talk was on a background basis, it became clear the deciding factor in her approach to policy is what she calls the "interest" of the Indians who, as she puts it, comprise a large chunk of the world. That word "interest" intrudes time and again in her discussion of both internal and external affairs.

She seems pleased that there is an evident detente in relationships with the United States. She insists India will never be beholden to the Soviet Union or any other power. Indeed, she gave me permission to quote her scouting printed rumors that Moscow might receive naval facilities on the Indian Ocean.

"We deny this categorically," she said. "We have no intention of giving any facilities or bases to any country."

Even with China, she indicates, New

INDIRA GANDHI
. . . iron determination

Delhi would like a better atmosphere. Peking was once regarded as a great friend but ever since the Chinese took over Tibet the mood has soured; the Sino-Pakistani alliance was wormwood. Things have not improved, apparently, but Mrs. Gandhi feels it is in all Asia's interest to have a strong India, not in terms of military power but stability.

This stability is not always assured. Last year's harvest was bad. A shortage of rains dried up reservoirs and wells, making a shortage in drinking water. There has been a partial — but only partial — recovery in grain production.

The dearth is exacerbated by the fact that the Indian people are more politically conscious and have come to expect more. Violence and indiscipline can be noted in various regions. This may in part be a break due to the apathy of a colonial past and also to the depicting of violence in movies, television and press reports.

Mrs. Gandhi, having led her country to its greatest military victory in the Bangladesh war with Pakistan, is now trying to firm up the internal economic position. Nevertheless, she affirms no undemocratic measures are contemplated. When asked if there is truth in reports she might nationalize India's free press, she answers categorically: "Never. On the contrary, we have no intention at all of doing this."

Indian Independence

Externally, the quintessential questions are non-alignment and Pakistan. Despite a brilliantly successful Soviet policy of moving steadily into India's diplomatic and economic outlook, New Delhi insists it will not permit its gratitude for political backing or industrial help to becloud its vision of independent Indian interests. Recent warm breezes blowing toward America may be related to this.

As for Pakistan, India is often accused of conspiring to destroy that country, already desperately weakened by the loss of its eastern wing and simmering with autonomous movements. But Mrs. Gandhi, seeing how its disappearance would suck dangerous elements into the resulting vacuum, insists that the end of Pakistan would menace not only India but Asian peace. Time alone will judge the veracity or accuracy of this view.

OTTAWA — The hopes of the city of Vancouver deputation which came here to oppose the drydock plans at Esquimalt and to secure a drydock at Vancouver instead, or in addition, have been destroyed and the deputation is now going home with the cold satisfaction that the proposed drydock will be built at Esquimalt. The government has declined to change its plans. H. B. Thomson, MPP, and Capt. W. H. Logan pressed Esquimalt's case in Ottawa and also urged changes in the breakwater plans.

Hard Choices for U.S. in Cambodia

By MARTIN WOOLLACOT
The Manchester Guardian

The feebleness of the Lon Nol Government and the ineptness of its harassed army have, over the past two months, produced a situation which represents a major reversal for United States policy in that country and in Indo-China generally.

All the evidence suggests that this has happened almost accidentally. The basic pattern of the war in Cambodia shows a twice yearly effort by the Communists to close off the five main highways into Phnom Penh and besiege a handful of district capitals, as well as to interdict the Mekong River, along which come most of the Cambodian capital's supplies.

There is nothing to show that this year's effort, which began about 10 weeks ago, was intended by the Communists to be on a significantly larger scale than a normal spring offensive. Indeed in autumn last year, the Khmer Rouge and the North Vietnamese had succeeded in cutting every main highway — but at that time only for about a week.

The results this time must have exceeded Communist expectations. They succeeded with comparative ease in virtually every road battle. Undoubtedly the worsening morale of the Cambodian army was accelerated by the Lon Nol Government's hysterical overreaction to the palace bombing in mid March.

In a great wave of unnecessary emergency measures, sackings, and largely pointless arrests, the regime demonstrated its lack of grip and judgment, and forfeited what little popular support it had still commanded.

Even a well-disciplined army could hardly have remained unaffected. Cambodia's ramshackle collection of ill-equipped brigades, some of them virtually private armies, was naturally shaken.

Most Successful

In any event the Communist spring offensive this year has, no doubt as a result, been the most successful they have ever mounted.

That success presents problems for the Communists, Prince Sihanouk, no doubt reflecting also the policy of Hanoi, said in Peking recently that the Khmer Rouge had no intention of trying to take Phnom Penh, preferring to let the Lon Nol Government gradually choke to death in its own incompetence and corruption.

The political logic is understandable but from the military point of view, it leaves the Communist troops around Phnom Penh no ultimate alternative in face of heavy American bombing, but to lift the siege, and fade back off the roads.

The Communists have faced this dilemma before — whenever their efforts to isolate the capital have reached a certain point — but this time it is going to be particularly painful to disengage, simply because of the degree of success.

That the Communists, unless they suddenly change their political strategy in Cambodia, have no immediate way of cashing in on their military successes is no doubt the principal reason why U.S. officials in Phnom Penh and Washington are able to maintain that Cambodia is not yet a crisis. General Alexander Haig, for instance, is believed to have delivered a fairly sanguine report to President Nixon after his recent flying trip to Phnom Penh.

Great comfort was derived from the "unbridgeable" divisions between the various factions of the Khmer Rouge and the lack of a unified Communist command. And a lot was made of the existence within the Cambodian army of a few good units and of new attempts to reduce corruption, payroll padding and the aptly named ghost and flower soldiers.

The American scenario for Cambodia after the ceasefire was a lengthy period of low level conflict, with the Government forces at least holding their own and hopefully, over time, gaining ground, while the regime made "divide and rule" deals with individual groups of dissidents.

Two events have shattered this hopeful forecast. One was Sihanouk's recent fence mending trip to the "liberated areas" of Cambodia, where he appears to have secured the assent, however grudging, of the major dissident groups to his formal leadership. That assent may be very fragile: nevertheless, for the first time in the Cambodian conflict, the dissidents are now all part of a unified movement.

The other, of course, was the complete failure of the Cambodian army to hold its own in face of what appears to have been a fairly normal spring offensive, involving between six and twelve thousand troops on the other side.

Take a Swipe

To blunt this offensive (and also no doubt to take a side swipe at North Vietnamese troops in the Cambodian border areas), American B-52 bombers have been flying a record 60 sorties a day, with fighter bomber strikes running around 200 a day.

This huge bombing campaign — involving more strategic bombing raids than at one time were mounted in the whole of Indo-China — has its political costs at home in the United States.

American efforts to enlist the South Vietnamese in convoy protection and clearing operations in the Mekong could well have unfortunate consequences in South Vietnam, escalating the scale of operations and inviting retaliatory moves by the North Vietnamese.

These are the immediate costs of the Cambodian crisis. But beyond that the United States has some hard choices to make, and a lot earlier then perhaps even the pessimists in the American Government had imagined.

A deal involving the return of Sihanouk might under other circumstances have been not wholly unattractive to the Americans — and the earlier such a deal was made the more "neutral" such a Government might turn out to be.

But the psychological impact on Saigon — particularly as the Laos ceasefire can also be represented as much more of a sell-out than anybody expected — could be very bad indeed.

And such a deal would of course also represent the final abandonment of American policy in Cambodia, of the plan to create a force capable of harassing the Communists from the rear.

OWNERSHIP REALLY PAYS

TORONTO STAR

Why should Canadians worry about foreign ownership? If a business provides jobs for Canadians and pays taxes to Canadian governments, why bother about the nationality of the owner?

The short answer is that foreign ownership matters because, in economic affairs, it is ownership that really pays off in terms of wealth and power.

This is power over the livelihoods and future of Canadians, and it is especially strong in the typical form that foreign ownership takes here — Canadian subsidiaries of great multinational corporations headquartered in the United States.

When they must choose, the heads of these multinational giants naturally put their firm's global interests ahead of Canada's special interest in the performance of their Canadian branches. The parent firms' goals, not Canada's, are paramount when they open or close plants in this country, add or lay off staff, allocate funds for research and development, choose suppliers of goods and services, draw out profits or reinvest them, or borrow money to finance their operations.

In practice, as the Gray report on foreign investment made clear, such decisions often go against Canada's interest in full development of Canadian industrial capacities. For one important instance, foreign-owned firms tend to prefer to extract raw materials here and process them abroad. One consequence is fewer jobs in Canada and another is that Canadians get less opportunity to rise to the top ranks of their field in Canada.

American subsidiaries are also channels through which U.S. government policy and law can be, and occasionally are, intruded into Canada. U.S. anti-trust law can be applied to prevent mergers of Americn subsidiaries in Canada, even though this might make good economic sense to achieve economies of scale in the smaller Canadian market. Washington can also induce American multinational firms to shift export production from their foreign subsidiaries to their U.S. plants. The DISC legislation, offering U.S. companies strong tax incentives to put their export business into Domestic International Sales Corporations, is an attempt to do this, and may cost Canada jobs.

So it is the future of Canadians, not only economically but also politically, that is at stake in the question of foreign ownership.

Already our most high-profit, high-technology industries are heavily mortgaged to foreigners, mostly Americans. In 1970 foreigners owned 59 per cent of Canadian manufacturing and 68 per cent of mining and smelting, including the petroleum and natural gas industries. And we are not paying off these mortgages; instead, foreign ownership is rising.

That is why the takeover review bill, although stronger than the original introduced last year, is still insufficient. It would empower the government to block foreign takeovers of sizable Canadian firms unless these promised added benefits to Canada in terms of jobs, technology or risk capital otherwise unavailable; and it would extend the screening to all new enterprises begun by foreigners in Canada. But the screening agency would ignore expansion by existing foreign subsidiaries in the fields they already occupy.

The legislation, then, should be useful in preventing some foreign investment which offers no net benefit to Canada. But it will at best slow the march toward foreign control of the economy. It will not reverse that movement and start us toward majority Canadian ownership. And ownership is necessary to assure Canadian control of Canada's future.

Time to Call Canada's Banks to Account

GLOBE and MAIL
An Editorial

One point which the Commons Special Committee on Trends in Food Prices has touched on only peripherally is what interest rates have contributed to the higher cost of the food basket. Yet if farm prices are up, if the costs of abatoirs and processing companies and packagers and supermarkets are up, higher interest rates are a pervasive factor in the whole thing.

The Globe and Mail's Scott Young talked to a farmer whose job is fattening cattle for the beef market. The farmer felt trapped between the rising prices of producing beef cattle and the public's rebellion against rising meat prices. Threaded through his tale of what came close to despair were constant mentions of his credit burden.

"I've always got my neck on the line at bank." He could make ends meet because his wife worked and paid the grocery, phone, hydro and heating bills, but "I meet the mortgages and the bank loans. I just don't think the public knows what we're up against, and I don't know how much longer I want to do this at all.

"Most cattle producers my size (not small and inefficient) operate on bank notes; a line of credit that may go up to $100,000 or more. When I'm not selling, the interest on the bank loan ticks on at about 10 per cent just the same."

He grows much of his own feed: "I have more than $25,000 tied up in seeding alone . . . when it doesn't rain, and you see the corn milting out there and think of the bank note, it isn't so much of a thrill." He talked of a lot of 100 heifers on which he had lost money last fall, after putting into them a variety of feeds "plus interest on the money I borrowed to buy them".

Like the housewife, he is nostalgic for the good old days of lower prices — "My bank note was a lot lower" — but everything has gone up — "Bigger loans. I pay three or four times as much interest as I used to."

It is a lament which could no doubt be reproduced by every level of the food business, from the farmer to the supermarket. They all have to put out money to earn money, and often the money must be borrowed; and the cost of borrowing money has increased.

The farmer Mr. Young talked to was no longer happy with his lot. He will have much company. If the activities of the parliamentary committee, of the meat boycott, cut back the prices at which he can sell, he may cut down on his business or go out of it entirely. That can only mean that the price of meat will rise, because meat will be in shorter supply.

The Commons food committee has not finished its study. In its future sessions, does it intend to examine the role which higher interest rates have played in higher food price? Does it plan to see to what extent farmers rely on credit, and if that credit is bought at expensive even usurious rates?

Have we, in fact, arrived at a point where the whole economy of Canada requires research into the activities of the chartered banks?

At one time there was a ceiling on the interest rates which banks could charge. During the 1960s that ceiling was removed with — we are beginning to wonder if we should regret it — the approval of The Globe and Mail. We and many others believed that if the banks were able to compete with other financial institutions for deposit funds and for borrowers, the effect would be generally lower interest rates.

That does not seem to have been the result. Many would say quite flatly and produce their own loan figures to prove it, that quite the opposite has been the result. They would also point to the fine, healthy profits of the banks.

The chartered banks are among Canada's most powerful institutions; they have an enormous impact on every sector of our economy.

Is it not time that Parliament commissioned some serious research into their activities, by researchers that are empowered to get the answers? Last June the Commons Finance Committee was examining the bill on foreign takeovers and had before it two leading spokesmen for the Canadian banking industry. It wanted to know how much money Canadian banks were lending foreign industry for the takeover of Canadian businesses. All it got from the two spokesmen was frustration, even impertinence.

The Commons food committee can harass the food industry, down to and including the farmers, and perhaps produce no better result than that the harassment itself will become a factor in increasing food prices. Would it not be better to consider whether farmers, and the food industry generally, can make a case for loans at controlled rates of interest?

Would it not be even better for the Finance Committee, armed with the legal power to compel the attendance of bankers complete with facts and figures, to go to the taproot of the matter?

Can-Do-Guys Can't Do Now —Except for Lobbying

RUSSELL BAKER

Those of us who were brought up with absolute faith in the absolute superiority of American mechanical skills cannot help feeling embarrassed about Detroit's performance in this matter of exhaust pollution standards.

It isn't that the engineering failure is so humiliating, although it is bad enough when we read that Japanese industry can already meet standards Detroit says it will still be unable to measure up to by 1975. The Japanese! To anyone whose psyche is rooted in the 1930s, finishing behind the Japanese in a manufacturing exercise is like John Wayne being beaten up by Smiley Burnett.

Still, that could be tolerated. We are older now than we were in 1939, and we have learned that nobody can win them all. What is insufferable, however, is that Detroit should not even be ashamed of itself — indeed, that far from being ashamed of itself, Detroit should mount a loud lobbying operation in Washington to call world attention to its defeat.

For months it has been declaring that the American car industry absolutely cannot under any conceivable circumstances solve the hard engineering problem put to it by the government. What it wanted, and what it got last week, was government permission to be excused from having to solve the problem for a long time — forever, some people suspect.

What's wrong out there in Detroit? They seem to have lost the good old American know-how, forgotten how to cut the mustard, misplaced the moxie.

This, at any rate, is what they keep saying in Washington while trying to persuade the government to make it easier for them. At times the force of their lobbying campaign suggests that Detroit may even be proud of its inadequacy.

What a falling off this is. We hear it and think of the Seabees in the Second World War. The difficult they did immediately. Remember? The impossible took a little longer.

There were can-do guys in those days, and there used to be can-do guys in Detroit, too. America was full of can-do guys not so long ago.

Nowadays we have can't-do guys. Washington is perpetually filled with them, all looking for a government handout, or a backdoor appointment at the justice department, all leaning on the Congress and Pentagon and White House while their superb lobbying machines boast that they can't build an airplane, can't fulfil a contract, can't run a railroad, can't stop dumping their garbage in their own life's air.

Inability to get results back at the plant doesn't seem to matter anymore. Nowadays, to get results you go to Washington.

Can't-do guys do all right in Washington; perhaps because lobbying is one thing the can't-do guys do all right in Washington, perhaps because lobbying is one thing the can't-do guys almost always can do, and magnificently. Detroit may not be able to dispose of exhaust very neatly, but it can build a beautiful lobbying machine for selling government the story of its own inadquacy.

What is it in the Washington air that restores the energies of these once dynamic American manufacturers? Some thing there is what brings out all of the old latent, half-forgotten ingenuity that seems to have abandoned them back in the home plant.

Back in Burbank everything may seem hopeless. Engineers weeping and test pilots refusing to take the thing off the deck. But bring them to Washington and, suddenly, hopeless, half-dead men are leaping on the cocktail tables in $650-a-day penthouse suites shouting, "I don't care how impossible it looks, boss! Our lobby can lick this problem!"

Production, of course, counts for little in Washington. Here salesmanship, not production, has become the ultimate virtue. This is why companies that can't produce at the plant do it so well in Washington. The test here is seldom whether it will work, but whether you can sell it. And so long as you can sell it, who cares whether it works or not? Salesmanship — that's the stuff. In Washington, even corporate failure sells if boasted about loudly enough.

To get results in Washington, as Pentagon contractors have known for years, you have to have known for years, you have to have good old American don't-know-how.

of a deceptive, apparently illegal $4,400 advertisement in the New York Times. The ad, which also supported the president's Haiphong mining decision and which criticized a Times editorial, appeared to have been sent by a group of citizens, rather than the re-election committee.

The Times said today the general accounting office will seek criminal charges against the Republicans for not reporting financial backing of the ad.

When WTTG reported the results of its Haiphong mining poll the week of May 15, the station qualified the results by noting that it had received several thousand post cards that were of a suspicious nature, because they had apparently been typed on the same typewriters and used the same phrasing in many cases.

Dooley, the former head of the Nixon committee mail room, said he had been told that the effort to distort the poll was made because campaign officials said it was a legitimate attempt to influence public opinion.

"But in my opinion," Dooley said, "when you come out and tamper with the poll, it is wrong and misguided. It upset a number of people."

After the WTTG ballots were clipped from the 1,000 newspapers, Dooley said, campaign officials were afraid the newspapers might be discovered at the committee headquarters, so they had the newspapers shredded.

Convicted Watergate conspirator James McCord Jr., then the head of security for the Nixon committee, "was upset about a ton of newspapers all over the shredder room," according to Dooley. "But all the newspapers, including the Washington Post and the Washington Evening Star, were shredded as directed."

Without elaborating, Dooley said that "McCord was often fed up with what the press office had him do."

In other developments former secretary of defence Melvin Laird reportedly has turned down a bid from Nixon to take over the top White House administrative post with a mandate to clean house in the wake of the Watergate scandal.

Sources on Capital Hill said Wednesday Laird had told associates he had been asked to come in and "straighten up the mess" that has rocked the Nixon administration and shattered the morale and direction of the White House staff.

The bid to Laird marks the first tangible evidence that Nixon has decided that top-level staff changes must be made. Presumably, Laird would have taken the post now filled by H. R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff. Federal investigators have said that Haldeman was involved in the Watergate Case.

Word of the bid to Laird came as Vice-President Spiro Agnew, firmly countering second-hand reports that he was unhappy with the president's handling of the Watergate affair, lined up solidly behind Nixon.

Also H. R. Haldeman, who once ran the Nixon White House, with stern efficiency, appeared today to have lost much of his power as reports mount that a shakeup in the staff, including resignations, was in the works.

Haldeman has been reported to be under investigation by the federal grand jury looking into the bugging in alleged attempts to protect some persons who might have played a role in the crime. He has hired a lawyer to defend him in the case.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, has disclosed under questioning that the regular morning meetings of top aides that Haldeman conducted for more than four years were broken off about three weeks ago and not been resumed. Ziegler denied this development had been connected with the Watergate case. He said that the aides involved — Henry Kissinger, George Shultz, John Ehrlichman and others — felt their time could be better spent in meetings with their subordinates.

Other sources, however, point out that the breakoff of what had become an institution at the White House, with Haldeman in charge, coincides with the more recent explosive developments in the Watergate case and indicated strongly that Watergate was involved.

At the same time, it was learned that the department of interior has fired a former Nixon campaign official who paid a George Washington University student $150 a week to spy on radical groups.

A department spokesman said that George K. Gorton was told to leave because of "adverse publicity" surrounding his role in the 1972 election campaign, when he served as national college director of the Nixon re-election committee and as deputy to Kenneth S. Rietz.

Rietz, the 31-year-old director of the "new majority campaign" at the Republican national committee, quit abruptly Monday to accept a job with MGM Records.

In a telephone interview Wednesday Rietz said from Los Angeles that he had helped find Gorton the job at interior "because he did a good job in the campaign."

But Rietz flatly denied reports that either he or Gorton recruited young voters to spy on the McGovern presidential campaign.

Despite Reitz's denial, senate sources confirmed that Herbert L. (Bart) Porter had testified to senate investigators that Rietz had recruited four or five young people to infiltrate McGovern campaign organizations.

And in Pensacola, Fla., former attorney-general John Mitchell testified in a federal court hearing that he was present at a meeting of the committee to re-elect Nixon at which electronic surveillance was discussed.

U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow cut off an attorney's questions about who directed the discussion and what group was to be the object of the wiretapping.

Mitchell appeared as a reluctant witness at a pretrial hearing for seven members and one sympathizer of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. They are accused of plotting to violently disrupt the Republican national convention at Miami Beach last year.

The defence had subpoenaed Mitchrll in an effort to establish a link between the Watergate bugging and alleged electronic eavesdropping on the eight defendents.

Young Farmers Visit Victoria

Members of the Future Farmers of Canada, Quesnel Chapter, and Cowichan Valley senior 4-H Club, today visited the Provincial Museum, Maritime Museum and Island Farms Dairy.

The 11 youths are holding a conference at Duncan and are billetted with local 4-H members.

John Rorke, 16, liaison officer between the future farmers and student council at Quesnel Junior High, said agriculture is being taught as part of the curriculum from grades 8 to 12.

The special agricultural course at his school is attended not only by farm children but by "city kids" as well, he said.

Manitoba Gov't Faces Showdown With MDs

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of the Manitoba Medical Association said today relations with the provincial government have deteriorated to a point where "doctors are talking about a confrontation situation."

Dr. Peter Connelly of Winnipeg said he was not seeking a confrontation.

"All our efforts have been directed along a reasonable and responsible line, but the time may be near when more militant action may prevail"

Connelly said the "master-servant relationship which the government appears to be establishing is not acceptable to the MMA."

He said the 1,100-member association wants to be recognized as the bargaining agent for doctors and seeks a contractual arrangement with government, similar to the agreements reached in B.C. and Quebec.

Connelly said the medical profession in Manitoba is "completely unhappy."

"It's hard to say whether a strike might come into this . . . we're hoping there will be no strike," he said.

Connelly outlined three possible courses of action for doctors. One would be a general movement to bill patients directly, instead of through the Manitoba health services commission.

Another would be withdrawing from hospital committees and related administrative tasks. A third would be withdrawing from part-time teaching positions at universities.

Connelly said the rates paid to doctors under the Manitoba Health Services Commission schedule have not been increased since 1969, and physicians have been hit in the meantime by rising costs of practice.

He said Manitoba doctors had an average net income in 1972 of $31,000 compared with $33,000 in 1971.

Dr. Kenneth Wylie of Winnipeg, an association vice-president, added: "This is not only fees. People are going ahead and doing things in this province without asking us whether they are reasonable or not."

Verdict Soon For PPWC

A B.C. Labor Relations Board hearing concluded Wednesday into four applications for bargaining rights by the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

The PPWC is seeking to become bargaining agent at Ladysmith Forest Products, Saltair Lumber, Mayo Lumber and CIPA Lumber where the International Woodworkers of America represents 450 employees.

The board's decision, which could involve a representation vote among the employees, is expected to be made shortly.

Victoria Police Promote Three

Three Victoria sergeants were promoted Wednesday by the Victoria police commission, two to inspector and one to staff-sergeant.

Napoleon Bouchard, 56, becomes an inspector in the patrol division. Bouchard joined the Victoria force almost 32 years ago.

Lyle Somers, 47, moves from the detective office to the patrol division as inspector. Somers is a 26-year veteran of the Victoria force and has been its training officer.

Angus Stewart, 46, remains in the detective division as staff-sergeant, the second-in-command. Stewart's promotion fills the position left vacant since last year when Walter Calwell was made an inspector.

Bouchard and Somers will replace inspectors Richard Berry and Lester Clark, who retire at the end of this month.

MORE STUDY ON DOG CONTROL

The Capital Regional District will take up a suggestion by Agriculture Minister David Stupich to further explore the possibility of dog control in urban and rural areas west of Victoria.

The district had asked the agriculture department to change its policy so the districts could regulate roaming dogs in urban areas, outside municipalities, but leaving rural areas alone.

In a letter to the district Wednesday, Stupich said the region's suggestion "would in effect see a large part of the revenue from dog licensing within the proposed area go into funds other than the Provincial Dog Tax Fund while compensation for losses by domestic animal owners would be paid for by dog owners from the remainder of the province. As such, we could hardly be part of such a proposal."

Stupich also said he doesn't consider it feasible to split up dog control in urban and rural areas.

He said good dog control can only be achieved with, in addition to good licensing, a strict surveillance of dogs at large plus apprehending them or their owners wherever possible.

"We realize that our suggestion that Capital Regional District take over dog control, and our responsibilities under the Sheep Protection Act, may be viewed with concern because you feel that monetary-wise, it would be a losing proposition," he said.

"If you do hold such a viewpoint, perhaps this is where we should commence further negotiations since we are not in accord with this view."

N.Z. Will Send Warship If France Resumes N-Test

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — Prime Minister Norman Kirk said today New Zealand would send a navy frigate to the French nuclear test zone in the South Pacific as a "last resort" to halt atomic blasts in the atmosphere.

"We are going to follow through what we have said we will do and what is open to us to do," Kirk said as he returned from an eight-day Pacific tour.

The French nuclear test zone, used first in 1968, is at the Mururoa Atoll, 800 miles southeast of Tahiti. France continues its testing program and justifies it on grounds that it has not signed the nuclear test ban treaty prohibiting atmosphereic tests of nuclear weapons.

Kirk said he believed Australia would co-operate with the frigate plan.

"I find it difficult to believe that since we are in effect being supported by Australia when we go to the International Court of Justice with our case that they would not want to identify with our other proposal to go to Mururoa so far as a navy vessel is concerned," Kirk said.

"Certainly we have had no refusal," he said.

Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam said Wednesday in London the issue would go to the International Court at The Hague if France makes preparations for a new round of nuclear tests.

Britain promised earlier to convey the Australian objections to France.

Region Tackles Library Question

A delegation from the Greater Victoria Library Board asked the Capital Regional District Wednesday to take over the library service as a function for the five participating municipalities.

Library board member Brian Tobin said he and library director Don Miller came "not to ask for further exploration of ideas but rather an application to carry out this request" for regionalization.

The region decided to discuss the issue again at its next meeting.

Tobin said it "seems logical" that the library service for Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich become a function of the regional board.

The present method, in which the library board takes its budget to the five participating municipalities each of which has a veto vote, "seems cumbersome, it has grown up like topsy rather than planned."

He also said three separate studies have recommended regionalization of library service.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said he is opposed to the move.

"In essence, it's already regionalized," he said.

He said the Capital Regional Board is not any more qualified or competent to judge the financial feasibility of what the library wants than the library board.

Doctors To Discuss Office Help

What would the ideal medical office assistant be like?

A panel of four local doctors will give their views on the subject May 5, at the second annual conference of the Medical Office Assistants' Association of B.C.

About 225 of the close to 300 members in the association will attend the meeting at Holyrood House on Blanshard.

Dr. Scott Wallace, a general practitioner and MLA for Oak Bay, will speak following the dinner.

There are three workshops on the day's education program. One will deal with geriatric and pediatric problems, another with frustrations faced by medical office staff and the third will offer experts to answer questions related to the B.C. Medical Plan, labor relations and general office problems.

CD DISPLAY TONIGHT

Saanich civil defence forces will display emergency rescue equipment at a seminar tonight in CD operations centre, lower floor of the police-fire building.

The program is designed to give council and senior municipal staff a grounding in civil defence resources available in the municipality.

All rescue gear will be on display and a local history of civil defence will be available. The program starts at 7:30.

OUR SMALL CAR IS THE BEST REASON FOR BUYING OUR BIG CAR.

THE NEW MARK II. THE MOST TOYOTA.

Getting all the important features into a small car and still keeping it economical is the true test of an automobile maker.

Toyota cars come with more standard features than any other small car. (Which may have something to do with why we're the biggest selling small car in the world.)

And now we can offer the world the first big car to be built the way a big car should be built: like a small car. With features designed in, not just tacked on.

And the end result is a big car that has more standard features than any other car in its class: the new Mark II.

Power front disc brakes are standard.

Even an AM/FM radio is standard.

And the list doesn't stop there. Inside and out, you'll find things on the new Mark II you'd expect to pay for elsewhere. An electric clock, for instance. Wall-to-wall carpeting. A rear window defroster. Double stripe white wall tires. And fully reclining bucket seats.

In fact, since the new Mark II has the most room, the most comfort, and the most luxury of any Toyota, we're calling it the most Toyota.

You can find out for yourself by taking the Mark II for a test drive. In the Sedan, Hardtop, or Wagon version.

But if you really want to find out what our new Mark II is made of, do this:

Interest Rate Roll-Back Offered by City Company

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The mortgage interest rate in Victoria has gone to 9.25 per cent, up from 9 per cent — although some trust companies are still offering 9 per cent money.

Lenders who two weeks ago were quoting the rate at 9 per cent are now calling it "nine to nine-and-a-half" depending upon the property.

Banks are quoting 9.25 as their base rate.

In Victoria the lending has been slow at 9.25 and one mortgage firm said it was inserting a clause that loans going out at 9.25 per cent could be rolled back to 9 per cent this summer if the general rate falls back again.

However, Ontario lenders report the 9.25 rate has stabilized and business is brisk in that province.

The Ontario outlook is for a 9.25 per cent rate for several months, followed by upward pressure on interest rates.

In Victoria, where lending funds are in over-supply, there is no evidence at the moment of upward pressure beyond the 9.25 range.

Second mortgages continued to be quoted at 11 to 12 per cent, unchanged over the past two months.

The Canadian dollar continues to float at near par with the U.S. dollar despite the effective devaluation against European and Japanese currencies.

The continuing close tie demonstrated that the world looks upon Canada and the U.S. as a single trading bloc, says Dr. E. Wayne Clendenning, economic adviser to Richardson Securities.

He said the attitude of other trading blocs may push Canada into a closer trading and currency relationship with the U.S.

Japanese industry has been urged to buy more processed goods and import less raw materials.

In particular, says the Japanese Industrial Planning Council, British Columbia should be encouraged to put copper and other minerals through a smelter before exporting them to Japan.

Japan is too congested and short of energy resources to continue primary processing of imported natural resources, the council says.

It also urges a halt to production of pulp and paper and petroleum refining in densely populated areas of the country.

Trade Slump Worries VSE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trading volume on the Vancouver stock exchange, once the wild card of stock markets, has slumped to an uncomfortable low in recent weeks and investment dealers here are looking to the provincial government to clear the way for a predicted big boom in the mining sector.

According to the dealers, the most obvious factor in the current slump is a decline in speculative mining activity, which normally accounts for a large part of Vancouver's trading volume.

This, they say, is the area most affected by uncertainties over new legislation and political policies introduced by the New Democratic Party government in British Columbia.

Mining could turn the corner, however, as the NDP government faces a golden opportunity to stimulate employment by taking advantage of booming world markets for metals.

Trading volume on the VSE in the first quarter sank to 172 million shares from 257 million a year earlier and value plunged to $138 million from $218 million.

Mines showed the greatest decline. Trading value in mines in March dropped to $21.4 million, compared with $50.7 million a year ago.

VSE chairman Michael M. Ryan said the Vancouver scene is quiet but all the local houses are still using black ink, at least.

One analyst said the Vancouver mining market tends to move around a major find and he noted there has been such a find every year or so.

"But for the past year, there has been nothing to fire up enthusiasm," he added.

Bob Chilcott of C. M. Oliver and Co. Ltd. suspects that some major new discoveries in B.C. are being kept quiet until the industry knows what the political rules are going to be.

Peter Brown of Canarim Investments also believes that if Victoria removes uncertainties surrounding new mining legislation, an excellent mining market will develop. He goes one step further, suggesting "there are several major discoveries waiting in the wings."

"Ambiguities and uncertainties over Bill 44, new B.C. mining legislation have created a genuine lack of interest and a wait-and-see attitude throughout North America and Europe," Brown said.

"If the government would clarify the situation for mining, and restore good relations with the business community, we'd be in a very euphoric period."

The biggest problem, he said, is that the legislation is poorly written and the government is asking to be trusted while creating too much uncertainty.

He noted that it takes a long time to attract capital from around the world and that once it gets disenchanted, it its difficult to lure back.

Chilcott said he expects Victoria to act soon to clarify its plans for the mining industry.

"It's a great chance to provide an enormous amount of employment in B.C. if they'll just clarify the rules."

Packaging 'Helps Hold Food Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The new president of the Packaging Association of Canada said Wednesday without modern packaging "our cost of food would be substantially greater."

W. C. Christner of Toronto said current eating habits of Canadians have resulted in a growing trend toward convenience and single-portion packaging.

He said, far from making food more expensive, new packaging techniques tend to hold prices down and "certainly help prevent food spoilage."

Christner said consumers should consider all the aspects of a packaging program before claiming an item has been deceptively packaged.

"It may look overpackaged or deceptive. But usually when a package that is suspect is examined it is found to be all right."

Kelly, Douglas & Company, Limited

JOHN W. PITTS

CHARLES H. WILLS

Victor F. MacLean, President of Kelly, Douglas & Company, Limited, announces the election of John W. Pitts and Charles H. Wills to the Board of Directors. The vacancies on the Board were created by the death of A. H. Pinkham, C.A. and the resignation of John L. Farris, Q.C. to accept the position of Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal of British Columbia.

Mr. Pitts is Chairman and President of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., and is a Director of many companies, including Crows Nest Industries Ltd., Paccar Inc., B.C. Sugar Refinery Ltd. and Royfund Ltd. He is a McGill graduate in mechanical engineering and holds an M.B.A. from Harvard. Mr. Pitts is this year's Chairman of the Salvation Army "Red Shield Appeal".

Mr. Wills is a partner in the firm of Farris, Vaughan, Wills & Murphy, Barristers and is a Director of a number of Canadian companies including Anvil Mining Corporation Limited, Delta Hotels Ltd. and Alberta Distillers, Limited. He is active in community affairs and is chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Sick Children's Research Foundation, Vice-Chairman of the Advisory Committee to the Greater Vancouver Regional Hospital District, and is Vice-Chairman of the B.C. Sports Hall of Fame.

Over-Taxation Fears Bared

VANCOUVER (CP) — F. E. Burnet, president of Cominco Ltd., warned Wednesday that over-taxation may kill the mining industry.

In an address to shareholders at the company's annual meeting, the Cominco president warned against proposed provincial legislation which he said creates uncertainty about the industry's future and "adds immeasurably to the risk of doing business."

"There is a limit to the capability of the mining industry to pay taxes and related levies. Assessments beyond this limit may well kill the industry."

He told shareholders a large segment of the community does not fully understand the role of a corporation in modern society. He said the company's annual report shows the corporation in its "true role as a conduit through which benefits flow to society."

A mining company operates in an environment where risk and uncertainty play a decisive role in determining its total revenue, he said. Prices are established by world markets, mining processes are governed by the location of ore bodies, and competition from other suppliers and the cost of transportation are critical to a company's ability to sell profitably.

"Total revenue received and the aggregate costs charged against it are the result of the overall impact of these various components and both are largely determined by these factors which are beyond the immediate control of the corporation."

"In this sense, therefore, the residual revenue on which taxes are assessed is fixed," Burnet said.

Burnet told shareholders Cominco had net earnings of $8.1 million or 48 cents a share in the first three months of 1973 compared to net earnings of $5.6 million or 34 cents a share in the first quarter of 1972.

He said unaudited studies show a 1973 first-quarter revenue of $97.3 million compared to $76.6 million for the same period last year.

The Cominco president said world demand for zinc and lead continues to be strong and prices for both metals have risen since the beginning of 1973.

Equity Hike Eyed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific Ltd. intends to open more of its many subsidiary companies to direct equity ownership by the public, says Ian Sinclair, chairman and chief executive officer of the Montreal-based company.

"I look forward to the day when we will have participation directly in the hotels, the airline, Marathon Realty and our shipping," Sinclair said in an interview.

Sinclair said no date has been set for such equity offerings but noted that two subsidiaries, Marathon Realty, and CP Air, have been paying dividends for five years. On the hotels side, he said "we are not mature enough in our hotels yet with the development program now in progress.

INVEST IN CPI

At present the public can invest in Canadian Pacific ordinary or voting preference shares or in the main holding subsidiary, Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd., (CPI), which was convertible preferreds and warrants outstanding.

Also available are shares of CPI subsidiaries, Cominco Ltd., Pan Canadian Petroleums Ltd. and Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd.

Sinclair said Canadian Pacific wants to get other interests than the parent company in CPI. He said the public will have an opportunity to obtain CPI common shares by conversion of the company's preferreds or by exercising CPI warrants later this year.

The parent Canadian Pacific had book value assets of $2.4 billion at the end of 1972, making it one of Canada's largest corporations.

Sinclair said Canadian Pacific, which began a major diversification program in fields other than those related to its railway operations about 15 years ago, intends to continue to broaden its base, diversifying both by activity and geography.

SPREADS RISK

"It spreads the risk and all economies are not in phase."

Asked whether the company's expansion moves outside Canada were aimed at avoiding criticism of its growth in Canada, Sinclair said Canadian Pacific is still expanding at home but criticized Canadians for lack of pride in their home-grown multinational companies.

"It disturbs me greatly that Canadians lack this pride. Multinational is the new word in the mouths of certain politicians — why call it other than what it is, in the mouths of socialists — who use such terms in connection with these companies as the 'new type of economic imperialism.'

"That's a bunch of misunderstanding or hooey or some other attempt to mislead."

SHOULD BE PROUD

Sinclair said Canadians should be proud that Vancouver-based MacMillan Bloedel, Canada's largest forest products company, "has spread out and has operations in Spain, the U.S., the U.K., The Netherlands and other countries."

"Canadians may be late on the scene, but they don't seem to realize that companies such as MB, INCO and Canadian Pacific have demonstrated they can operate businesses successfully in other countries.

He said Canadian Pacific's entry into the world shipping business, now dominated by the Golden Greeks meant that dividends would be flowing back to the company.

"People normally don't invest in shipping. Most of the world's operators today are private proprietorships and you can't buy in.

Pierre Shows He's a Real Swinger

PIERRE!

By PAT DUFOUR

Pierre is people.

Ask the folks he lives with and the gang he runs around with at Windsor Park.

He has them all convinced.

Pierre, was born four years ago, owing his stocky frame to the marriage of a demure white French poodle mom and an audacious black Maltese terrier dad.

Since then he's become a hybrid human, relishing the part he plays in the family life of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Mitchell of 1245 St. David.

"Six, including Pierre!"

There, oblivious to passing pooches or giddy romps in the grass, Pierre waits his turn on the swings or a fast skoot down the chute with Maureen and his master, her 12-year-old brother Bruce.

Not that he's completely divorced himself from his former way of life.

★

Maureen said he's impatient to meet his new family, presented to him by "his girl down the street — a French poodle just like his mom!"

And, in deference to his genetical beginnings, he still condescends to sample a little of the stuff his forbears were brought up on.

To get rid of the taste, however, he camouflages it with chip cookies and cake, macaroni and cheese, potato chips and ice cream (soft variety only).

Of Mrs. Mitchell's six "children", Pierre's the one least likely to want to cut the apron strings. Should any of the others zero in for a motherly embrace he always beats them to the gun. One leap — and he's in clutch position around her neck!

★

Pierre's transition would be complete if he could join Maureen and Bruce when they settle down to school routine Monday.

But school authorities have yet to join the converted who accept Pierre for what he is.

Ah well, he shrugs philisophically, you'll always have slow-learners.

Elevator Dispute on Verge Of Blowing Up Once Again

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The three-week break in the seven-month strike by elevator installers and repairmen appeared ready to blow up today.

Underlying optimism voiced Wednesday after a meeting between representatives of the International Union of Elevator Constructors and Labor Minister Bill King evaporated when initiatives to settle the dispute were dashed by elevator companies in the east.

John Neil, the union's western representative, said he has been informed that the elevator companies have "set up machinery to lock out their employees in B.C."

Asked if the union will strike immediately it receives the report of mediation officer Gus Leonidas, Neil said: "I would just as soon not make any comment."

The 200-member union in B.C. has voted 99 per cent in favor of strike action and 72 hours strike notice has been posted. But a strike or lockout cannot begin legally until Leonidas' report is received.

Neil said the report is expected to be in the union's hands in a day or two.

The seven-month strike, part of a national walkout, was ruled illegal by B.C. courts because bargaining had not occurred in B.C.

After union members returned to work in early April, there were several negotiating meetings and Leonidas was appointed to try to settle the dispute.

Neil, who said immediately after meeting King Wednesday he thought everything would turn out "all right," said the union told King it was prepared to accept the Ontario arbitration decision in B.C. if the elevator companies would drop lawsuits against union members as a result of the illegal strike.

"We are willing to gamble on the arbitration," he said.

Union representatives met King again Wednesday afternoon and were told that the elevator companies said "in no way will B.C. employees get the arbitration award," said Neil.

Asked if the elevator companies want B.C. union members to have less than whatever the Ontario arbitration decision may be, Neil said he didn't know.

King declined comment today, saying only that "I'm still working on the situation."

The five elevator companies in the dispute are Montgomery Elevator Company Limited, Turnbull Elevator Division of Dover Corporation (Canada) Limited, Otis Elevator Company Limited, Armor Elevator Canada Limited and Westinghouse Canada Limited.

Buses Coming for Pensioners

Pensioners north of Keating Cross Road may start using a new bus service before the end of May.

A pilot project under the federal government's New Horizons program for the elderly is being organized to provide a weekly pick-up service for persons wanting to attend Old Age Pension, Silver Threads or other activities in Sidney.

Co-ordinator Bill Booth, of OAP No. 25 serving the northern end of Saanich Peninsula, said the grant is available to any group of 10 or more pensioners for organized activities.

So far about 45 persons have shown an interest in the arrngements being worked out with Pacific Commuter Ltd. bus company.

At a cost estimated at $75 to $80 a week, a bus would make a circuit of the area on alternating Wednesdays and Thursdays, depositing the group in Sidney and returning members to their homes later.

100% Pay Increases For Region Leaders

Capital Regional District directors voted 100 per cent raises Wednesday for chairman Jim Campbell and deputy chairman Mayor Art Young of Esquimalt.

Campbell will receive $4,000 a year and Young, who chairs the regional hospital board, $2,000 a year.

There was little opposition to the move, recommended by the board's executive committee, which said Campbell is spending a minimum of two working days a week on board matters while "the marked increase in hospital matters meant that the deputy chairman's activities were also proving to be significantly more time-consuming than had been the case in the past."

Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said a "more appropriate" increase would be 50 per cent. She said the chairman of the Vancouver Regional District, who is also chairman of the Vancouver Hospital District and the Vancouver sewerage district, gets $50 per meeting which came to about $4,400 last year.

North Saanich Ald. Neil Horth said when a person allows his name to stand for chairman, he must be aware of the duties and of the pay.

Campbell replied that if this was so, "there would be no raises anywhere so I don't accept that as valid." He said those who seek public office should be paid enough so that aspirants are not adversely affected.

Salt Spring Island director Marc Holmes said $4,000 to $5,000 a year is "low remuneration" when the chairman is spending half his time on the job and Victoria Ald. Tom Christie said that at $4,000 "he is still being underpaid."

Sooke director Howard Elder said the 100 per cent raise "reflects our hesitation in the past" in tackling the pay of the regional board chairman.

Regional board directors will continue to be paid $25 for attending board meetings, but directors from unorganized areas will also be paid $25 for attending regular committee meetings of which they are members with a limit of two such meetings per month.

Ask The Times

Q: How many people belong to unions in British Columbia? D.K.

A: In 1972, there were 332,091 union members, up 4.9 per cent from the previous year. The labor department reports this amounts to 41.8 per cent of the total number of paid workers, down 0.2 from the previous year.

Esquimalt Reverses Decision on Library

Esquimalt council reversed itself late Wednesday and agreed to accept an 18.7 per cent increase in the Greater Victoria Public Library's 1973 budget.

The library budget had been threatened with a $51,000 slash when Esquimalt council refused to pay more than a 15 per cent increase over the 1972 figure.

Decision to accept the higher 18.7 per cent increase was passed by a narrow 4-3 vote, a 3-3 tie that was broken by Mayor Art Young in favor of the higher increase.

Young said today council really didn't change its mind on the library budget increases.

"They really did think that 15 per cent was enough," he said.

But council believes in democracy, said Young, and if the majority of municipalities are willing to accept the higher increase, they felt they should go along.

"The tail was wagging the dog," said Young, and that wasn't right.

The original library board budget of $1,135,772, a 21 per cent increase from 1972, was approved by Oak Bay, Saanich and Central Saanich, but Victoria drew the line at an 18.7 per cent increase.

All municipalities must pay their share of the lowest approved budget.

Esquimalt Ald. Art Mebs, who is chairman of the library board, said today he was relieved council had agreed to the 18.7 per cent figure.

"We can live with that," he said. "The other one would have been very, very difficult."

The extra amount Esquimalt will have to pay between the 18.7 increase and the 15 per cent one, said Mebs, is $2,500. Esquimalt's total share of the budget will be $80,703.

Four-Mill Tax Increase Likely For Esquimalt

Esquimalt's tax rate increase this year will be about four mills, Mayor Art Young said today.

"I doubt if the budget will be cut more," Young said after a marathon budget-cutting session Wednesday night.

Four mills would be a greater increase than the municipality has seen in recent years, he said.

Most of the increase, about three mills, is attributable to $120,000 in increased wages the municipality must pay, he said.

ARENA ESTIMATES TOO LOW: GERRY

The cost of building an ice arena in Sooke is more like $650,000 to $670,000 than $500,000, the Capital Regional District's local works and services committee was told Wednesday.

The estimate was given by Bill Gerry, the district's director of engineering, who said some capital and equipment cost estimates by a local arena planning committee were low.

District executive director Dennis Young said the indicated costs of building and running the arena are more like four mills than three mills, if the levy is on the entire electoral area of Sooke.

Young said a number of the figures used by the planning committee are realistic, but he thought the operating deficit of $15,000 a year would be more like $40,000.

Sooke director Howard Elder said he has received 12 letters from organizations and 37 letters from individuals supporting a referendum on the arena.

He was uncertain on the boundary for the designation area, whether it should be the entire electoral area or the populated parts of Sooke, Saseenos and Otter Point.

"I have 74 individual letters that East Sooke does not want into the recreation area. That's getting on for 90 percent of the property owners," he said.

The committee decided to wait until after Elder has met Port Renfrew residents before considering designation of the recreation area. It was expected that the regional board will deal with the proposed arena at its May 9 meeting.

It's a Fact: Women in Lead

Elderly women, tenants, apartments and childless families are on the increase in Victoria, while detached houses, men and mixed housing areas waned.

Census figures recently obtained by city hall's community planning department also reveal that the average age of family heads dropped in the city and the downtown area has the most non-English speakers.

The most noticeable alteration in figures between the 1966 census and the 1971 census, which is only now being analysed here, is in housing.

The number of detached houses has dropped from 10,000 to 9,600 while apartments have increased from 9,625 to 13,965. In the general metropolitan area, apartments show a similar swift growth, although detached houses in the area still show some growth — from 39,000 to 43,000.

The largest number of apartments in the city is in James Bay (3,050), and the foot of Blanshard area (2,530). These areas also show an extreme disparity between owner-occupied and tenant-occupied dwellings.

In James Bay only 735 dwellings were occupied by owners; 3,260 occupied by tenants. In the foot of Blanshard area owners occupied 355 and tenants, 2,610. Tenants were in a strong majority in the downtown and eastern Fort Street area.

Only areas showing a strong owner-occupier element were the north-eastern sectors of the city.

The city had only 960 French speakers in a population of 53,000, although 7,745 had non-English mother tongues, mostly located in the downtown area.

Women over 70 showed a proportionate increase with the population increase, although men over 70 in the city dwindled, only just holding their own in the metropolitan area.

Families are getting younger and smaller, with 1,340 family heads under 25 years, compared with 736 in 1966. The average size of the family dropped from 3.2 to 3.0 and children per family dropped from 1.2 to 1.1.

Half the families in Victoria, and just under half the families in the metro area are childless or their children have left home.

The number of families with five or more children is negligible — only 455 out of 14,775.

Four Held in Home Robberies

More than $5,000 worth of stolen goods were recovered during the night following a police check on an Oak Bay home.

As a result of that check, three escapers from the Lower Mainland Correctional Institute at New Westminster and a 16-year-old boy are in custody, facing charges arising from five-break-ins in the Greater Victoria area this week.

The three adults will appear in provincial court later today when precise details of the charges will be read.

Oak Bay police inspector Jack Groves said by this morning "everything from television sets to ski-boots" had been brought into the police station, as part of hauls from housebreakings in Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Police said they have identified some of the stolen property as belonging to radio newsman Joe Easingwood, whose home at 2000 Lansdowne was broken into Wednesday afternoon.

Other items appear to have been part of the robbery haul from a Vista Bay housebreaking, in which $1,100 worth of items were stolen Wednesday.

The Nats: Will Eddie Be Scotty's Own Man?

I hear that Scotty Munro is taking over in Vancouver and will likely bring in his own man as coach of the Vancouver Nats of the Western Canada Hockey League. That could be a gas.

Sure the Nats are due for a revamping; and they are going to get it from a top hand. Munro is king in junior hockey in the West, and Calgary; but whether he himself will jump remains to be seen. Point is, however, with former Nat general manager Gil Lundihn buying in as owner-operator of the Villas at Langley in the B.C. Junior League, there's room at the top. If one post is for GM, another is for coach.

And it could be filled by Eddie Dorohoy. Yes, it could. He's rated one of the prospects along with Andy Bathgate and Edmonton's Brian Shaw.

Eddie Dorohoy, huh? Well, that would be all right too. Because surely you remember Eddie Dorohoy. You don't?

Well now, Eddie Dorohoy was out of the old school. He came outof Medicine Hat in the late 40s to become one of the best centres Victoria ever had in its professional hockey history.

And for a dozen years or so, with other stops at Calgary, Seattle and Vancouver, he was the league's fastest lip, bar none.

Rocket on the Wrong Wing?

Eddie was never shy in discussing his talents. He always know how good he was and could never be excused of underplaying his role in the success of his team. And in his very first year as a professional, he showed his talent for coaching by telling Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens that he was playing Rocket Richard on the wrong wing.

Eddie was at Montreal for a look-see at the time; and Irvin soon had seen enough to send Eddie as far out of sight as possible. Victoria was as far west as he could send him and that's how he came here.

Out here he impressed Lester Patrick so much that after Roger Leger had left town, Lester made Eddie coach of the Cougars.

Eddie was only 23 then and his debut was hardly a smashing success. The Cougars, who had finished sixth the previous season after winning a championship in 1951, came up dead last for Eddie. "With the players we had, what did you expect?" he said.

Thus ingloriously ended one phase of his checkered career. Billy Reay then took over and stayed for two seasons; and if Eddie at times acted like the coach, he was only doing what always came naturally.

Of course, the big news one season (1951) was when he calmly predicted in January that he would win the scoring championship come March.

He didn't spoil the story either. He won, although he needed four points on the final night to get the job done.

'If You Don't Let Me Try . . .'

Eddie always was, and probably always will be, famous for his one liners.

When he first asked Lester for the coaching job, he said: "How do you know I can't coach if you won't let me try?"

Asked to compare Victoria with Medicine Hat he quipped: "They are just about the same. Neither buries their dead; they just prop them up in hotel lobbies."

Of Eddie Mazur, his one-time linemate on the Cougars and the owner of one of the league's longest noses: "He's the only guy I know who can smoke a cigar while taking a shower."

He loved Coleman E. Hall of the Canucks, too. After talking contract with Hall one year, he said: "Coley's all heart; he'll give you the sleeves out of his vest."

Eddie's been around since he left town — Moose Jaw, Winnipeg, Medicine Hat and way points in between. He was selling vacuum cleaners for a while after coaching some junior hockey clubs on the prairies; and the last I heard he was back in the Hat.

It will be good to see him again — if he makes it with the Nats. He'll keep things lively. Because even if his team doesn't win, his deathless prose won't ever go unnoticed. That can never die.

Like the time he fingered yours truly as the culprit to blame when he was fined $100 for using foul language, having been given a game misconduct.

"Damn it all," he said, "nobody would of known if you hadn't mentioned it in your story."

Saanich, Esquimalt Hockey Bantams Out

KAMLOOPS — Two more Vancouver Island entries were shunted out of contention Wednesday at the Kamloops international bantam hockey tournament.

Saanich Haida Braves, in the quarter-finals of "A" Division, dropped a 2-0 decision to Coquitlam and Saskatchewan Federation of Indians edged Esquimalt, 5-4, in a "C" Division game.

Second-period goals by Les Koch and Doug Luder carried Coquitlam to victory. Braves outshot Coquitlam, 22-12, in the final period but were unable to score, finishing with a 37-33 advantage in shots on goal.

Harold Kashinatum and Kevin Burns scored two goals each and Rick Syr completed the scoring for Saskatchewan Federation of Indians. Murray Allen, Norm Topping, Ken Urnshaw and Pat Duncan got the Esquimalt goals.

Victoria and Port Alberni are the only Island teams left in the tourney which winds up Friday. They met each other in a "C" quarter-final game this morning.

Packers Deny Tampering With Argo

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers say there is nothing significant about a complaint that the National Football League club played a role in Jim Stillwagon's Canadian farewell.

Stillwagon, a Packer draft choice in 1971 who signed a Toronto contract, has withdrawn from Toronto and the Canadian Football League's pension plan, evidently returning to the United States.

The linebacker's behavior caused the Argonauts to file a protest with the NFL, citing the Packers. Green Bay General Manager Dan Devine was in Minneapolis and unavailable immediately for comment, but his Green Bay office issued a statement declaring there "is absolutely nothing to the charges as reported in the news media."

"We have had a routine request for information from the league office, and that information has been supplied."

Living Test Legend Hits a Few Tonight

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

One of cricket's living legends will "hit a few in the nets" and spread a little wisdom tonight at Beacon Hill Park.

But Conrad Hunte, former West Indian test star and one of the world's greatest opening batsmen, is sorry he won't be around to play Saturday when the Victoria and District Cricket Association opens its season.

"I would love to play here but Edmonton cricketers are also starting their season Saturday — and they got in with their bid first," Hunte said while flashing a wide grin Wednesday night.

Hunte retired from big-time cricket in 1967 but his eyes are quick and ever alert and his sure hands move to the right of his body almost instinctively to make an imaginary stroke when you ask him about his batting exploits.

And those exploits, by the boy who came from a poor family in Barbados and became a national hero, are still talked about with reverence by young cricket hopefuls, not only in the West Indies but around the world in every country where the game is played.

Conrad Hunte was a member of the West Indies world-champion side captained by the late Frank Worrell and included other greats like Garfield Sobers, Basil Butcher, Rohan Kanhai and Symour Nurse. Together they played a brand of bright, almost carefree cricket, not seen since.

When Gary Sobers, who is to cricketers throughout the world what Pele is to soccer players and fans, took over from Worrell as captain, Hunte became vice-captain of the test side.

Together, Sobers and Hunte shared a second-wicket partnership of 446 runs in a test match against England and this still stands as a West Indian record. Hunte hit 260 runs and Sobers went on to make 365, not out. The stand was only five runs short of the world test record for a second-wicket partnership.

It was, he says, in Brisbane in 1960 when a test match was tied for the first time in the history of the game.

West Indies had made 483 in the first innings and then 254 in the second.

Australia, chasing the total of 737 runs, made 505 in the first innings and was on 232 in the second with two batsmen left and only one run from victory when Hunte struck.

He sent in a phenomenal 90-yard throw straight to the wicket-keepers hands for the ninth wicket and Joe Solomon ensured the tie when he ran out the last batsman.

When he dropped out of the test side, Hunte played with the Ilford Cricket Club in Essex, England, for two years and made several appearances for the MCC in matches against school and university teams in Britain.

Conrad Hunte was only 35 when he retired — relatively young for a cricketer—but he has another smile and some words of wisdom on that, too.

"I was enjoying good health and good performances at the time and, well, it was a timely moment to retire," he said. "I feel all athletes should step down when they are doing well, not when they are going downhill."

"Besides, I had a bigger job to do," Hunte said, referring to his work with the worldwide Moral Re-Armament movement. Hunte is among a party of about 30 people from all over the world who have been attending a conference in Vancouver and who will be given a civic reception in Victoria Friday.

As well as hitting a few in the nets tonight, Hunte will hold a clinic for any young and also the not-so-young cricketers who care to go to Beacon Hill Park.

"Wherever I go, I always try to pass on the things I have learned about the game," he said.

And you know well that Hunte is talking about the game of life as well as cricket when he advises young players:

Staub's Squab Fills Met Menu

By The Associated Press

Gourmet Rusty Staub whipped up a tasty dish for the power hungry New York Mets and, like starving men, they savored every tasty morsel.

Staub, who enjoys puttering around the kitchen of his New York bachelor pad, must have been wondering whether he was eating right before finally chewing up some friendly Houston pitching Wednesday night.

Weighed down by a dreadful 1-for-29 slump, Staub snapped out of it with a pair of solo home runs that powered the Mets to a 5-2 decision over the Astros.

It was the first time this season that the Mets had more than one homer in a game. They had only six homers all year and five of those belonged to John Milner. What's more, Staub was hitting a woeful .102 going into the game . . . about one batting percentage point for each thousand dollars of salary he earns.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta Braves trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 5-2, Los Angeles Dodgers beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in 11 innings, San Francisco Giants shut out Chicago Cubs 5-0, and Cincinnati Reds defeated Montreal Expos 7-4. San Diego Padres game with the Pirates at Pittsburgh was rained out.

Meanwhile, Wilber Wood was doling out a starvation diet to New York Yankees in an American League contest.

They went away hungry while the Chicago White Sox star fattened his pitching record to 4-2.

"I get paid to get somebody out and that's what I do," said Wood, who got almost everyone out in a five-hit, 3-0 decision over the Yankees.

Wood frustrated Yankee hitters with a knuckleball that was helped along by the weather, according to New York manager Ralph Houk.

"Today was a good day for him, the dead air and the dampness," said Houk. "That helps him. His knuckleball was really bouncing around today."

In other American League contests, Boston Red Sox nipped Minnesota Twins 4-3; Texas Rangers trimmed Detroit Tigers 4-1; Kansas City Royals turned back Milwaukee Brewers 3-2; California Angels defeated Baltimore Orioles 1-0 and Cleveland Indians trimmed Oakland Athletics, 1-0.

Staub's two homers supported a sharp six-hit pitching job by Jerry Koosman, who won his third straight for New York.

"The one thing that a ball player misses once he gets out of the game is the elation of success—to have such a bad streak and then such great elation," said Staub. "I just hope I can have a lot more elation this season."

Joe Morgan hit a three-run homer, keying a four-run eighth inning that carried Cincinnati past Montreal.

Cricket Starts Minus Grounds

Cricket, complete with its new bonus point scoring system, gets under way for the season here this weekend — but already there is a cloud on the horizon.

Cowichan, defending champion of the Victoria and District Cricket Association, is without a home ground, at least for the first couple of months.

Winter flood waters played havoc with the Cowichan Bay field and it will be unplayable until about the end of June. As well, the association has been told that the field at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School often used as an alternative to Cowichan Bay and for special matches, will be "unavailable" this season.

"This is a big blow to us as Shawnigan has the best grass wicket in B.C.," Mal Shanks, vice-president of the Victoria association, said Wednesday.

Anyway, Cowichan doesn't have to worry about it this weekend. The team plays Castaways at 2 p.m. Saturday in the season opener at Beacon Hill Park and in the other match at the same time, Alcos play Oak Bay at Windsor Park.

Boxla Action Starts Sunday

Other teams remaining in the league, after Nanaimo dropped out, are Saanich E. J. Hunter, New Westminster, Port Coquitlam, Burnaby, Abbotsford and Vancouver.

In the preceding game, which starts at 3 p.m., Victoria McDonald's and Coquitlam Jayhawks meet in a Pacific Junior "A" League preseason exhibition.

Victoria will be bringing up four players from Esquimalt Teamsters of the Vancouver Island Intermediate "A" League — Rick Lapointe, Ross McKinstry, Basil Rovault and Rick Leggett.

Three players missing from the regular McDonald roster are Lori Gloeckner, who is holidaying in Hawaii, Andy Reid, recovering from an industrial accident, and Jamie Robertson, who is with the Central Junior High School tour in Russia.

Ex-Park Opening Sets New Records

VANCOUVER (CP) — The opening day attendance record and betting record were broken Wednesday night as the horse-racing season opened at Exhibition Park in Vancouver.

The first-night crowd of 10,162 was up 1363 over the 1972 opener, and the throng pushed $445,089 through the mutuel windows, eclipsing last year's opening-day action by $83,337.

The feature, a $5,000 claiming race over six furlongs, was won in 1:14 on a fast track by Dave Berman's Kentucky-bred mare Whistlin' Wise.

The victory aboard Whistlin' Wise gave Basil Frazier his second win of the day. The only other jockey to get two winners was Brian Swatuk with Glad Daddy in the third and Squaw Hall in the fifth race.

Henri Not Finished Working Yet

MONTREAL (CP) — As Montreal Canadiens prepare for their Stanley Cup series against Chicago Black Hawks, there is much talk that this will be the final playoff for Canadiens team captain Henri Richard.

Richard, an 18-year National Hockey League veteran, will lead Montreal into their final series against the Hawks starting Sunday.

One report says the veteran centre will take a post in the Canadiens' public relations department and announce his retirement after the season.

Richard was asked by several reporters Tuesday night after he scored the winning goal in Canadiens' 5-3 win over the Flyers whether this would be his final playoff series.

"After the Chicago series . . . there's lots of time to think. There's still a lot of work to do."

"He'd be crazy to quit now," said team-mate Serge Savard, who was whacked across the face by Richard following a dressing room dispute in late November.

"He is our best centre. He may never score 50 goals, but he's indispensible to us. I have never seen a player with as much heart.

"He gets hit all the time when he's playing, but he always bounces back. Everyone likes him here. There have been quarrels in the past, but that's over with."

"Will he retire?" said Canadiens' coach Scotty Bowman, after Tuesday's game. "Maybe he should walk in and sign a new contract tomorrow morning. It's unbelivable how he can play so well."

So far, Richard has played on 10 Stanley Cup-winning clubs, a record he shares with former Habs' captain Jean Beliveau, who retird shortly after Canadiens beat Chicago in seven games in 1971.

Richard says he would like to make it 11 this year, adding jokingly that "it's the only record of Beliveau's I'll be able to break."

But before he announces anything about his future, Richard says he wants to think about the present and the forthcoming series with Chicago.

"It's not going to be an easy series, no series is. Anything can happen. Remember in 1971 when Boston was supposed to win and we beat them?

"If we are better offensively and I think it's time we were, we should win. From a technical standpoint, the series against Chicago should be easier than the one against Philadelphia.

"Now, we have to finish the series and then we'll see."

Three Former Champs Aim at Rolloff Crown

May Wallis will attempt to become the first women's fivepin triple champion when the 10th annual Times Bowler-of-the-year rolloffs are held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Men's fivepin rolloffs will also be held at Gibson's at the same time and the men's and women's tenpin rolloffs are set for May 6 at Mayfair Lanes.

Bowlers qualified during the season for places in the rolloffs by winning weekly awards in the 26-week Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Awards in each of the four divisions went to the bowlers who posted the highest three-game scratch totals in regular league play on southern Vancouver Island lanes.

Champions in all four divisions will collect Times Trophies and there will be $100 cash prizes to rolloff winners who are daily subscribers to the Victoria Times.

Mrs. Wallis is the only two-time winner of the women's fivepin Bowler-of-the-Year title, having won in 1965 and again in 1969. She qualified for this year's rolloffs by topping her rivals in the 19th week with a 314-306-259 — 879 series.

Other Bowler-of-the-Year winners eligible for this year's rolloffs are Donna Brock, champion in 1970, and Mary Ball, who took the title in 1967.

Donna qualified this time with an 800 series rolled in the 21st week while Mary was an early qualifier, rolling an 888 series in the fifth week.

Highest series in the 26-week contest was 363-303-318 — 984, rolled by Dorothy Krimmer in the 10th week.

Lakers Roll to Final

By The Canadian Press

It was a one-man show as Los Angeles Lakers advanced to the National Basketball Association final Wednesday night but it took a team effort to keep Boston Celtics in contention.

The Lakers got 44 points from Gail Goodrich, the smallest man on the floor, as they beat Golden State Warriors 128-118 to wrap up their best-of-seven semi-final four games to one at Los Angeles.

At Boston, Dave Cowens, the NBA's most valuable player, did his thing, John Havlicek gave a typical gutsy performance and then unheralded Paul Silas got into the act to sink New York Knicks 98-97.

"Everybody made a contribution," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said after the Celtics, now down 3-2, forced a sixth game in the best-of-seven series Friday night at New York.

Cowens went the marathon route, playing the entire 48 minutes. The 6-foot-9 centre scored 32 points and grabbed 16 rebounds.

Havlicek, the Celtics' captain and leading scorer who missed the fourth game because of a right shoulder injury, came off the bench at the start of the second period and again in the third and fourth periods. He shook off pain and played 30 minutes, finishing with 18 points, five assists and one rebound.

Silas, a veteran forward completing his first season in Boston, scored only nine points, but was the man of the hour. He cashed two free throws with seven seconds remaining and then grabbed a rebound, his 20th of the game, just before the final buzzer.

"It was Silas' clutch free throws and his big rebound at the end that did it," Heinsohn said. "However, they all were great out there tonight."

Goodrich scored 21 points in the third period on 10 field goals and a free throw. The field-goal production bettered the league's playoff record for field goals in a quarter set in 1961 by former Laker Elgin Baylor who scored nine.

Vancouver Bowler National Champion

WINNIPEG — Fraser Hambly of Toronto and Helen Robinson of Vancouver emerged as singles champions in the Canadian open fivepin bowling championships here Wednesday.

Hambly, who also won in 1968, led from the opening day and finished with a 12-game total of 3,266 pins, more than 100 ahead of runner-up Doug Kachuk of Saskatoon. Laurence Moar of Brandon was third with 2,959.

Mrs. Robinson had a total of 3,007, helped by a 334 she rolled in the 10th game. Barb Phelps of Saskatoon placed second with 2,967 and Tody Morgan of Durhan, Ont., was third with 2,854.

Ray Redekop of Burnaby gave B.C. its second individual title by winning the men's closed (handicap) competition with a 2,737 total, edging Murray Quartz of Toronto by 15 pins. Judy Stevenson of Thompson, Man., who has only been bowling seven months, won the women's crown with 2,949. Lynn Childs of Toronto was runner-up with 2,502.

British Columbia took the men's team title with 15,156 to beat Ontario (14,991) and Saskatchewan (14,620).

Manitoba-Northwestern Ontario won the women's team event and overall aggregate title. Alberta was second in the women's team event and B.C. was third.

B.C. finished second in aggregate with 38 points, two behind the winners and two ahead of Saskatchewan.

Izard Hits Fours

Top-seeded Angus Izard of Victoria edged clubmate Rob Cowan 15-12, 8-15, 15-13 Wednesday night at the Racquet Club to reach the boys' under-16 finals of the B.C. junior age-group badminton championships.

Izard plays Brad Johnston of Vancouver in tonight's final after Johnston downed Don Woodland of Victoria 15-9, 15-11.

Izard also made it through to the final of the boys' doubles with Woodland but just missed out in the mixed doubles when he and Mona Holley of the Racquet Club were defeated 7-15, 15-3, 15-5 by top-seeded Cowan and Nancy Thompson.

Nicki Winter of the Racquet Club upset top-seeded Miss Thompson of Vancouver 5-11, 11-6, 11-1 in the semi-finals of the girl's under-16 singles. In the final she plays Sandra Skillings of Vancouver who beat Joan Carruthers of the Racquet Club 11-4, 11-8.

AUSTRALIA LEADING WEST INDIES TEST

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuter) — Australia was ahead 245 runs with six second-innings wickets in hand when play closed Wednesday on the fourth day of the final cricket Test against the West Indies.

At close of play, Australia was 145 for four wickets after taking a 190-run first-innings lead against the West Indies.

The scores were: Australia 419 for eight declared and 145 for four; West Indies 319.

Victoria swing bowler Max Walker again rose to the occasion when he broke a stubborn sixth-wicket stand between Clive Lloyd (59) and Deryck Murray (34) which helped the West Indies reach a respectable first-innings total.

The 24-year-old ended the innings with five wickets for 75 and also set a record for Australia against the West Indies with a test haul of 25 wickets, one better than Neil Hawke in the 1965 series.

Arena Approved

HOUSTON (AP) — A $10.5 million revenue bond plan for financing construction of an 18,000-seat sports arena has been approved by city council. The arena, to be built in southwest Houston, would be the home of Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association.

Soccer Hits Last Stage

By The Associated Press

After Wednesday's European soccer play, six teams have earned final berths in three of the continent's most prestigious championships.

In the UEFA Cup finals, the pairings will be Liverpool of England and Burussia Monenchen Gladbach of West Germany. Italy's AC Milan and Leeds United of England will battle for the European Cup Winners Soccer Cup, and Juventus of Turin, Italy and Ajax of Amsterdam will square off in the European Cup of Champions final.

Liberpool lost on Wednesday to Tottenham Hotspur 2-1 after blanking Tottenham 1-0 in an earlier match. With each club showing two aggregate goals in the series, Liverpool gained the finals on the strength of its away goal.

That important score was recorded by Steve Heighway in London's White Hart Lane Stadium. Martin Chivers scored twice for Tottehnham.

Burussia had less trouble advancing to the UEFA finals. The West German team defeated Netherland's Enschende 2-1 Wednesday in Eschende. Burussia had also won the first leg game 3-0 for a 5-1 aggregate total.

Leeds United scored only one goal in its two-game match with Hadjuk Split, but it was enough since Jadjuk never scored. Wednesday the teams battled to a scoreless tie in Yugoslavia. Leeds advanced to the European Cup Winners finals on aggregate 1-0.

Its opponent in the finals scheduled for May 16 in Salonika, Greece will be Italy's AC Milan, which captured the trophy in 1968. Milan reached the finals after consecutive 1-0 victories over Sparta of Czechoslovakia. Wednesday's 1-0 triumph disappointed a sell-out Czech crowd.

Ajax, the Amsterdam club that has taken the European Cup of Champions the past two seasons, tries for three in a row when it meets Juventus of Turin May 30 in Belgrade.

Ajax's Gerard Muhven scored at the 50-minute mark for the game's only goal to defeat Madrid Wednesday before 100,000 fans at Madrid's Santiago Bernabeu Stadium. The team from Amsterdam had also won the earlier contest 2-1.

Juventus, which has never been to the finals of the European Cup of Champions before, held England's Derby County to a scoreless tie Wednesday in London and moved to the finals on the basis of its earlier 3-1 victory.

In the English League, West Bromwich Albion lost 2-1 at home Wednesday to Manchester City to drop to the Second Division along with Crystal Palace.

Softball 'Super Leagues' Retaining Amateur Status

OTTAWA (CP) — Two new softball leagues have been accepted as amateur operations by an executive meeting of the Canadian Amateur Softball Association.

The Western Canadian Major Fastball League and the Ontario Fastball League have been described as professional in the last couple of months, but the association executive decided that until proof of professionalism is presented, the leagues will be regarded as amateur.

The meeting decided that if the two leagues meet other association requirements they would be eligible to compete in Canadian championships.

The Ontario Fastball League has 10 teams made up of some of the best players in Canada. Peter Landers, a pitcher, is an example. He pitched Weyburn Canadians to a 2-0 victory over world champion Richmond Hill Dynes in the Canadian championship last season.

Teams in the Ontario loop are London, Kitchener, Toronto, St. Catharines, Oshawa, Burlington, Welland, Niagara, Falls, Woodstock and Newmarket.

The western league has teams from Calgary, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Regina.

The meeting, held during the Easter weekend, also said players in the professional Major League Softball — it has two teams from Canada, Montreal and Toronto, and five from the United States — will have to sit out a 12-month period before they can be reinstated as amateurs. The 12 months would start on the date of the final scheduled league game.

Kansan Signed By Roughriders

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football conference have announced the signing of offensive halfback Jerome Nelloms, 23, from the University of Kansas.

Nelloms, who stands five feet, eight inches and weighs 196 pounds, was the university's leading rusher in 1972.

"Nelloms has the quickness and strength of Mac Herron and he is two inches taller," coach John Payne said.

South Africa Ready for Atom Bombs

CAPE TOWN (AP) — South Africa's expanding defence arsenal includes a new $20 million communications centre designed to withstand a nuclear or biological attack.

Sunk deep into the slopes of the Constantia Mountains near Cape Town, the centre bristles with electronic gear and bulges with emergency provisions.

Two heavy steel doors protecting the main entrance are designed to withstand a direct hit by a 1,000-pound bomb. A series of secret doors can be used in an emergency.

But J. F. Brink, commander of the centre, says the surrounding mountains virtually rule out an air or naval strike on the installation, called Silvermine.

Inside, three computers plot the position of ships in an area stretching from the South Pole to North Africa and from South America to Bangladesh. Apart from their defence role, the computers help in international search and rescue operations.

Permanent radio communications are maintained with cities around the world as far apart as London, Dakar and Buenos Aires. Besides the main centre, there are subsidiary installations on South African's east and west coasts.

"The Republic of South Africa is determined to defend itself and the free world to the utmost of its capabilities . . ." Prime Minister John Vorster says.

Most details of South Africa's defence system are secret, but a survey by the International Institute for Strategic Studies said the country has 17,300 regulars in the military service, and 92,000 reservists. This year's draft is expected to induct 33,000 recruits.

The 10,000-man regular army has more than 1,100 vehicles, including tanks, armored cars and troop carriers. The navy cruises in an array of submarines, destroyers, mine sweepers and other ships. The air force flies 166 combat planes.

The defence budget has been growing steadily. It jumped to $630 million this year from $472 million in 1972. Defence Minister Pieter Botha, however, said only about nine per cent of the national budget goes for defence.

Only for equipment such as specialized aircraft, submarines and sophisticated surface ships does the government buy abroad.

SEX ATTRACTANT EYED FOR PEST WARNING

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — An organic chemist says he has developed a synthetic sex attractant which may be used to warn farmers of bertha army worm outbreaks.

Dr. Dean Struble of the Lethbridge agricultural research station, said he tested 50 synthetic chemicals and found one resembling the natural sex attractant of the female bertha army worm moth.

He plans to use the attractant in traps this year to determine moth populations in advance of infestations which would give an indication of the infestation's severity.

If field tests on the attractant are successful this summer and sufficient males respond, traps will be devised to kill them.

Farmers now use the chemical lannate to control the worms in the larvae stage when they attack rapeseed crops but the chemical is dangerous to handle and can harm birds.

ZAPPED CAVITIES MAY BE HARMFUL

MONTREAL (CP) — A dentistry professor at Laval University says a substance which some dentists say will reduce cavities by 99 per cent may also have harmful effects.

Dr. Ralph Barolet told about 200 dentists at a Quebec Dental Surgeons' Association meeting Wednesday that the substance, a plastic known as Bis GMA, is painted on teeth, "zapped" with an ultra-violet ray gun and seals the tooth off rom attacking bacteria.

But the teeth must be "etched with acid" to make the surface porous enough to hold the plastic sealing coat, Dr. Barolet said. This destroys the teeth's natural hardness and six months later when the plastic wears off, the teeth become vulnerable to decay and cavities unless the process is repeated.

Pressure Builds on Rhodesia's Smith to Patch It Up

WASHINGTON (WP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is now faced with growing pressure at home and abroad to enter into direct negotiations with African nationalist leaders and peacefully end the dispute that has kept the breakaway British colony an international pariah for more than seven years.

Britain has just stiffened its terms for granting recognition to the white minority government in Rhodesia, demanding that it come to an agreement with black nationlist leaders in the country.

EARNINGS DROP

Guerrilla attacks from neighboring Zambia, once sporadic, have recently turned into a sustained, though still small-scale, movement within the country, and 15 whites have been killed in the past few months.

At the same time, the East African country — already facing the worst drought in years — is now being hit with a sharp cut in its meager foreign exchange earnings as a result of the government's decision to close Rhodesia's border with Zambia, cutting off the shipment of Zambian copper through the country.

The reaction of Rhodesia's white leadership so far has been to stiffen its stand at home. It has passed laws to implement what it calls "provincialization" of the country — the Rhodesian equivalent of the South African system of segregated homelands for the black population.

It has also told the moderate African nationalists grouped within the African national council that will give no better terms than those proposed in the 1971 settlement package, which was worked out between the British and Smith and overwhelmingly rejected by the 5 million black Africans of Rhodesia.

According to African analysts here and to Judith Todd, the daughter of former Rhodesian prime minister Garfield Todd, it is a critical time in the history of the 250,000 whites struggle to maintain their rule, a struggle that has been going on since the Smith government declared the country's unilateral independence from Britain in 1965.

"I don't think time is on the side of a peaceful solution, said Miss Todd in a recent interview here.

Miss Todd, now a close ally of the moderate black Rhodesian nationalist — particularly since she and her father spent solitary confinement last year — believes that conditions are now better to force Smith to the negotiating table than at any previous time.

"The pressures are all there to get the whites to the table," Miss Todd said. "There is a very remote chance that a peaceful settlement can be achieved . . . but it is there."

AMENDMENT

Miss Todd, believes that the repeal of the so-called Byrd amendment could well be the key to negotiations.

The amendment, named after Sen. Harry Byrd (D—Va.), was passed by Congress in October 1971 and allows U.S. companies to break UN sanctions to import Rhodesian chrome and other strategic materials.

An effort to repeal the amendment nearly succeeded in the senate last year, and another repeal campaign is now being organized in both the house and the senate.

The argument, Miss Todd and other Rhodesian specialists is that a repeal of the Byrd amendment, coming hard upon other pressures now being exerted on the Smith government, could finally break the whites' stubborn resistance to holding talks with the nationalists.

The economic situation in Rhodesia, while still far from desperate, has become steadily worse, and there is presently little reason to expect a change in this trend.

Rhodesia had a $26 million deficit in its balance of payments in 1971, and the deficit for 1972 is expected to be considerably larger.

Rhodesia's decision in January to close its border with Zambia, in retaliation for alleged guerrilla incursions from that country, has resulted in the loss of income from shipments of Zambian copper via Rhodesia rail lines to the Mozambique port of Beira. This will mean a cut of $20 million in Rhodesian government revenues this year.

If the Byrd amendment is repealed, it would represent the loss of perhaps another $13 million — the value of U.S. imports of Rhodesian chrome, ferrochrome, nickel and berylium last year.

The shift in the British government's position, however, is clearly far more significant and troublesome to the Smith government.

British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home told parliament a week ago, "it is quite clear that there must be a basic agreement between responsible Africans and the Rhodesian administration before any proposals (for further talks with Britain) can be seriously considered."

Smith had hinted recently that a breakthrough in the off-again, on-again talks with the British was imminent, and Sir Alec's statement has dashed this hope.

The British are understood to have shifted their policy because of increasing pressure from Nigeria, whose oil and natural gas wealth are of considerable interest to London, as well as from the socialist governments now in power in New Zealand and Australia.

The Rhodesian whites and the moderate African National Council are only slightly brighter than the likelihood of an accord.

The two sides have been holding "talks about talks" for some time, and, according to Miss Todd, the African group has drawn up its own set of proposals.

But it will not make them public, she says, until the Smith government agrees to talk about something other than the 1971 British-Rhodesian settlement package, which effectively eliminated the prospect of black rule before the turn of the century.

Smith, who had been counting on a breakthrough with the British and a government-sponsored campaign among blacks to win support for the 1971 terms, has so far shown little flexibility.

Japanese to Allow Foreign Investment

TOKYO (Reuter) — A government plan to open almost all Japanese industries to unlimited foreign investment was hailed today as opening up a new era which will prevent Japan from becoming an "orphan of the world."

The cabinet is due to act Friday on recommendations of the Foreign Investment Council that wholly-owned foreign subsidiaries be allowed in all but 24 industries. The new rules will go into effect from May 1.

The finance ministry said investments in agriculture, forestry, fisheries, oil, leather and retailing will still be subject to close scrutiny, only 50-50 joint ventures will be allowed in mining, and 17 other industries will be freed in three years.

Financial and banking officials predicted the immediate impact of the new program might not be extensive. But in the long-range it would have far-reaching effects on Japan's future economic course.

WILL BRING ORDER

One financial daily newspaper said the liberalization of investment is designed to bring new order into Japanese industries using foreign capital as a lever.

The Asahi Shimbun said direct foreign capital investment in Japan last year totalled $165 million while about $860 million of Japanese capital was invested abroad.

"In these circumstances it is impossible to keep Japanese industries half-closed, permitting only 50-50 joint ventures," it said.

The Federation of Economic Organizations said the program is necessary to prevent Japan becoming an "orphan of the world" and will substantially improve the feeling of major Western trading partners toward the country.

Government officials said foreign takeovers of Japanese firms will be checked by a provision barring such action against the wishes of the local company.

STOMPIN' TOM WON'T SING

TORONTO (CP) — Stompin' Tom Connors, one of Canada's leading country and western singing stars, has turned down an offer by the Canadian National Exhibition to perform Aug. 17.

Connors had been waiting for a decision on his proposed Labor Day appearance at the grandstand but was invited instead to appear at the Bandshell Aug. 17, the CNE's Maritime Day.

"I must decline this offer as a protest of the way the Canadian entertainers are treated by the CNE and other exhibitions in Canada," Connors said this week.

The Canadian entertainer also was angry at reports that half the CNE board of directors was unaware of his fast-rising fame.

"It means something to every Canadian performer to appear at the CNE, but there are a lot of old fogys around who listen to only one kind of music.

$525,000 UBC Ocean Centre

VANCOUVER (CP) — The director of British Columbia Research Institute announced Wednesday that a $525,000 ocean technology centre will be built at the University of British Columbia.

Paul Trussell said the non-profit research institute will build the centre with money from the federal government.

"The work of the centre will include ocean engineering design, development, testing and, where appropriate, the organization of equipment manufacturing," Trussell said.

Three new units are to be built, he said, including a towing tank and manoeuvering basin for ship model tests, an Arctic-condition test facility and a hydroclave facility for pressure testing of components.

Rail Line Starts

FERNIE (CP) — Start of construction of the Kootenay and Elk Railway was announced Wednesday by Bruce Pepper, president of Crows Nest Industries Ltd.

In a news release, Pepper said the initial program proposed by the Crow's Nest subsidiary will consist of clearing of the railway right of way from a point 20 miles west of Fernie to the United States border.

Obscenity Remand

VANCOUVER (CP) — Representatives of two firms accused of possession of obscene comic books for the purpose of distribution made their first provincial court appearance Wednesday and were remanded without plea to May 2.

Charged following a police raid on the offices of the newspaper Georgia Straight were Georgia Straight Publishing Ltd., publisher Dan McLeod, Greater Vancouver News Ltd., and Lloyd Robinson, an executive of the latter firm.

UN Experts Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford announced Wednesday that a United Nations seminar of experts on human settlement will be held here May 8 to 12.

The experts, invited by the UN from 25 countries, are to propose a draft agenda for a 1976 UN conference on human settlements which will also be held here.

Sewer Test Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The water and sewer committee of the Greater Vancouver Regional District Wednesday recommended a six-month experiment to dechlorinate sewage going into the Fraser River.

Commissioner Frank Bunnell said the process is causing concern because of possible toxicity to fish. The committee's recommendation goes before the regional board next Wednesday.

Clothier Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Broadway Credit Clothiers Ltd. of Vancouver has been charged with two counts of misleading advertising under the federal Combines Investigation Act. The company has been summonsed to appear in court May 15.

Hazelton Youth Wins

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dwayne Reid, a Grade 12 student from Hazelton, won the top award at the British Columbia youth science fair Wednesday for his burglar alarm system which he says overcomes one of the drawbacks of commercial alarms. He said thieves can pick electronic key switches used in most alarms and deactivate the system.

His design uses an electronic lock with 35 buttons and 20 of those buttons must be pushed in the correct order to deactivate the alarm and open the door.

No Blame in Death

FERNIE (CP) — A coroner's jury here has attached no blame in the March 30 death of Allan Gary Morris, 30, of Sparwood, who was killed when his car left the highway as he was being pursued by police. The jury ruled he was a victim of his own actions in trying to outrun police, and made no recommendations.

APARTHEID SLOWS PROGRESS

LONDON (CP) — Growing differences between some business institutions and the white government of South Africa became evident here following publication of an international banking study critical of low wages paid to South Africa's blacks.

The study, prepared by the European Banks' International Company established three years ago to advise its member banks, suggests the apartheid policy is holding back South Africa's economic development.

"The continued separate development of the different ethnic groups in the country is a major factor determining the future progress of the republic and the pracical difficulties of working the system have themselves inhibited growth," it says.

Explaining that the restriction of blacks to low-skill jobs has distorted the development of skilled labor, the report warns what white immigration no longer can provide the sophisticated work force needed by expanding industry. Unemployment among white workers is only 0.4 per cent; the figure for black jobless is unavailable.

The wage disparity between black and white employees has remained unchanged since 1950, continues the report, with blacks providing 53 per cent of the labor but receiving just 24 per cent of the wage bill.

This opposition to official race policy follows similar criticism a day earlier in the economic review of the Standard Bank of South Africa.

Considered by some observers as the strongest objection to the race situation yet made by a South African institution, the merchant bank predicted strike troubles will worsen if black workers are not better paid.

British companies employing black South Africans have been under attack for some weeks in the British press and Parliament for paying "malnutrition-level" wages. Several large firms were embarrassed into large pay raises, in one case a doubling of pervious rates.

But British management finds itself in a political dilemma as the press campaign back home runs smack into the objections to pay raises voiced by the South African government. Prime Minister John Vorster told his Cape Town parliament Tuesday the country could not afford a redistribution of wealth.

Plastic Bags Could Sink Ocean Liner

VANCOUVER (CP) — A scientist who specializes in ocean pollution has warned that plastic bags could some day cause the wreck of an ocean liner.

Michael Waldichuk, director of the Pacific Environment Institute, in West Vancouver, said "plastic bags can get into the cooling systems of both large and small vessels and that causes the engine to seize up.

"Then if it's a big vessel, you have a major disaster on your hands. A ship with a seized-up engine could easily end up on a reef," he said.

The national oceanic and atmospheric administration in Seattle reported recently that its observers have counted 24,000 plastic items washed up along 60 miles of Amchitka Island beaches in Alaska.

Waldichuk said the plasitc pollution comes from many sources — sewers, discharge from ships and solid refuse dumping. It collects especially in gyres — large circular eddies where oceanic currents meet.

The scientist said he was very encouraged by the results of the intergovernmental conference on dumping wastes at sea held last fall in London.

Canadian MD Gets Needle

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — The initiation of a group of Canadian doctors into the mysteries of Chinese traditional medicine reached the stage of personal commitment Wednesday when Dr. Gustave Gingras, president of the Canadian Medical Association, volunteered for acupuncture treatment of a sore shoulder.

The 54-year-old Montreal physician received 15 minutes of the ancient needling treatment during a visit to a Peking hospital specializing in traditional medicine, and declared it later to have been a great success.

Now there's no pain at all, he said recounting the incident during a meeting the doctors had at the Great Hall of the People with Kuo Mo-Jo, president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences.

The doctors left today for a visit to Shihchia-chuang, site of a memorial to Norman Bethune, the Canadian doctor who died in the service of the Communist Red Army in 1939.

Exposure to the unravelled mysteries of acupuncture and herbal medicine has been the most dramatic and intriguing aspect of the tour, but there is a lot more to it than that; in fact, it is quite likely that the most lasting impressions the doctors will carry away with them, and for Canada the most important will have more to do with the philosophy of health care in China than with unusual medical and surgical techniques.

The broad outlines of that philosophy were familiar to the doctors before they left Canada but actually seeing it being put into practice has made an indelible impression.

When they are among themselves it is no longer acupuncture that the doctors talk about but the selflessness and dedication of Chinese medical personnel, their determination to bring modern standards of medical care to the widest possible number of people at the lowest possible cost, and their commitment to the development of an indigenous system of health care combining the best of traditional and modern medicine.

The Canadians have met and talked with barefoot doctors who carry basic medicine out among the masses, surgeons who have left comfortable jobs in the city for months and even years working among the peasants and, they were unstinting in their praise of one of the country's most eminent surgeons who earns only $165 a month and considers even that too much.

Dr. Peter Banks of Victoria, president-elect of both the Canadian and British medical associations, greeted Dr. Wu Ying-Kai's exposition on his salary with a comment about Canadian doctors who put personal gain ahead of patient care, and there were several nodding heads among the other Canadians gathered around.

Dr. Maurice LeClair, deputy minister of the department of health and welfare, seemed to speak for others on the mission when he ended his visit to Dr. Wu's Fu Chen Men Wai Hospital by saying that much as he had been impressed by the technical competence of everything he had seen, his principal memory of the hospital — and, indeed, of all medicine in China — would be the human qualities of everyone we have met, from the front door to the operating room. He said this was something he would cherish for a very long time.

One of the people the Canadians met at the hospital was Dr. George Hatem, a Lebanese American who has lived in China for more than 40 years, becoming a living legend for his health work for the Communists beginning back in the days of the fabled Long arch.

He now specializes in dermatology, working on the development of prevention programs for which some remarkable successes have been claimed.

Dr. Hatem was with the Communists some four years before Dr. Bethune arrived, but his time with the Canadians was taken up reminiscing not about himself but about the Canadian surgeon. He was one of those impatient Canadians; he had hardly arrived before he wanted to set out on horseback for the front . . . He answered questions about some of the more obscure aspects of Dr. Bethune's time in Yenan.

SECRETARIES HELPED NEWSMAN GET BREAKS

James M. Minifie, former Washington correspondent for the CBC, gives secretaries much of the credit for the many times he beat the opposition on news stories from the United States capital.

The broadcaster, whose sign-off: "James M. Minifie Washington" became identified with news from Capitol Hill for more than 20 years, was guest speaker Wednesday at the fifth annual executive luncheon of the Victoria Chapter of the National Secretaries Association at the Executive House.

Minifie said that a "silent telephone" under his desk in the Senate Press Gallery enabled him to call in reports of what was happening on the floor to his newspaper or radio station "well ahead of many eager beavers who thought they had the Senate sewed up."

He said his telephone was an unprecedented facility for eye-witness reporting and "well worth the time and attention paid to the secretary of the superintendent of the press gallery."

Minifie said he loved covering the Senate once he knew his way around "which means being approved of by the right secretaries."

Through them he learned about the winding iron stairs that lead down to the "discreet cubbyhole where senators keep their private stock of Bourbon."

"If I got there early enough I could often get a good quote," Minifie said.

He says his friendship with women who worked in the Senate print room resulted in a continual supply of committee prints, voting lists, bills, amendments and reports. All solid documentation for his stories — and all of it libel proof.

Minifie said he recalls his days in Washington with nostalgia, "particularly now when a major scandal is opening up."

Minifie can imagine himself listening to President Nixon in the White House and then going to the press secretary's secretary who would tell him where to check out facts.

Minifie revealed he had a male secretary during his Washington years but said he preferred women secretaries.

He said his secretary performed his job well and greatly aided him in covering the Washington beat.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 21-year-old man who has a private project of assisting people involved with drugs, Wednesday was given six months probation and fined $100 after pleading guilty to possession of hashish.

The charge in provincial court followed a Feb. 20 incident when William Woods, 763 Hampshire, was stopped by police on Beach Drive and found to have an amount of the drug in his possession.

Judge William Ostler commended Woods on his involvement in the field of drug rehabilitation and added "it's great to see people helping others in this way on the basis of their own past experiences."

Woods also was fined $200 after he admitted stealing items valued at $2.40 from the Safeway store on Simcoe, April 5.

A 26-year-old Saanich man who pleaded guilty to an April 12 incident of indecent exposure was given a suspended sentence and 18 months probation by Ostler.

The judge stressed the need for Terrance F. Hall, 3236 Wascana, to seek psychiatric treatment after the incident which took place at his home and was viewed by a 15-year-old girl.

"Why should innocent girls be victims because of your carnal gluttony," Ostler commented before passing sentence.

Roy Joseph, 18, of 1122 Balmoral, was given a six-month probation term, and sentence was suspended after he admitted causing wilful damage April 11, by putting his fist through the window of a Broad Street restaurant.

Judge Ostler ordered him to pay for the damage, estmated at about $35, after Joseph said he had done it to impress two female companions.

Avery, of 860 Fisgard, who pleaded not guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk on Tuesday, convinced the judge he should be released on his own recognizance so he could feed his rabbit daily.

Ostler remanded him to Friday for trial.

Edward Weiland, 25, of 3169 Tillicum, was fined a total of $550 and prohibited from driving for one month and 21 days after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving and refusing to take a breathalyizer test April 24 on Douglas Street.

World Experts On Mammals Meet at Empress

Between 100 and 120 of the world's experts on water mammals will meet at the Empress Hotel Monday for the fourth annual conference of the International Association for Aquatic Animal Medicine.

Scientists from England, Holland and Spain will be among those attending the three-day conference which will include papers and panel discussions, on whales, porpoises, seals, sea lions and other mammals.

Tearful Wife's Plea

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — "Please call home," a tearful Mrs. Leslie Dominey beseeched her husband over television Wednesday as an international police hunt for him and Melvin Edward Downs continued in connection with the theft of $700,000 from the Brink's Canada Ltd. here during the Easter weekend.

She also disclosed for the first time that Brinks had become aware that something was wrong at its Saint John office Sunday night, at least 16 hours before company officials and police managed to get into the vault and determine that money was missing.

Mrs. Dominey said she received a call Sunday night and an unfamiliar male voice told her where to find the family car and to look into the glove compartment for $2,000 stashed there.

A neighbor recovered the car from an uptown parking lot and the money was returned to Brinks that night, she said in an interview.

At first the company did not want to accept it, saying it might be her husband's own money. However, she insisted and they gave her a receipt.

The following afternoon at 4, the electrically-operated vault opened and shortly after Canada-wide warrants were issued for Dominey, 32, a driver-guard, and Downs, 36, an assistant cashier at Brink's. Neither man has been seen since Saturday night.

'Inefficiency' Really Worker Noise Damage

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Larkin, rehabilitation advisor for the Ontario ministry of health, said Wednesday a factory worker might lose his job for what management considers inefficiency when really the worker is suffering from effects of prolonged noise.

Larkin told delegates to an international symposium on rehabilitation of persons injured in industrial accidents that early symptoms caused by industrial noise and vibration are tiredness, irritability, insomnia and loss of sex drive.

He said a study showed that among employees exposed to noise above 115 decibels there was impairment at higher levels of mental function . . . there was an urge to work hurriedly and get out of the noise situation . . . creativity was impaired."

Larkin said a person may suffer serious disability before any hearing loss is recorded and "he could very well lose his job due to inefficiency or because of neurotic behavior."

Another speaker, Ian Barclay, president of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., told delegates a province-wide financial pool should be set up to aid payment of workmen's compensation for recurring injuries, such as back problems.

Dressed to Kill —Or Be Killed?

NEW YORK (CP) — The growing popularity of high-platform shoes is worrying car-safety officials who fear a rash of accidents by "lead-footed" drivers.

The Insurance Information Institute warns that following today's high fashion trends can be deadly for the car driver.

"Are you dressed to kill, or be killed?" the institute asks.

Such fashions can hinder swift movement of the foot from the gas pedal to the brake pedal, the institute says.

"While driving, you may begin to accelerate and then realize you have to stop short only to have your platform hit the side of the brake pedal instead of stepping on top of it," a spokesman said.

In addition, wide-cuffed, bell-bottomed pants can wrap around the gas pedal and also keep a driver from reaching the brake pedal.

The institute says drivers wearing platform shoes also have a tendency to become "lead-footed" due to the added weight of the shoes on the accelerator. This can cause further dangerous delay in brake-reaction time.

Too heavy for gas pedal?

$50,000 to Back Cancer Education

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Cancer Society is planning a new campaign beginning in the fall to educate the public about cancer.

Television, radio, film strips and pamphlets will be among aids used to get the message across, with a strong emphasis on health protection.

Dr. A. J. Phillips, public education director, said the society long has wrestled with the problem of how to warn people about cancer sufficiently to make them take action, yet not scare them to the point where they will not visit a doctor.

Earlier campaigns in the society's 35-year history have placed emphasis on danger signals — which, polls indicated, just scared people — and on safeguard measures, which produced a lukewarm response.

The new program, for which a maximum of $50,000 has been set aside, will combine the two approaches but treat them in greater depth.

Phillips said: "It looks as though there is no one way to educate Canadians about cancer. Some people don't even want to read about cancer but others respond positively to fear . . ."

But informing and educating persons are different propositions, he said.

"Only education can go that extra step towards motivating people to change their behavior. That's what we want to achieve — to get them to act in ways beneficial to their health."

As an example of where improvement could be made, Phillips said the survival rate among those treated for breast cancer in its early stages is 80 per cent. Over-all, it is only 52 per cent.

"That extra 28 per cent is an attainable target . . . That is the kind of thing we want to do."

Hormone Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residues of a cancer-causing hormone still are showing up in meat, three months after the U.S. government banned the hormone from cattle feed but permitted implanting it in ears.

Putting cancer-causing additives in food is forbidden by federal law.

A Food and Drug Administration (FDA) investigation of diethylstilbestrol, or DES, residues found in meat since the ban has failed to establish why they showed up.

Press Post Disputed

LONDON (AP) — A woman may have the top job at Buckingham Palace, but women's libbers are angry because another man has been named the Queen's chief press spokesman.

When the job became vacant last week, Ronald Allison, television sports reporter, was chosen over Anne Hawkins, No. 2 in the palace press office for 15 years.

"That job, say palace officials breaking into a hot embarrassed sweat at the thought, is not for a woman," Lynda Lee Potter of The Daily Mail reported.

"Goodness gracious, they infer, clasping their well-bred foreheads and shaking with horror, we couldn't, by gad, we couldn't give the job to a frail gentle lady.

"Miss Hawkins, they admit, is super efficient, invaluable and a walking directory, but taking royal tours, bundling through mobs is no place for a woman."

Michael Leapman, writer of The Times' Daily Diary, said he got the same explanation and one palace official also told him:

"I think we will have a woman press secretary when we have more women photographers."

"If I were Hawkins, I would have picked up a directory of the non-walking variety and hurled it straight at this anonymous official's head," Leapman wrote.

Allison and Miss Hawkins are saying nothing.

BACCHUS, EROS DON'T GET ON

Liquor may be a sexual stimulant for some younger people, but for older males, Bacchus and Eros don't mix, said Todd, a member of the state board of public health.

Todd wrote on sex and alcohol for the May issue of the Memorial Mercury, a publication of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach. The issue was devoted to alcoholism.

Drinking before sex by men brings on sleepiness, loss of libido, lessened confidence and psychological impotence caused by "the anxiety state that is latent in all of us," Todd wrote.

Cirrhosis of the liver, caused by continual heavy drinking, causes a condition in which a man's liver is no longer capable of eliminating the small amounts of female hormones present in all men's blood, he said.

As a result, the hormones accumulate and cause feminizing physical changes, such as enlargement of the breasts, weaker muscles, and loss of hair.

Buick Century

Century Luxus Colonnade Hardtop Coupe.

GM Canada

Part of the fun of being young—or just feeling young—is being ready to try something new. The newer the better.

You'll like the spirit of the Century that comes with a big Buick V8, and the comfort, the handling, the many luxuries and the feel of quality that all come with any car that calls itself a Buick.

So what's being young got to do with trying out a Buick Century?

If you're leery of new experiences, you're saying you've had it with anything that is off the beaten track. But if you're open to the experience of the Century, you're saying you want to be shown.

And that's being young, whatever your age.

Want to see some new ways to enjoy life? See your Buick dealer. He will be delighted to show you a fine selection of Colonnade hardtop coupes (some with formal rooflines and smart side opera windows), and Colonnade hardtop sedans and station wagons.

Tinned Salmon Suits Twosome

It's not always easy to come up with a meal that's tailored to just the right size for one or two servings — without having a lot of leftovers that perhaps no one feels like having the next day.

A can or two of salmon in the kitchen cupboard helps. The sfall size can (3¾ oz.) makes a good meal for one person. The 7¾ oz. can is just right for two servings.

Using these two sizes of cans of salmon, here are two attractive meals that taste as good as they look. For one, Poppy Seed Salmon Salad, for two, Salmon Stuffed Tomatoes on Bed of Noodles.

POPPY SEED SALMON SALAD

Meal for One

1 can (3¾ oz.) salmon
½ small onion, sliced lengthwise
Vinegar
½ tblsp. poppy seed
½ cup plain yogurt or sour cream
Lettuce

Drain and flake salmon. Marinate onion slices in vinegar to cover, for several hours. Drain well. Mix poppy seeds with yogurt or sour cream. Add marinated onion slices and flaked salmon. Serve on lettuce leaf with hot roll and potato chips.

SALMON STUFFED TOMATOES

Meal for Two

1 can (7¾ oz.) salmon
2 large tomatoes
Salt and pepper
⅛ lb. fresh mushrooms, finely chopped
2 tblsp. chopped celery
1 slice bread, crumbed
Salt and pepper to taste
1 tblsp. melted butter
Basil

Drain salmon and make into chunks. Cut slice off top of tomatoes; scoop out tomato pulp; sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt and pepper; turn upside down to drain. Mix chopped tomato pulp with mushrooms, celery, bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Let stand 10 minutes. Divide mixture between the 2 drained tomatoes. Top with salmon chunks. Dribble melted butter over; sprinkle with basil. Bake on greased pie plate at 350 degrees F. for 12-15 minutes. Serve on bed of noodles.

NOODLES

2-3 tblsp. sesame seeds
1 tblsp. melted butter
2 servings cooked noodles
Dash Rosemary
Dash marjoram

Brown sesame seeds in melted butter. Add to cooked noodles with rosemary and marjoram. Place stuffed tomatoes on top and serve.

LARGE TIN of salmon is sufficient to make full-sized meal for two — an attractive meal, Salmon Stuffed Tomatoes tastes as good as it looks. Dish is ideal over noodles containing sesame seeds with a dash each of Rosemary and marjoram.

Music Used in War On Protein Crisis

"On Monday, I feed my baby a spoonful of powdered milk. On Tuesday, I feed my baby some peanuts to make him grow strong. On Wednesday, mashed beans."

The "baby-feeding song" is part of an energetically pursued campaign by the Government of the Central African country to combat malnutrition among the young with more and better-quality food. Few low-income countries in Africa, Asia or Latin America have utilized such methods to combat this pressing problem.

Two-thirds of the 800 million children on the three continents are affected by malnutrition, according to experts in the United Nations and elsewhere.

Six years ago, the UN warned of an "impending protein crisis." Today, the experts say, the crisis has arrived and protein malnutrition is increasing alarmingly, particularly among the rural and urban poor. The situation is rendered more acute by crop failures in India and in African countries because of droughts, but the extent of the problem is still uncertain.

Malnutrition is not so dramatic as famine or does it demand such urgent attention as smallpox, says Alan Berg, a World Bank official who has worked on nutrition problems in the poorer countries and who habitually takes along a recording of the Zambian feeding song.

Science recognizes that not enough food and a deficiency of protein in the diet of the young result in protein-calorie malnutrition that can cause physical and mental impairment.

But Berg maintains that governments still do not appreciate the importance of proper diet in their economic planning.

Proteins are complex substances made up of a combination of amino acids essential for health and growth. They are available to the prosperous in protein-rich foods such as meat, fish, eggs and dairy products. However, the poor, unable to afford high-priced foods, must depend for protein on cereals and vegetables, which have some but not all the essential amino acids.

It is for this reason that the international community has been seeking to improve the qualities of plants by breeding — to enrich them with the missing amino acids — and to develop new sources of protein.

Concerned officials maintain that it will take concerted action by governments, both the prosperous and the poor, to solve the protein problem, and so far the response has been discouraging.

Philippe de Seynes, an Under Secretary General of the UN who heads its Department of Economic and Social Affairs, complains of the apathy of government leaders, saying: "The world does not have the will power or enthusiasm to eradicate protein malnutrition.

Tricks From An Old Dog

You often are told that a dog will teach your children both patience and responsibility. Not surprisngly, the folks who tell you this are invariably people who are knee-deep in St. Bernard puppies.

Now if there are any two virtues which our children could use a lot more of, they are patience and responsibility. So far, though, the only lessons that they could have learned from old Marmaduke, the Misbegotten, is how to scratch their ear with their left foot and drink from a puddle.

I suppose that feeding Marmaduke was originally the children's responsibility. But it became obvious that if he were going to get any nourishment besides peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, I would have to step in. Not that he minded a steady diet of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Next to leather bedroom slippers and ping-pong balls, peanut butter and jelly was his favorite food. In fact he still sniffs disdainfully at every dog food I buy and refuses to touch it unless I put it on a Limoges dinner plate, smack my lips, and take the first bite.

Grooming him was also to have been the children's job. Until I discovered that their idea of grooming was joining him in a tub full of Mr. Bubble liberally laced with Chanel No. 5.

"We even brushed his teeth," they announced smugly.

"Not with my toothbrush!" I wailed.

"Of course not. We used Daddy's."

Walking Marmaduke somehow became my province as well. Unfortunately at 3 a.m. everyone who needs lessons in patience and responsibility is usually fast asleep. It's the folk who already have patience and responsibility up to their necks who are expected to desert warm beds for a quick run around the block in a trench coat.

I suppose that the only way our children will learn patience and responsibility is by growing up, getting married, and barking their shins on a fire hydrant at 3 a.m.

From Sunny Florida —Dot's Apricot Bars

By MARY MOORE

Direct from West Palm Beach comes my cousin's recipe for Luscious Apricot Bars. My brother Wilf and his wife Wyn returned from Florida having visited our cousin Dorothy Himes.

In our youth Dorothy and I were playmates and now whenever we are in Florida we are made welcome at the Himes' home.

Dorothy's recipe is great and will be welcomed by the squares fans for these are a rich moist bar that could be served for dessert with a whipped topping.

DOROTHY'S APRICOT BARS

2-3 cup dried apricots (packed)
½ cup soft butter or margarine
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 1-3 cup sifted all-purpose flour (divided — see below)
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
1 cup light brown sugar, packed
2 eggs
½ tsp. vanilla
½ to 1 cup chopped nuts
confectioners' sugar (optional)

Rinse apricots; barely cover with water, bring to boil and simmer 10 minutes. Drain. Cool. Chop. Cream the butter with the granulated sugar then add ONE CUP of the flour and mix until crumbly. Pack this evenly into a greased 8 x 8" pan and bake 15 minutes.

Meanwhile sift together the remaining 1-3 cup flour, baking powder and salt. Beat brown sugar and eggs together and add sifted dry ingredients to them and mix. Stir in vanilla, nuts and chopped apricots. Spread over baked layer. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. Do not overbake. Cool in pan. Cut into 2 x 1" bars and if desired roll each in confectioners' sugar.

Yield: 32.

Thank you Dorothy.

Poor Sport Father

DEAR ABBY: My husband is very hard to get along with. He is also a very poor sport. I was in my ninth month of pregnancy with our first child when I started to get pains. We had planned to go to a football game that day, so my husband got mad and laid down on the couch and told me to wake him when it was time to go to the hospital.

I kept telling him it was time, but he stalled around just for spite and I had the baby in the parking lot outside the hospital.

Another time we took our five kids to Disneyland. My husband likes to go on all those wild rides but I get dizzy, so he took the kids while I watched. The big one got a nosebleed on the Ferris wheel and bled all over my husband's suit, so he gave the poor kid a licking just like it was his fault.

The reason I'm writing this is because yesterday I scraped the fender on his car and he got mad and broke my Yucca tree.

If I weren't pregnant with number six I'd leave him. Any advice?—Trapped.

DEAR TRAPPED: What's done is done, but you should give some thought to turning off the "baby machine." It's not fair to saddle children with a father like that.

DEAR ABBY: I love to cook, but I recently married a man whose hobby is cooking. Every night he fixes a different kind of dinner. He's gone from Chinese to Hungarian to Italian. I hate to complain, but my husband's cooking is terrible and I can't take much more of it.

How can I tell him to please stay out of the kitchen and let me do the cooking? —Upset Stomach.

DEAR UPSET: Unless you speak Chinese, Hungarian, or Italian, tell him in English.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15 and have wonderful parents, or so I thought until about a week ago.

My mother and father both leave for work before I go to school and while I was looking through my mother's drawer for some nylons I noticed her diary hidden in the corner. Abby, I know I shouldn't have done this, but I was curious and I began to read.

Now I wish I had never seen it because I found out my mom is having an affair with another man. This has caused me to lose all respect for her, and now I am wondering whether I should tell my father.

Please help me as it is too embarrassing to talk over with my friends.—Baffled.

DEAR BAFFLED: Don't tell your father. And let this be a lesson to you: The price one usually pays for violating the privacy of another is learning that which he was happier not knowing.

I'd like to draw your attention to an unusual publication that tells you how a city and street improvement plan which was first carried out in England, has also proved successful in several Canadian communities.

The Norwich Plan for Downtown Restoration, a 16-page illustrated booklet, tells you how the project was handled in Norwich, England. The scheme did not involve any rebuilding, but was simply a comparatively inexpensive restoration and re-painting project.

In December 1961, the Downtown Merchants of Oakville, Ontario, faced similar big city problems, in addition to fierce competition from suburban shopping centres. They engaged a merchandising consultant who had heard about the Norwich venture. After a visit there, he decided to modify the Plan for the benefit of the Oakville businessmen. Since then other Canadian communities have adopted the Plan.

General interest grew so rapidly, that it was decided to make a film that would show the Norwich Plan in action in a Canadian City. Niagara Falls, Ontario, was chosen as the model. In only 18 months one of its main arteries had been given a facelift. Among immediate results was a business increase of 22 per cent.

Rock Star Trip Not for Valdy

By NICOLE STRICKLAND

Paul Valdemar Horsdal II put a little honey in his coffee, picked up a piece of cheese for nibbling — and reflected on what it is like to be a star.

"First of all don't call me Paul Valdemar Horsdal II — There is no Paul Horsdal anymore. The name is Valdy — and as far as I'm concerned, it's always been Valdy and always will be Valdy.

"Mine is no overnight success story — I've been singing professionally in Canada for ten years, and it's been an uphill climb all the way. No, maybe I've been blowing with the wind, that's all. And the wind is always blowing."

Valdy sips his coffee, tucks into a slice of Camembert, and says: "I'm a simple man. Sure, my records have been hits, but I haven't changed what I am. That star trip isn't for me. I've seen what it does to people.

ALWAYS BEEN VALDY

"I don't want people grabbing little pieces of me and saying 'Look! There's Valdy!' I don't want to go around the country stuck together with Lepage's glue. I'd rather just go around the country singing songs for my friends."

And the songs have been hits — Valdy's Rock and Roll Song, winner of the Moffatt award for best record in 1972, and Good Song, presently high on the charts. Credited with the best folk performance for 1972, Valdy recently won Canada's Juno award.

"Those awards are okay, but they don't really mean much," he says, putting a slice of cheddar on melba toast. "Take tonight. I was on the Ian Tyson show and I didn't watch. I don't own a television set — or a lot of other things.

"My old lady and I," he says, gesturing toward his eight months pregnant wife Lindsay sitting nearby, "we live in a teepee — see? Close to nature.

"We have five acres on what used to be a commune but has now evolved into a community, with everybody living in his own space. Our own space is the teepee. When I get some time off from singing I want to build a new one — one with windows."

Valdy wears the faded jeans, torn sweatshirt and logger's boots in which he performs ("I wore this for 60 days once"), and his Lindsay, wrapped in a big shawl that covers her pregnancy, also wears logger's boots. She smiles and jokes as she watches him pop cheeses into his mouth.

She announces that the birth will take place in the teepee if at all possible, through natural childbirth. Hospitals, says Lindsay, are a "bad trip".

"We avoid material trips we don't need," says Valdy. "One of the few luxuries bought since I hit success was a hammock. Eventually I'll buy a little generator and we'll have electricity. My money goes for organic foods, vitamins, and touring.

"Next week I'm going to Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Vancouver, Calgary, Port Angeles — All that costs money. By the time I pay commissions to my manager and my booking agent . . . well, my singing feeds a lot of people.

"Sure, people feed off me, but we're all eating aren't we? I don't know anything about money management; someone looks after that for me. I just sing the songs."

Women Move Slowly Towards Microphone

But it doesn't seem to have impressed many women: Only two have applied to take his radio broadcasting course at Humber College of Applied Arts and Technology in suburban Etobicoke.

The three-year course is the only total college radio broadcasting program in Canada, said Stone, a radio veteran.

And he'd like to see more females take an interest in it.

"Girls probably don't realize that good opportunities are available to them in radio," he said.

A recent check he made of five Ontario stations confirmed his belief that in radio women have equal opportunity in terms of money and promotion in positions such as news reporting, promotion and public relations, copywriting, time selling, as traffic managers arranging schedules for commercials and as music librarians.

Radio announcing, he admitted, is still predominantly a man's field. It's also the best-paying job in a big city station.

But, said Stone, stations have indicated to him that if listeners demand women announcers that's what they'll get.

"At present it seems listeners, particularly daytime women listeners, want to listen to men," he says. "But I think today's woman is almost ready to listen to another woman.

"If I owned a Toronto radio station I would give a bright woman an afternoon program to deal with the issues of the day."

The Humber College course costs $250 a year. The first two years are devoted to announcing techniques, radio production, business management, music and sound, interviewing techniques and other basic skills.

The final year is given over to specialization.

The course, which demands Grade 12 as an entrance requirement, began last year.

Thirty men have applied for next fall's course, and Stone now has closed male applications.

B.C. Gets $115,639 From New Horizons

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde has announced that grants totalling $155,639 have been awarded to 27 B.C. senior citizens' groups under the government's New Horizons program.

New Horizon is designed to assist retured persons' groups in projects they chose for their own or community benefit.

Female Leaders Run Community

WIARTON, Ont. (CP) — This Georgian Bay community may turn out to be a model of just what women can accomplish when they turn their attention to community and civic affairs.

The mayor of the town, 15 miles northwest of Owen Sound, is Irene McLaughlin who also works with two other women on council.

And just recently Eileen Speechley was elected president of the chamber of commerce and joined two other women on the executive. It left one lone male on the chamber's executive committee.

Mrs. McLaughlin, mother of a son living in Ottawa, was elected mayor in 1972. She said municipal politics are demanding on her time and she would not consider such a career if she had a young family.

The mayor said it is unfortunate but some men seem to resent a woman in a leadership role because they may have had "to lock horns" with the odd overbearing female.

Mrs. Speechley, mother of a daughter, 11, and 17-year-old son, said a woman can be the head of any group, "but I feel there should be a balance. No group should be top heavy with either men or women."

She said her main purpose in accepting the presidency of the chamber was to promote the community.

"I believe that people who do not become involved in their communtiy are comparable to people who do not go out to vote. They squawk the loudest, and contribute nothing to assist in improving or changing the things that they squawk about."

Mrs. Speechley spent three years in the real estate business in London, Ont., before the family moved to Wiarton in 1971.

If "X" Marks the Spot Where your Customers WERE . . . How is it Affecting Your Business?

Prestige merchants and business firms with clientele built up over the years must take a profit loss each time a regular customer moves out of the city.

BUT -- New Families Are Continually Taking Up Residence in the Victoria Area.

For every family leaving the city, perhaps two or three come to make their homes here. Sooner or later they may hear about your place of business. But, why wait? Let them know the moment they arrive that you are ready to serve them. The most effective way to reach them is through advertising in Victoria's Daily Newspapers. More than nine out of ten families in this community are regular subscribers. One of the first things the new family will do is subscribe. Next, they'll be reading your ad! Stove, Barrel Gone But Rural Store Lives On

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The pot-bellied stoves and cracker barrels may be gone, but the heart of the community remains.

Throughout Alberta, at lonely crossroads, isolated rural stores huddle beneath their solitary yardlights with only a wounded gas pump or slumbering dog for company.

Some say the old-fashioned general stores are slowly losing their place in the province's rural society. And it's true that it is becoming difficult to find one with a pot-bellied stove and cracker barrel.

★ ★ ★

But drowsy cats on the window ledge are common, as are ceiling rafters festooned with such things as fan belts, tools and novelties. And work boots, blue jeans and truckers' wallets are still stock items.

Even more important, the general store is still a meeting place, community centre, first aid post and informational clearing house.

One can sit in Bob Weir's store at Goodfare, in northwestern Alberta, sip a soft drink, say nothing, and learn about the price of fur, the calving situation, of the condition of neighbors in hospital at Hythe, Beaverbrook or Grande Prairie.

Weir took over the store from his father a few years ago. He buys fur and trades in moccasins with natives from nearby Horse Lakes Reserve and the non-treaty settlement at Kelly Lake in British Columbia.

"I dibble and dabble in cattle a bit," he said. "I've got a few horses, too, although I didn't really want them. I had to collect a bill and I got two mares and a stallion and a gelding."

Like most general store merchants, he knows almost everybody in the community, what brands of cigarettes or coffee they use, what shape their crops are in and what kind of farm managers they are.

Sometimes the shopkeeper is the only focal point for information which can prevent death or serious injury to isolated residents. If an old bachelor is overdue for his weekly tobacco ration or a widow neglects her mail, the shopkeeper could see it as a sign that something is wrong.

Jack Bird, 57, has been running the store at Blueberry Mountain, about 50 miles northeast of Goodfare, since 1949.

In those days, Spirit River was 20 miles away, as it is today. But then the road to Spirit River was rougher, like all roads in the Peace country at that time.

★ ★ ★

Times have changed. "There's no more success story in this business," said Bird. "The corner grocery store in the city can use a price advantage. Here, we're competing directly with the bigger centres."

But he admits he has made his share as a general merchant.

And he still buys flour by the carload and stocks not only groceries but hardware, drygoods, plumbing and heating supplies, and housewares.

BICYCLES MOVE HANOI

HANOI (AP) — North Vietnam moves on bicycles.

Hours before dawn, Hanoi's streets fill with bicyclists rushing to work. For some it takes several hours. In the war effort, the bike was the most important means of transportation when trains and trucks were too obvious a bombing target.

Nobody owns a private automobile. Hanoi has no taxis, but there are still many bicycle taxis, most left over from colonial days. Rickety buses, many still camouflage-painted or damaged by shrapnel, ferry people from Hanoi City to the suburbs and into the countryside.

Chinese-made trains connect all major North Vietnamese cities.

The army and major industry have the trucks. Because of lack of transportation, carts with heavy loads of building materials, supplies or industrial produce are often pulled by men or women. Traffic jams occur as in any other city during rush hours.

Bicyclists usually don't seem to hear them, riding five abreast in the centre of the road. Bicycle speed is Hanoi's traffic speed.

DUCKY DIP is for a woodduck which broke a wing when it flew into a boat in the backyard of a Burnaby home. Preparing the bath is Evelyn Fanning, 17.

Special School For Interpreters

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A special school for a corps of interpreters hired by the government of the Northwest Territories has started here.

The corps, consisting of nine young Indians and Eskimos from across the 1.3 million square miles of the territories, will help the government in the future as it attempts to deal with the seven languages and dialects other than English or French spoken by the majority of people in the north.

The interpreters were sworn in last week and now are attending classes in Yellowknife which will extend over the next nine months.

Under the direction of Jim McIntyre, a former newspaper editor in the northern capital, the interpreters will take specialized courses in government structure, linguistics, English upgrading and public speaking.

Art Sorensen, chief of public relations for the territorial government, says the ultimate goal is to train the interpreters to the point where they can conduct simultaneous translations.

Meanwhile, they will polish their skills in their native language as well as English.

When the program is completed, the territorial government will have bilingual capability in Chipewyan, Slavey, Loucheux, Dogrib and Western, Central and Eastern Arctic Eskimo.

Later, they will conduct field trips to the various reigons of the N.W.T. to discover how government works at the regional and municipal levels.

All courses are supplemented with video tape recording equipment so that interpreters can monitor their progress in developing language skills.

Spies Galore in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — Beirut is the spy capital of the Middle East conflict, a battlefield in the underground war between Palestinian guerrillas and Israeli commandos, where life is carried on against the occasional clatter of machine-gun fire.

Periodically the war touches foreigners. An Italian woman looks out her front door and is gunned down by Israeli raiders. A Frenchman is kidnapped as a suspected Israeli spy. Armored cars guard the United States embassy.

But most of the two million tourists who annually disport themselves in Beirut's seaside hotels are blandly unaware of the tension and intrigue behind the glitter.

One million people live here, nearly half the population of Lebanon. They are better-dressed than residents of other Arab capitals, have higher incomes and seem to have more leisure time.

Residents of stricter Moslem states come here to let their hair down. Saudi Arabians and American oil engineers fly up from the Persian Gulf area for three-day benders. Hagrainis and Dubais come to ogle topless dancers. Beaches and ski slopes are only an hour apart.

The machine-gun fire in quiet residential streets, midnight explosions, bullet-riddled cars and pools of blood show the other side of Beirut.

There are six Palestinian camps with 23,000 refugees in the Beirut area, walled slums of despair where Lebanese authority fears to tread. The camps are fed by the United Nations Relief Works Agency but policed by troops of the Palestinian Armed Struggle Command.

The camps are arsenals of illegal arms — anything from pistols to bazookas and anti-aircraft guns — and fertile recruitinhg grounds for the "fedayeen" guerrillas who stage raids across Israel's border 60 miles south of here.

Rich Get the Best Health Care: Professor

FEE-FOR-SERVICE OUTMODED: CPHA

MONTREAL (CP)—The "fee-for-service methods of paying doctors is outmoded and forms a serious barrier to further improvements in health care, the Canadian Public Health Association (CPHA) meeting decided Wednesday.

Delegates — virtually all of them salaried, public health doctors, nurses, social workers and inspectors — recommended their general council draw up a policy statement calling for health planners to start discussions on alternative ways of paying for health care — perhaps such as straight salaries for all health professionals.

★ ★ ★

"What must be emphasized then is that the method of payment . . . is a critical issue in the future evolution of our health care system," said a statement approved in principle for submission to the council, which meets Friday.

"The development of a real, co-operative and functional health care team will not be possible with the fee-for-service payment of physicians."

The general council of representatives of provincial branches is the policy-making body, but Dr. Bernard Bucove, chairman of the policy and legislation committee, said it usually would act on the advice of the general membership.

MONTREAL (CP) — Health care in Canada is undemocratic, Prof. Robin Badgley of Toronto said Wednesday.

Even with medical and health care insurance, the rich get good health care and the poor don't, the University of Toronto sociologist told the annual meeting of the Canadian Public Health Association (CPHA).

For example, he said, city dwellers in Manitoba, in contrast to the rural population, have more operations, more physical examinations and are in hospital more often.

He said metropolitan Winnipeg residents in 1970, compared with those of rural Parkland, received twice as many general history and physical examinations; had 2.5 more specialist consultations; were in hospital twice as often; generated 40 per cent more medical care costs; and received 3.5 times more service from neurosurgeons.

And the politicians and health professionals, the ones who really decide the kind of health care that is offered, "for the most part have ignored or tolerated these inequities," he told about 350 delegates to the three-day convention.

APPROVE POLICIES

During the first-day sessions Wednesday, delegates approved in principle five policy positions for presentation to the CPHA general council.

The council, which consists of representatives from the provincial public health associations, is the voting body but it often holds policy hearings to gain membership response, said Dr. Bernard Bucove, chairman of the policy and legislation committee.

Members approved a policy statement calling for greater regional control of health services, with locally-elected boards taking over some of the responsibility for planning health services for an area rather than administration from the provincial or national governments.

Soviet Union Yanks Away Lougheed's Welcome Mat

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed, who had hoped to visit the Soviet Union in August, has been told "in rather polite terms" that the Russian leaders will be "otherwise occupied" that month.

"We took the suggestion that we should perhaps consider another year for the mission," the premier told the legislature Wednesday.

He had been asked by Grant Notley, New Democratic Party leader, why the government declined a Soviet invitation to visit the Soviet Union this year.

Lougheed said August was the only month Alberta officials could make the trip. The province had to plan for a federal-provincial conference in Calgary during July on western economic opportunities and for the resumption of the legislature in the fall.

There was also a meeting of first ministers in May, followed by a tour of Central Alberta by the cabinet and then a meeting in Victoria during June to prepare for the Calgary conference.

Juba Won't Run

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mayor Stephen Juba said Wednesday he definitely will not run for re-election in the next municipal election.

Addressing the Conservative Club of Greater Winnipeg, Mayor Juba said he will not run again because he is convinced Premier Ed Schreyer does not intend to amend the City of Winnipeg Act to allow for public election of the mayor.

Wild Oats Blitz

SASKATOON (CP) — With losses to the Canadian economy estimated at $120 million a year through reduced crop yields and dockage, 1973 has been proclaimed the "year of the blitz" on wild oats, George Leith of Regina, said Wednesday.

Leith, western assistant to federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, told 150 delegates to a symposium onwild gates to a symposium on wild is "no joke," because the situation is not improving.

Teachers Hike Fees

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Teachers' Association has agreed to increase membership fees by $24 a year to replenish a depleted emergency reserve.

A recommendation to increase the fees to $168 annually from $144 was approved Wednesday during a closed session of the ATA annual convention. The increase would result in an emergency reserve of about $608,500 by the end of this year.

Ranchers Challenged

RED DEER (CP) — Alberta's cattle producers must become more export-minded in the growing world demand for red meat and breeding stock is to be met, a livestock and semen export seminar was told Wednesday.

John Hay, Alberta Hereford Association secretary, told delegates at the one-day briefing that Chile has asked for between 5,000 and 10,000 Canadian cattle a year, "but I doubt Canadian producers can meet the demand."

Immigrants Wanted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rhineland MLA Jake Froese says the Canadian government should loosen up its immigration laws to allow more immigrants to fill job vacancies in Southern Manitoba.

Froese, the lone Social Credit member of the legislature, told the house Wednesday that farmers in Southern Manitoba depend on immigrants to fill many kinds of "menial" jobs that unemployed residents of urban areas are unwilling to do.

Rip Van Winkle

. . . Of Insect World!

CHICAGO (AP) — Millions of cicadas are about to emerge from 17 years of darkness for a short but tuneful existence before disappearing for another 17 years.

These Rip Van Winkles of the insect world, commonly called 17-year locusts, are the longest-lived of all insects. But all except a few weeks of that life is lived underground.

Henry Dybas, curator of insects at the Field Museum of Natural History, said in an interview Wednesday that "locust" is a misnomer for the cicada, but that the term is so widely used it's hopeless to try to change it.

They do some damage when the female cuts slits in the bark to lay her eggs, but for mature trees this has only the effect of "natural pruning," Dybas said. Younger trees might suffer some harm.

WAIT FOR SUMMER

The nymphs, immature insects, bore holes in the ground, sometimes capped by a turret. On a warm night in late May or early June the brown nymph crawls out and up a nearby tree trunk or plant stem.

The skin splits down the back, and the soft white adult with red eyes emerges in 30 to 90 minutes. The body gradually hardens and colors so that by mid-morning of the next day the cicada can fly to a sunny spot on a leaf.

After mating, the females lay 300 to 500 eggs—15 or 20 in each slit. After about three weeks, those adults not eaten by birds, dogs, snakes, skunks, raccoons and other predators die a natural death.

The eggs hatch in about seven weeks and the tiny white nymphs, only one-twelfth of an inch long, crawl out of the bark and drop to the ground, where they burrow in and attach themselves to a root to live on the sap until it is time to emerge 17 years later.

ONE HAPPY OWNER . . . HE GOT A NEW CAR

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal tailor who bought a Gneral Motors Firenza last year filed a $4,195 suit against the vendor Wednesday alleging the vehicle is useless.

In an action in Quebec Superior Court against Durand Pontiac Buick Ltd. here, Rene Benoit said that this "splendid motor vehicle" has been almost always in the hands of the defendants and is still there.

He lists various difficulties including trouble with the brakes, steering and transmission.

But not all Firenza owners are unhappy.

Moore said he has been offered a 1973 Astre for his 1972 Firenza plus $380 on a car-for- basis. Sales tax and licence plate included.

Floating Mill Beached

Government red tape has snarled plans to convert the dowager Canadian National Railways ferry Canora into a unique floating sawmill.

Bought by Goodwin Johnson (1960) Ltd., the oldest steamship on this coast was due to come out of retirement June 15 to begin her new career as sawmill and training centre for Indians in the Queen Charlotte Islands.

A company spokesman in Vancouver said today that work on her had come to a "dead stop" because of the inability of federal and provincial government departments, interested in helping fund the project, to co-ordinate activities.

"We in this office have been ordered to answer no comment," he said, "but it will be at least two or three months before we can clear up what we're trying to do."

Built in 1918 at Levis, Que., the Canora plied these waters for nearly 50 years before she was pensioned off in 1968.

Since the Vancouver company bought her in December 1972, she has been undergoing conversion for her new role by Industrial Mill Installation Ltd. of Burnaby.

In addition to the $76,500 the company paid for her an additional $150,000 was planned for her conversion.

A representative of the department of Indian affairs has visited the Charlottes and obtained more than 90 applications from potential native workers.

When arrangements are completed with Canada Manpower, the qualifications of each applicant will have to be assessed to determine how much training under federal programs will be needed to make them fit for employment.

THEY ALL REMEMBERED A DIFFERENT AIR AGE

It was a time for long memories about a different air age at The Empress Wednesday as 239 members of an organization known simply as World War I Flyers gathered in reunion.

While much of the chat was about today's doings, it was inevitable that names like Sopwith Camel and Snipe crept into the conversation of the men who flew such machines almost 60 years ago.

First World War pilots were there from almost every province, several states and England, most in their eighties and some in their nineties.

This is the fifth reunion for the 1914-18 flyers, said Ron Norman of Toronto, secretary of the group. The gatherings are the outgrowth of an air force officers' dinner in Vancouver five years ago, marking the 50th anniversary of the Royal Air Force.

There are 734 men on the mailing list, he said.

Among local men on hand were Frank Millard Ohrt of Sidney, he flew Camel Pups and after six months in action was shot down, spending the rest of the war in prison camp. There were 29 tunnel escapes from the camp, with 10 men getting back to England, he recalled.

Joe Fall, from Cobble Hill, joined the navy in Victoria and went to England in 1915 for training with the Royal Naval Air Service.

He fought the squadron of Baron Manfred von Richtofen, the German air ace better known today as the Red Barron, and also flew in Egypt.

Workers Vote Yes

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 150 workers at Labatts Breweries in New Westminster have voted 73 per cent in favor of a two-year contract that provides a total $1.10 an hour wage increase. The present base rate is $4.72 an hour.

Pity Poor Weed

LONDON (UPI) — Pity the poor dandelion.

Dandelions have become so rare in England that London's Kew Gardens is staging an exhibition of the weed.

Botanists said the widespread use of selective weed-killers has all but eliminated the dandelion from the gardens of English homes, and the flowers no longer flourish in the nation's meadows and pastures as they once did.

"It won't be long before we have children asking what a dandelion is," said a spokesman at Kew Gardens. "The day seems gone when the countryside was ablaze with yellow with the approach of spring."

Children visiting the exhibition can be forgiven if they think dandelions are something to eat or drink.

Signs inform visitors the dandelion's young leaves were used for salads in the lean post-war years in Germany, and that in England there was much to be said for a well-matured bottle of dandelion wine.

Conservationist groups have joined together in a "save-the-dandelion" campaign.

GET READY TO DUCK

A rap on the pate with a tile may be the fate of those using the reference and circulation departments of the Victoria Public Library on Blanshard.

In a report to the Greater Victoria Public Library board Tuesday library director Donald Miller describes these areas as "a danger to the public and staff".

Cause of the problem are loose ceiling tiles, which Miller says "have fallen on occasion".

The matter went not debated by the board but the $2,000 Miller estimates it will cost to restore overhead safety has not been included in this year's budget.

CANADIAN EXTENDS EINSTEIN'S THEORY

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Canadian physicist suggested Wednesday that somewhere in the universe there is a great "anti-galaxy" made up of particles that travel faster than the speed of light, seemingly in violation of Einstein's theory of relativity.

But Dr. B. B. Sinha said his theory extends Einstein's views to include something vastly different from "the ordinary matter of our world."

Einstein's theory, proposed in 1905, holds that "velocities greater than that of light (186,000 miles a second) . . . have no possibility of existence."

But Sinha told the American Physical Society that Einstein had in mind only the ordinary matter of the earth's Milky Way and other known galaxies.

Dr. Sinha of the University of Guelph, Ont., said that, years before Einstein proposed his theory, some scientists believed in the existence of particles moving faster than light "and a logical faith in such particles was revived in 1962 by others."

Since 1962, he said, search for such particles — called tachyons — has been going on in various parts of the world, but with negative and inconclusive results.

Sinha said the tachyon-hunters may be looking for the wrong kind of particles, and in the wrong places.

He said there might be an anti-galaxy made up of strange particles he calls jugomons.

These "anti-mass" particles would behave just the opposite of the ordinary mass particles of a galaxy, in that they would constantly be annihilating one another and then be restored by others.

To annihilate one another Sinha said, they would have to travel at speeds greater than that of light.

Not Like Old Two-Seater

"We like to think of it as the out-front backhouse," he added.

He said his company's version isn't flushable but it is recommended for church picnics.

Gordon MacKendrick, a distributor for Mobile WC, a Swedish invention, says his units are ideally suited for building sites and construction.

The three firms demonstrated their units after construction workers complained of the primitive and odoriferouse outhouses — Johnny-on-theSpot, Willie-at-Work and Jerry-on-the-Job — which are normally leased to contractors.

$6,000 Shot for Bureau

The Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau, due to go into liquidation in late September, will receive a $6,000 shot-in-the-arm.

The unexpected donation is the proceeds from the April 7-8 Be a Tourist in Your Own Town project in which eight tourist attraction companies and two bus firms took part.

Peter Tredgett of the Underseas Gardens, one of the organizers, said roughly 8,500 $1 tickets were sold and the money to be given the bureau is the amount left after all expenses were paid.

Tredgett said if each one on the tour had paid the normal price to see the attractions there would have been a total take of $127,500 because normal costs to each person would have been $15.

"That was quite a bargain for the people of Victoria."

Helping Tredgett organize the event were Mrs. William Prior of the Captain's Palace, Gerry Splatt of the Wax Museum and Al Frame of the Classic Car Museum.

Fashions Mix

Modern and Victorian era fashions will be seen in the Mayfair Fashion Show in the outside mall of Mayfair Shopping Centre May 25 and 26.

For 'Easy' Color It's Perennials

Herbaceous perennials are essential in a labor saving garden if color is wanted the easy way. Against a background of well chosen shrubs and climbers which also contribute flowers and foliage interest in their season, groups of favorite perennials serve a purpose far beyond the care they require.

Peonies are chosen by some gardeners, for two groups of three plants may be the only extra color needed for the whole April to November period in a small garden.

The early double peonies, varieties of Paeonia officinalis come into flower during May, their handsome leaves making color contribution from late March. One plant each of the red, pink and white soon increase to a size to give great effect as each color has its own weeks of bloom, yet they overlap a little.

These are followed by the mid-season doubles and semi-doubles, varieties of P. albiflora, if space permits. For later blooms, the second peony group will be of single flower varieties.

These resemble huge poppies, yet have a long lifespan for they close towards the end of the day, reopening in the sun next day. Colors of singles are also in the red, pink, white range. Flowering time is in June and July, according to variety.

Their splendidly durable leaves, splendid in both texture, shades and tones, provide russet, brown, and crimson to the fall garden. The tuberous roots increase when left undisturbed for many years. Plant in late September and during October.

At the other end of the size and general impact scale are the dainty Aquilegias, or old-fashioned Columbines, though the 20-year-old newer strains named McKana Giant Hybrids can scarcely be called old fashioned yet.

Their blossoms are large, with five spurs trailing behind the fluted chalice like jet streams behind a rocket. Colors are delightful. By careful selection from a packet of seed-grown plants, a gardener can have dainty pink, mauve, coral-red, creamy yellow, and combinations of these. Leaves are in airy sprays as dainty as the branched flowering stems rising above. In rich, humusy soil to hold moisture and a partially above. In rich, humusy soil to hold summer moisture and a partially shaded spot in the border, Columbines will bloom most of the summer.

A distinct change for flower color and general habit is Tradescantia virginiana (Spiderwort) native to eastern United States, perfectly winter hardy, requiring only a good soil with summer moisture. Dappled shade for afternoon keeps these plants flowering from May to September.

The flowers are three-petalled, opening violet blue from round green buds hanging in a cluster below the topmost narrow leaf on the stem. An odd effect is created by the horizontal jutting out of this leaf.

None of these three perennials need constant attention. Removal of old flowers, yes; constant division, no.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is a classic one in the field of "safety plays." When it arose some years ago in a team-of-four match, one of the two South declarers came up with the winning play. The other did not. It is your job, as a bridge detective, to find the mistake committed by the errant South declarer.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

Opening lead: Five of hearts.

At both tables, the final contract was three notrump, with South as declarer. In each case, West opened the five of hearts, and East's jack was captured by South's king. Then came a parting of the ways.

At the first table, declarer led the six of clubs at trick two, and when West followed with the three-spot, dummy's jack was inserted. As is evident, the jack won the trick. But with West still possessing a sure stopper in clubs, it became impossible for declarer to cash more than three club tricks.

When the deal was replayed, our second declarer led the six of clubs at trick two, and West again followed with the three-spot. But this South declarer did not insert dummy's jack. Instead, he played dummy's deuce!

With East failing to follow suit on the initial club lead, the club situation was now an open book. Declarer next led his remaining club and finessed dummy's jack with the assurance that the jack would win the trick. Six more club tricks — and ten tricks in all — were now there for the taking.

Our second South declarer played the hand correctly. Our first one did not. With the success of the contract being declarer's primary concern, our errant South declarer should have recognized that he needed six club tricks (not seven) to fulfill his contract. Therefore he should have set his sights on the best way of making six club tricks.

When West followed suit to the initial club lead, by playing dummy's deuce, South would be assured of making six club tricks. If East had won this trick with the nine-spot (in theory), there would now be but two clubs remaining. Upon regaining the lead, South would cash dummy's ace and king of clubs, to bring home his contract.

DUMMY ROBBER

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA, England (CP) — Essex police were stumped when they arrived at a clothes store only minutes after the burglar alarm went off.

Bundles of clothes lay in the doorway ready to be taken away yet there was no sign of the raider. But among the silent dummy witnesses in the window, a sharp-eyed copper spotted movement. The raider had frozen himself with the dummies in an attempt to foil the police. He was given a six-month suspended sentence.

Uganda Ousts Canadian Missionary

NAIROBI — A Canadian missionary and his wife have been ordered out of Uganda by the government of President Idi Amin. A United States missionary and his wife were also ordered to leave.

Rev. Hugh Layzwell of Vancouver and Rev. David Freeman of Seattle, Wash., were both served with deportation orders.

Mrs. Freeman, confirming the deportations to reporters, said in Kampala Wednesday, "We have no idea why we are being deported. We wish we did." Both she and Mrs. Layzwell are Canadians.

WASHINGTON —Dr. Albert B. Sabin says the research he has announced in the cancer-virus field constitutes his laboratory "swan song" after 46 years in the world of test-tubes which included developing the oral polio vaccine.

But Dr. Sabin said in an interview Wednesday that he intends to remain active in helping solve "problems of science policy and tactics."

Dr. Sabin, already world-famous as the developer of the widely-used live-virus polio vaccine, reported Tuesday that he and a colleague have linked the virus that causes cold sores to cancer.

LONDON — Princess Anne, reigning European three-day equestrian champion, was named Wednesday to the British team in the European championships at Kiev in September. But Lieut. Mark Phillips, the horseman whose name has been romantically linked with the princess, did not make it.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Dean Martin married his girlfriend of two years, Cathy Hawn, in a small ceremony Wednesday evening attended by close show-business friends, the bride's small daughter and four of Martin's children. "Best wedding I've ever been to," commented the easygoing singer afterwards. Frank Sinatra was the best man.

It was the third marriage for Martin, 55, who separated from his wife of 22 years, Jeanne Biegger, in 1969, and the second for Miss Hawn, 25. Her six-year-old daughter, Sasha, was the flower girl.

ORILLIA, Ont. — Don Bell of Montreal was named 1973 winner of the Stephen Leacock Memorial Medal of Honor Wednesday night for his book Saturday Night at the Bagel Factory. The award has been presented annually since 1947 for the best book of humor written in the previous year by a Canadian.

DON BELL
. . . Leacock winner

Bell's book is a collection of character sketches about lesser-known Montreal personalities. It describes their sometimes tragic yet more often comic lives.

MONTREAL — A psychiatrist testifed Wednesday that Larry Maxwell Stanford, charged with hijacking, was sane last Dec. 14 when a Quebecair jet was hijacked from Wabush, Nfld., to Montreal. Dr. Louis-Charles Daoust told a Court of Queen's Bench jury he examined Stanford eight days after the incident and he showed "no symptoms of mental disturbance" or "of previous mental disorders."

Dr. Colin Angliker testified earlier that Stanford's judgment was impaired and his plan to hijack the jet was his desperate plea for psychiatric help.

TOULOUSE, France — A young baron, guarding his father's unburied coffin, went into the 62nd day of a siege today after an appeals court promised a decision next month on whether his family must abandon its run-down manor. Now armed with a mortar, Baron Jean Louis de Portal, 21, continued to refuse to bury his father Leonce, who died at 89 March 27. The body was being kept in a coffin in one of the 29 rooms of the house at Saint Nauphary. The court said its decision would come May 16. But there was no indication whether De Portal and his sister, Agnes, 22, would abandon the house if the court ruled against them.

LONDON — A British author said today the famed Loch Ness monster is a ghost.

The latest theory on one of Britain's most enduring mysteries was offered by ghost-hunter Frederick Holiday in a book titled The Dragon and the Disc, which was published today.

Holiday says the monster, affectionately known as "Nessie," was actually a manifestation of a spirit or ghosts.

The theory is a turnabout for Holiday, who wrote a book five years ago supporting the theory of a live, flesh-and-blood monster in the depths of Loch Ness, a long and narrow lake near Inverness, Scotland.

He said he changed his mind because all the expeditions to catch the creature in recent years have failed.

BELLEVILLE, Ill. — A five-year-old girl allegedly hidden by her maternal grandparents in a three-year custody dispute has been returned to her father after the state's attorney raided the grandparents' rural home and found the child in a closet.

"The little girl said she had only been out of the house one day since she's been there," said St. Clair County State's Attorney Robert H. Rice.

Rice said the child had been hidden from her father, David Gallegos, by the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Tarr, since the child's mother died three years ago.

"Coming back to our office we passed a school playground and she was amazed to see children. The kids on TV were probably the only ones she remembers ever seeing," he added.

LONDON — Bob Fould, a 28-year-old civil servant, retained his title Wednesday as Britain's champion pipe smoker. Foulds smoked a pipe of rough-cut tobacco for 121 minutes, 16 seconds and 121 minutes, 16 seconds and won a $2,480 prize.

NUDE SCENE ON TV DRAWS HIGH RATINGS

NEW YORK (AP) — Ratings on the Ingmar Bergman teleplay The Lie, which included a nude scene, shown on the CBS network Tuesday night, indicate it was seen by 30 million Americans with "sensational" ratings in New York and Los Angeles, a network spokesman said Wednesday.

Only three stations — in Knoxville, Tenn.; Burlington, Vt., and Tulsa, Okla. — notified the network in advance they were not showing the film because of a partially nude bedroom scene, the spokesman said.

However, there were indications that other stations cancelled at the last minute.

250th N-Blast Underground

YUCCA FLAT, Nev. (UPI) — U.S. scientists Wednesday triggered the 250th announced underground nuclear test explosion since the United States and Russia agreed in 1963 to ban tests in the atmosphere.

The explosive device, code named "Angus," was buried 1,486 feet beneath the desert at this Nevada testing ground. The explosion was related to weapons development and had a force of less than 200,000 tons of TNT, the Atomic Energy Commission said.

Britain a Leg-Watcher's Paradise

LONDON (UPI) — British girls, according to a survey released today, have the loveliest legs in Europe. The surveyors — just by coincidence — were British.

Seamus Mahar, a 28-year-old marketing executive, reported that a 20-man team checked the legs of 2,000 girls in European countries to test prospects for a new brand of leg cosmetics.

French girls drew praise for their "atractively athletic legs, but the team found the legs of German girls less than wunderbar—indeed, it said they were "muscular and hairy."

JETS STAY IN STORAGE BUT NOT CONTROVERSY

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The national defence department has approximately $81,000,000 worth of its CF-5 aircraft in storage as the military wrestles with the embarrassing problem of finding uses for all its small versatile jet fighter-reconnaisance aircraft order in 1965.

The department has a surplus of the planes. It is evidence of the vagaries of defence procurement. It was ordered as a multiple purpose aircraft to be used for ground support, an attack role, or photo reconnaissance.

Originally it was estimated the department would require about 90 of the planes. That order was bumped up to 115 when it was found that Canadair, Montreal required an order of over 100 planes to justify it going into production of the aircraft.

Answers to written questions submitted to the house of commons by Douglas Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) disclosed that the defence department has actually purchased 135 of the planes.

The Canadian government managed to sell 20 of the jets to Venezuela in a package deal estimated to be worth about $40 million December, 1971.

Six of the CF-5s originally purchased by the department have crashed, according to Rowland and he is informed that 18 of the new planes purchased are at Canadair Ltd. in Montreal awaiting delivery.

What has Rowland puzzled is that the defence department had a surplus of the planes on hand when it managed to sell the 20 to Venezuela. Then it turned around and orrered another 20 new CF-5s from Canadair to replace the aircraft sold to Venezuela.

Why? He wants to know when the department could not find uses for the large number it had on hand and now has 45 of them in storage.

Purchase of the CF-5 by the Canadian department in 1965 when Paul Hellyer was defence minister in L. B. Pearson's Liberal government aroused a controversy as to whether it was a suitable plane for Canada's forces. Controversy has swirled about it ever since.

Ford LTD Brougham 2-Door Hardtop

Ford Galaxie 500 4-Door Hardtop

The 1973 Ford LTD won Motor Trend Magazine's award for full-size Sedan of the Year. In giving Ford the award, they said: "The clincher was Ford's stock in trade, a super-quiet interior with isolation from road noise."

And the 1973 Ford was given Road Test's Car of the Year award. Road Test said of the '73 Ford that it was: "The finest family car to be found at it's price in the showroom today." Whether buying or leasing see your Ford Dealer.

Ford's famous Front Room has stretch-out space even for six-footers. Full-length door armrests, plush color-keyed carpeting all add up to a new level of luxury for the big Fords. (Galaxie 500 interior illustrated.)

A new glovebox that's larger than that in any of Ford's standard-size competitors.

All 1973 Fords include strong steel guard rails in the side doors, protective inner fenders that help fight rust and corrosion, and an energy absorbing bumper system.

Full Prisons Spur Building Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Faced with a surge in prison population, the penitentiaries service has reluctantly decided it must proceed with a building program.

John Braithwaite, deputy commissioner, said in an interview Wednesday the decision was taken after close study showed that such things as trailer units, forestry camps and minimum security institutions would not be enough to cope with the load.

He gave no time frame or cost estimates for the program, which he said the service decided on as a "reluctant last resort." But he did say it would involve smaller prisons that could be converted to other needs in the future.

Braithwaite said the federal prison population jumped a startling 13 per cent in a year, well above the annual rise of about four per cent that had held for almost 25 years.

The deputy commissioner said it is too early to say whether a new trend has developed or to give precise reasons for the surge.

But he did have these suggestions for contributory causes:

● Judges are reacting to public concern over certain crimes, for instance drug offences, with stiffer sentences.

● In the old days prisoners left institutions at the end of their sentences. Now one-quarter of sentences are served outside prison under supervision. Those who violate the regulations of this early release are sent back to prison, to expand the population.

● The parole board has clamped down on paroles in the face of rising public criticism over crimes committed by parolees and those on temporary absence from prison. There were 621 fewer paroles — from a total of 3,385 — granted last year than the year before.

● Police could be becoming more efficient in catching criminals.

The service looks to the day when Kingston, St. Vincent de Paul and eventually British Columbia Penitentiary at New Westminster can be retired to museum status.

To Parade In Vancouver

About 150 cadets from 89 (Pacific) Squadron and 676 (Kinsmen) Sidney Squadron will travel to Vancouver Sunday for the annual inspection and wing ceremonial parade at 2 p.m. at Seaforth Armoury.

For the past three years the Sidney Squadron has been the top squadron in B.C. No other squadron has ever held top place three years in a row.

Vancouver Mayor Art Phillips will inspect the squadrons. Other squadrons participating are from Vancouver, Mission, Haney, Chilliwack, Delta, Coquitlam, Whalley, Burnaby, North Burnaby, New Westminster and Richmond.

CITY GALLERY CHEQUES STOLEN

Cheques from Murdoch's Galleries in Victoria were among a large number of company cheques stolen after a break-in at Bank Cheque Supply Ltd., in Vancouver, the Victoria police fraud squad warned Wednesday.

Bank Cheque Supply Ltd. supplies cheques to many banks and companies in B.C. and all cheques carry the names of various companies.

Police said the Murdoch's cheques are numbered 101 to 175 inclusive and drawn on the Canadian-Imperial Bank of Commerce at Fort and Cook.

Peterson's Hearing Aid Co., of 94 Commercial, in Nanaimo was the only other Vancouver Island company affected.

Other firms are: Jetes Lumber Co., W. F. Bryant and Associates and Buzzes Fast Foods Ltd., all of Vancouver; The Skwah Indian Band, Chilliwack; Argus Mail Order, of Mission; Dave Stobbe Construction, Kamloops; East Kootenay Motors, Cranbrook; Neptune Underwater Recovery, Amstrong; Blue Ribbon Freezer Food Service, Edmonton; F. Wahl Construction, Medicine Hat; Simpson Bros. Sawmills, Manning and W. L. Wire Co., Estevan.

Businesses have also been warned that a series of $50 and $100 American Express travellers' cheques worth a total of $24,010 were stolen during a recent Texas bank holdup.

FLIGHT CUT PROTEST BID

Victoria businessmen were urged Wednesday to protest Air Canada's decision to eliminate its 7:15 a.m. flight out of Victoria, effective Sunday.

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce transportation committee chairman Jack McKernan said the federal ministry of transport has already been told of the chamber's concern but further action might be necessary because the cutback is due Sunday.

The 7:15 a.m. flight permitted Victorians to catch an early CP Air flight out of Vancouver for Toronto. Now the earliest trip out of Victoria will be 8:15 a.m., which can connect only with an Air Canada flight to Toronto.

Businessmen heading for Toronto wanted to leave as early as possible because at 7:15 a.m. in Victoria it was already 10:15 a.m. in Ontario.

McKernan told a meeting of the chamber at The Empress that Vancouver Island needs better transportation links to the mainland — not cutbacks.

He said chamber will continue to campaign for restoration of the 7:15 a.m. flight and urged businessmen to support the drive.

On Sunday, Air Canada will cut back its service from nine flights to three flights per day to Vancouver. At the same time Pacific Western Airlines will increase from three to seven flights.

Air Canada will use DC-9 jets and PWA will use 737 jets and Convair prop-jets. Total flights will be reduced from 12 to 10 but total seating capacity will increase from 1,264 daily to 1,532.

Air Canada will retire its Viscounts from the run on Sunday.

Que. Sending 245 to Study English at UVic

Residence life at the University of Victoria this summer is going to be a bilingual affair.

The province of Quebec is sending 245 students to study English in UVic's English Institute, an intensive seven-week residential language school just being set up.

And at the same time, July 3 to Aug. 17, the dorms will be housing 80 students attending La Maison Francaise, a residential language school for people learning to speak French.

"We had agreed to accept 45 students," she said. "Then the province of Quebec phoned and asked us if we'd like to take on 200."

The original 45 will be financed by the federally-funded summer language bursary program; the extra 200 are being sent by the Quebec government.

The two language groups will be apart most of the time taking classes, but once and a while they'll all get together, said Senior.

The question is, what language will they speak? Senior said plans are either to alternate, having English one day and French the next, or to insist that each group speak whatever isn't its native tongue.

A third group will also be in residence — 33 Japanese students who spend three weeks on campus, starting July 7, learning English and then spend several more weeks living with a B.C. family.

The English Institute program will be different from La Maison Francaise, which was started in 1965, said Dr. Henry Warkentyne, UVic linguistics professor who is director of the institute.

La Maison Francaise students are kept cloistered away for their seven-week program so that an "ambiance francaise" can be created, unaffected by the English culture around it.

Three of the teachers are from Quebec, the other three are local people whose native tongue is French. There are also five young monitors — three from Quebec, one from France, one from Martinique — who will live with the students and organize social activities.

The English Institute students, however, will be exposed to as much of Victoria as possible, said Warkentyne, as Victoria is an ideal place to learn English.

They will have 16 instructors and 16 monitors.

Senior said she hasn't yet learned what age the Quebec students will be, or how much English they know already.

In La Maison Francaise, 55 of the 80 students will be financed by summer language bursaries which means they are full-time high school or university students.

The others are teachers and interested adults of all ages.

VICTORIA SINGERS COMPETE IN TACOMA

Victoria's City of Gardens Chapter of Sweet Adelines Incorporated will take part in a chorus and quartet competition Friday and Saturday at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash.

They will compete for marks based on music, sound, expression and showmanship before a panel of eight judges. This year 31 choruses and 21 quartets have entered the event.

The Victoria chapter's quartet, The Pepsichords, will take part in the quartet competition. Members are Mrs. Lois Klaasen, lead; Mrs. Irene Moore, tenor; Mrs. Raike, baritone, and Mrs. Norma Alexander, bass.

9 IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTONE, Edith. In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, passed away April 26, 1972.
Death came stealing over her pillow
At the waning of the day
Without a sigh or a murmur
Silently she passed away
Without a farewell spoken
To hear her voice, to see her smile
To sit and talk with her awhile
To be together in the same old way
Would be our dearest wish today
Others are taken, yes we know
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Sadly missed by Husband John, Jim, Arlene and Grandchildren.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Down-to-Earth Facts About Skin

In the past I have spoken favorably in this column about books on the skin by Dr. I. I. Lubowe, Now a new book has come out by Dr. Lubowe, with H. L. Ober, entitled The Modern Guide to Skin Care and Beauty.

Dr. Lubowe, an expert on drugs, has practiced medicine for 40 years. He has been a much-honored professor of skin diseases, and he has written several books on the care of the skin and the hair.

This book can be of great help not only to physicians, but to laymen who are much worried by skin troubles. He tells of some things that can be done to relieve baldness, acne, psoriasis and other skin troubles.

Dr. Lubowe tells some down-to-earth facts about such cosmetics as underarm deodorants; he says, the term, perspiration odor, is misleading, because recent research has shown that perspiration itself is odorless.

The odor comes from the bacteria that thrive in moist body areas such as the armpits and genital and anal region. Many people have noticed that children and older people seldom have body odors unless they do not frequently bathe. This is because they have no underarm or genital hair to trap moisture.

Experts now know, also, that there are two types of sweating; the kind caused by heat alone does not usually create much odor; but the sweat released by anxiety or nervous tension does have a strong odor.

He says that the most effective prevention of body odor is simply proper and frequent bathing, daily changes of undergarments, regularly cleaned outer garments, and if possible, a daily change of shoes.

Dr. Lubowe does have a good discussion of the various antiseptic soaps and anti-perspirants on the market today, and their advantages and disadvantages. In another chapter, Dr. Lubowe has a list of the ingredients used in cosmetics that have been found to cause allergic reactions. This should be helpful to women who get a "contact dermatitis" from a new cosmetic or perfumed soap or shampoo.

8 CARD OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to Dr. H. J. Helmlich; Dr. V. G. Friesen, heart specialist; Dr. Scholkel, and the nurses at Royal Jubilee Hospital. I want my friends and relatives to know I appreciate every act of kindness, the messages of sympathy. I especially would thank Reverend B. Molloy.—Jack P. Jensen.

9 IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTONE, Edith. In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, passed away April 26, 1972.
Death came stealing over her pillow
At the waning of the day,
Without a sigh or a murmur
Silently she passed away
Without a farewell spoken
To hear her voice, to see her smile
To sit and talk with her awhile
To be together in the same old way
Would be our dearest wish today
Others are taken, yes we know
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Sadly missed by Husband John, Jim, Arlene and Grandchildren.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Down-to-Earth Facts About Skin

In the past I have spoken favorably in this column about books on the skin by Dr. I. I. Lubowe, Now a new book has come out by Dr. Lubowe, with H. L. Ober, entitled The Modern Guide to Skin Care and Beauty.

Dr. Lubowe, an expert on drugs, has practiced medicine for 40 years. He has been a much-honored professor of skin diseases, and he has written several books on the care of the skin and the hair.

This book can be of great help not only to physicians, but to laymen who are much worried by skin troubles. He tells of some things that can be done to relieve baldness, acne, psoriasis and other skin troubles.

Dr. Lubowe tells some down-to-earth facts about such cosmetics as underarm deodorants; he says, the term, perspiration odor, is misleading, because recent research has shown that perspiration itself is odorless.

The odor comes from the bacteria that thrive in moist body areas such as the armpits and genital and anal region. Many people have noticed that children and older people seldom have body odors unless they do not frequently bathe. This is because they have no underarm or genital hair to trap moisture.

Experts now know, also, that there are two types of sweating; the kind caused by heat alone does not usually create much odor; but the sweat released by anxiety or nervous tension does have a strong odor.

He says that the most effective prevention of body odor is simply proper and frequent bathing, daily changes of undergarments, regularly cleaned outer garments, and if possible, a daily change of shoes.

Dr. Lubowe does have a good discussion of the various antiseptic soaps and anti-perspirants on the market today, and their advantages and disadvantages. In another chapter, Dr. Lubowe has a list of the ingredients used in cosmetics that have been found to cause allergic reactions. This should be helpful to women who get a "contact dermatitis" from a new cosmetic or perfumed soap or shampoo.

Police Give Half To City Charity

Victoria Police Union will receive 20 per cent of gross receipts from a circus show to be staged in the city May 5 and 6.

Half of the union's income from the show will go to charities, which, in the past, included Queen Alexandra Solarium, G. R. Pearkes Clinic, the City Police Youth Band and Victoria Boys' Club.

Figures provided at the request of the board of police commissioners and filed at the commission's regular meeting Wednesday showed that in five years of participating in the circus show the police union has donated $15,968 to charity and has received $15,281 for itself.

Mayor Peter Pollen, commission chairman, criticized union sponsorship of the circus earlier this year as inappropriate in the light of current police salaries.

CRITICAL

He was also critical of a sales campaign conducted on behalf of the union by Canadian Dominion Productions Ltd., producers of Canadian International Circus.

The figures showed that of the 50 per cent share received by the sponsor, most goes on the cost bringing in the show and staging the sales campaign.

Mayor Pollen was not available for comment on the information today.

Shooting Hearing Begins

Howard McGee, 819 Condor, is charged with the attempted murder of 27-year-old Charles Scarr, of 101 Island Highway, on Jan. 23.

McGee was arrested following a gun incident at his Esquimalt home, in which Scarr was shot in the stomach.

The preliminary is likely to be adjourned to May 2 for continuation, Crown prosecutor Cecil Branson said today.

Suicide Jury Criticizes Liquor Rules

DUNCAN — Tighter controls of liquor sales to minors was recommended Tuesday by a coroner's jury after it found that Archie Jimmy, 17, took his own life.

He was found hanging in a carport on Boys Road at about 8 a.m., Jan. 5.

Evidence showed the youth had purchased liquor at Duncan and was impaired on the day he committed suicide.

It was also disclosed the boy had tried to commit suicide at Mill Bay about three or four years earlier and at that time he had been saved by a friend.

NOTICE TO TENDERERS
CITY OF DUNCAN

Mr. G. M. Berry, City Administrator,
City of Duncan,
281 Canada Avenue,
DUNCAN, B.C.

will be received up to 12 noon, Pacific Standard Time, May 7, 1973.

The approximate quantities involved are:

—1200 square yards of concrete sidewalks and related works.

Copies of the Drawings and Specifications may be obtained from the offices of the Consulting Engineers or the City of Duncan upon a deposit of $30.00 by cheque made payable to the Consulting Engineers. The deposits will be refunded if the plans and specifications are returned within two (2) weeks of the closing of Tenders.

Tenders must be accompanied by a Certified Cheque or a Bid Bond in the amount of ten (10%) percent of the Tender Price, payable to the Corporation of the City of Duncan.

Tenderers are also requested to supply a Consent of Surety Form in the amount of fifty percent (50%) of the Contract Sum.

The Owner reserves the right to waive informalities in, or reject any or all Tenders, or to accept the Tender deemed most favourable in the interest of the Owner.

G. M. BERRY,
City Administrator.

Education Ministers To Meet

Education ministers from the 10 provinces will meet Friday in Victoria for a regular gathering of the Council of Ministers of Education.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said today the meeting will start at 9 a.m. at the Empress Hotel. Chairing the meeting will be Saul Millar, Manitoba's minister of colleges and university affairs.

Dailly said it will be the first full scale plenary session of the council to be held in B.C. It will be followed by a meeting of the body's executive committee Friday night.

A statement from the council is expected at the conclusion of the conference, which will discuss common public school and post-secondary education problems.

Death Hearing Adjourned

The preliminary hearing on the non-capital murder charge against Jo-Ann Brenda Anderson, 17, of 4060 Cedar Hill Crossroad, was adjourned until May 2 in provincial court Wednesday.

The charge followed the March 9 stabbing death of the girl's mother, Mrs. Shirley Lorraine Anderson, 38.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of Expropriation of Sanitary Sewer Easement over part of Lot 3, Plan 3010, Section 11, Range 2 West, South Saanich District. Schedule A and B of By-Law Number 388 hereinto set out below, are available for inspection at the office of the Municipal Clerk during the hours of 9.00 a.m. and 5.00 p.m. on any weekday.

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF CENTRAL SAANICH
BY-LAW NO. 386
A BY-LAW
TO AUTHORIZE THE EXPROPRIATION OF CERTAIN EASEMENTS AND RIGHTS-OF-WAY FOR THE PURPOSE OF CONSTRUCTING, OPERATING AND MAINTAINING SEWAGE FACILITIES.

WHEREAS by By-Law No. 322, The Corporation of the District of Central Saanich established a municipal sewerage enterprise to be responsible, inter alia, for the construction of sewerage works, equipment and facilities within the Municipality;

AND WHEREAS it is necessary for the construction, operation and maintenance of sewage facilities within the said Municipality to expropriate the easements and rights-of-way hereinafter described—

NOW THEREFORE the Municipal Council of The Corporation of the District of Central Saanich enacts as follows:

1. Pursuant to Section 531 (4), but subject to the restrictions contained in Division 4, Part XIII, of the "Municipal Act", Chapter 255, R.S.B.C. 1960 and amendments, the Municipal Council of The Corporation of the District of Central Saanich hereby expropriates Easements and Rights-of-Way in, upon, under and across each of the lands shown outlined in red in Schedule "B" hereto for the purpose and to the extent set out in the Draft Agreement attached as Schedule "A" hereto and for such purpose is hereby authorized and empowered by its servants to enter upon and to break up, take, enter into possession of and use the said lands shown outlined in Red in Schedule "B" hereto and therein called "the right-of-way", without the consent of the owners of the land.
2. This By-Law may be cited for all purposes as the "Sewer Easement Expropriation By-Law, 1973, No. 1".

READ for a first time this sixteenth day of April 1973.
READ for a second time this sixteenth day of April 1973.
READ for a third time this sixteenth day of April 1973.
RECONSIDERED, FINALLY PASSED AND ADOPTED, Signed by the Mayor and Clerk and sealed with the Seal of The Corporation on the 19th day of April A.D. 1973.

A. M. Galbraith, Mayor. F. B. Durrand, Clerk.

I HEREBY CERTIFY the foregoing is a true and correct copy of By-Law No. 386 cited as the "Sewer Easement Expropriation By-Law 1973 No. 1" as adopted by Council on the Nineteenth day of April 1973. Dated at Saanichton this 19th day of April, 1973.

OIL FIRMS HIKE EAST PRICES

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. announced Wednesday it has increased the price of its main products by one cent a gallon in areas east of the Ottawa Valley.

Shell Canada Ltd. said today it also will be increasing the prices of its products east of the Ottawa Valley but the amount of the increase and the timing are still undecided.

Meanwhile, John Coleman, chief of Maryland's gasoline tax division, said Wednesday that, despite claims of a shortage by major distributors, there was more gasoline in the state last December than in the previous year.

"Judging from our figures there is no shortage in Maryland and we have no evidence there will be a shortage," said Coleman. "The only place we hear there will be one is from the major fuel companies."

Harry Waller, owner of seven small stations in the Baltimore area, said, "they're playing games, pure and simple. The major companies are out to kill the independent guys and increase their own pocketbooks."

In Ohio, the East Toledo division of Sun Oil Co. said it will ration gasoline this summer.

The company said dealers in the Toledo area will be given 90 per cent of their projected need. He said further cuts could be made in the next few months.

Joey Will Join China Commune

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Smallwood says he's so impressed with China he's going to join a Chinese commune—perhaps this fall.

The 72-year-old former Newfoundland Liberal premier said in an interview here Wednesday he was so taken with China on a visit last year he will join a commune "for several months at least."

"I'll work with my hands in the fields," he said. "I'll do any of the jobs required of me as a full-fledged member of a commune. I'll be able to attend all the commune meetings, to listen—and talk, too."

He was in a sprightly mood as, fresh from writing his memoirs—300,000 words for a 600-page book—he talked at his publishers, Macmillan Co. of Canada.

"If I were 10 years younger, I would want to settle down for two or three years in China to help them build the society they are building," said the man who brought Newfoundland into Canada in 1949.

He said Mao's cultural revolution, which rocked China several years ago, was necessary to prevent the creation of a new aristocratic class of professors, doctors and officials.

"They sent the college professors out to clear the latrines — they got the dirtiest jobs until they understood that everyone was the same."

"I'm excited about China — they are working like Trojans with incredible devotion, love and affection. There's nothing more ludicrous than saying the Chinese are being bludgeoned into submission."

Smallwood added "for no moment have I been a Communist" but "we are shipmates tonight with the greatest revolutionary change in the world, now or in the past," and he called Chairman Mao Tse Tung of China the "greatest practising revolutionary in the history of man."

Copper Smelter Start This Year

By ALAN FORREST
Times Staff

Construction of a long-awaited copper smelter in British Columbia is expected to begin this year, the Times learned today.

G. H. D. Hobbs, president of Cominco Ltd., said in an interview an agreement in principle had been reached with the provincial government for Cominco to build a $20 million smelter near its fertilizer complex at Kimberley.

The project would be completed in 18 months and would have a capacity of 70,000 tons of copper per year.

Hobbs said the company would make an official announcement of the project "very soon."

He said: "There are no contentious matters outstanding between ourselves and the provincial government. They are as anxious to begin this project as we are."

Provincial Mines Minister Leo Nimsick was not available for comment. He had said earlier he was hopeful the province and Cominco would soon come to terms on the proposed smelter.

Construction of a copper smelter is a high priority for the New Democratic Party government which came to power on a pledge to convert British Columbia's economy to secondary processing and manufacturing and reduce export of raw materials.

Hobbs said the smelter would be available to any company wishing to supply concentrate.

The fertilizer plant would be used to absorb sulphuric acid used in the smelter and would reduce or eliminate the sulphur smell, a major air pollutant.

Hobbs said he was not concerned about provincial anti-pollution standards because the company's technology had advanced to the stage where it believed it can run an operation virtually pollution-free.

"The company would not be proceeding with this project if we thought there might be a pollution problem," he said.

Proximity of the fertilizer plant will greatly reduce costs of the smelter.

Normally, to construct a new smelter from nothing would cost between $50 million and $70 million, he said.

"In effect we are expanding our present facilities in Kimberley."

The $20 million, however, was just a ballpark figure, he said.

"It should be about $20 million. And I cannot define precisely when the project is likely to begin. We are still in negotiation. But it will be very soon. It will start this year."

He said negotiations are continuing with the federal government as well to obtain a grant under the Department

BRINK'S MEN SURRENDER

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of Brink's Canada Ltd., wanted for a $700,000 theft from the security company's Saint John, N.B., office, surrendered today to Toronto police.

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne of the Metropolitan Toronto police announced that Leslie Dominey, 32, and Melvin Edward Downs, 36, gave themselves up shortly after midnight.

"A large sum of money . . . a considerable amount over $600,000 was recovered," said Supt. Payne.

The money was recovered from a large suitcase, he said.

Supt. Payne said the men were being held for officials of the Saint John police department expected to arrive this afternoon.

The theft occurred during the weekend after two employees of Brink's Saint John branch had collected the Saturday collections from supermarkets, liquor outlets and other stores.

And Now TV Poll Rigged

By BOB WOODWARD and CARL BERNSTEIN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon's re-election committee rigged Washington television station WTTG's poll on the public's response to the President's decision to mine Haiphong Harbor last year by sending 2,000 — 4,000 phony ballots to the station.

The Metromedia station asked its viewers last May to send in cards indicating whether they agreed or disagreed with the mining decision and placed a sample ballot in newspaper ads. The final result of the poll as announced by the station was 5,157 viewers agreeing with the president and 1,158 disagreeing.

One former Nixon committee official said Wednesday that committee employees sent in at least 4,000 of th responses agreeing with the president, which would have completely distorted the poll's results.

Another official DeVan L. Shumway, spokesman for the Nixon re-election committee, confirmed the effort but said the committee sent in only "about 2,000 ballots and responses."

James Dooley, former head of mail room at the Nixon committee, said Wednesday committee workers were sent to buy about 1,000 newspapers from which the ballots were clipped and sent to the television station. In addition, Dooley said, 2,000 postcards were filled out and mailed in — all showing total support of the president.

"Work ground to a halt in the press office while everyone filled out 15 post cards," Dooley, 19, said in an interview. "Ten people worked for several days buying different kinds of stamps and postcards and getting different handwriting to fake the responses."

Asked to comment on the tampering with the poll, Ed Turner, news director for Metromedia, said: "I think it's a most unfortunate abuse of an honest attempt to survey public opinion."

Nixon committee spokesman Shumway said: "When you're involved in an election, you do what you can. That type of voluntary poll is the most stackable type thing. We assumed the other side would do it also. On that assumption we proceeded. I don't know if the other side did."

Frank Mankiewicz, a top official in the Democratic presidential campaign of Sen. George S. McGovern, said that "we didn't do it. It didn't occur to us. Jesus, these guys (the Nixon committee) are something. They assume we have the same sleazy ethics as theirs."

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that the Nixon committee also conducted a campaign last May to distort the over-all view of the U.S. public's response to the mining.

That effort included paying for telegrams supporting the president to be sent to the White House and the placing

Reds Ring City

Times News Service

PHNOM PENH — Cambodian insurgents have overrun a string of weakly-defended government positions across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh and now control a long stretch of the east bank parallelling the capital city, refugees from the area said today.

Phnom Penh was also menaced from the west. More than 20 rockets hit the airport 2½ miles west of the capital and an adjoining shantytown crowded with refugees early today, killing 19 persons and wounding 62.

Reuter news agency said 24 persons were killed and 55 wounded.

No aircraft were damaged, but one rocket killed an officer and wounded seven soldiers at the entrance to the military part of the airfield.

The assaults across the rivers are the closest the anti-government forces have struck to the capital since Viet Cong sappers raided northern Phnom Penh Oct. 7.

Heavy ground fighting was also reported in areas six, nine and 11 miles from Phnom Penh as the Communists slowly tried to close a noose on the city. The military situation was reported as "critical" in some of these outer defense areas.

U.S. fighter-bombers and B-52s heavily bombed the Communist-held area Wednesday and again this morning in the 50th consecutive day of such attacks while thousands of Phnom Penh residents watched from the river bank.

Baby Bonus Boost Seen By Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial backing for proposed changes in the social security system practically guarantees a boost in family allowance payments by next Jan. 1, Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

Legislation that would roughly triple to $20 the average monthly payment to children will be introduced in the Commons within weeks, he told reporters after the opening session of a three-day federal-provincial welfare minister's meeting.

All provinces agreed in their opening position statements with recent federal suggestions to increase family allowances and modify Canada Pension Plan provisions.

Further word on the pension changes came today with the statement that legislation probably will be introduced in the Commons next fall following further high level talks.

Under recently proposed federal suggestions to revamp pensions, the two-per-cent escalation limit on CPP increases would be dropped.

As a result, there appeared nothing to prevent an increase from the current average $7.21 a month per child in family allowance payments by the federal target date of Jan. 1.

B.C. welfare minister Normen Levi suggested Canada should take a "real initiative" and come up with a plan to provide all orphans, regardless of race, culture or nationality, with a family of their own.

In a short position paper, buried in a mass of disserations on ways and means to rework the country's welfare system, the B.C. government said there are "growing numbers of families" who want to adopt children.

"While adoption is a matter that falls within provincial jurisdiction, the existing legislation could reasonably be amended to accord uniformity across our boundaries to make for a singular approach to international adoption proceedings," the paper said.

It suggested the federal government set up a study group to come up with a uniform method of dealing with international adoptions, establish and inter-provincial agency to "expedite and facilitate inter-country and inter-

Police Raid Broker

MONTREAL (CP) Inspectors from the provincial department of financial institutions and RCMP officers Wednesday raided the offices of Onyx Investments Ltd. and L. J. Forget and Co. Ltd., a Montreal-based brokerage firm.

At the same time, the Quebec Securities Commission suspended the brokerage firm's registration and stopped trading in eight stocks on the Montreal stock market.

In a separate move, the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges have suspended the brokerage firm's membership "in view of the failure of the member firm to conform to the exchange requirements."

In recent weeks, stocks involving either Onyx or L. J. Forget have accounted for about 50 per cent of trading on the CSE and for about one-third of combined trading on the two Montreal exchanges.

Pirate Yukon Station Kidnaps Playoff TV

Times News Services

ROSS RIVER, Y.T. — The 300 residents of this isolated mountain mining community have "kidnapped" a CBC television signal in time for the Stanley Cup play-offs.

And they face the wrath and full weight of the law from the federal and territorial governments, The Canadian Radio-Television Commission or the CBC.

Calling it Radio Free Ross River, the people erected their own relay station to snare a legal signal from Faro, 40 miles away.

The people claim they are willing to pay the price, which could include fines or jail, to keep the station alive.

Ross River is about 150 miles north of Whitehorse, the territorial capital, in the heart of the Yukon mining country, and prior to the private TV relay station had no radio or television service.

Its residents have been battling bureaucrats and red tape for years in an effort to get television into their community, but with a marked lack of success. The final straw was when the federal government's multi-million-dollar Anik northern communications satellite went into orbit at the New Year, bringing northern communities with more than 500 residents live television for the first time.

Ross River missed the boat because it was 200 people short of the criteria set for construction of legal TV relay facilities, and the CBC wasn't allowed to build a relay station here.

The problem was especially vexing to millionaire mining prospector Al Kulan of Ross River—once the proud owner of the only Rolls-Royce limousine in the Yukon. He's a hockey fan and has had a color TV set sitting in his living room collecting dust for several years in anticipation of the advent of TV service.

When he learned that Ross River wouldn't be joining the Anik network, he took the matter up with some engineering and electronics experts in Whitehorse.

They established a company known as Total North Communications, and bankrolled by Mr. Kulan, started shopping for a suitable peak, mountain-hopping by helicopter.

NASTY DEAL REPRIMAND

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald today criticized Canadian forces personnel who took part in "Operation Nasty Deal," which resulted in soldiers with rifles entering a local tavern as part of an army exercise.

Macdonald said, however, that he will not intervene in his capacity as attorney-general and ask that criminal charges be laid against any soldiers.

The attorney-general was referring to an exercise which originated from CFB Esquimalt. Two civilian employees of Chew Excavating Ltd. were held at gunpoint April 2 while working at HMC Dockyard.

They were released, they said, after two hours.

The following day, two soldiers armed with rifles entered Tudor House beer parlor in Esquimalt and stood at attention at each of two entrances. They apparently had been pursuing two other soldiers who had gone into the pub for a beer while the exercise was taking place.

"This was an exercise in which the army boys exhibited some bad judgment and a great deal in the way of animal spirits," Macdonald said.

He said the two civilian employees — Hans Gajowski and Jose Maceiras — have not asked that charges be laid against the soldiers who subjected them to false imprisonment, "and I rather congratulate them for that decision."

"They have made their protest and the matter has gone to the higher echelons of the army so that I hope that it will never happen again. I feel pretty sure that the army has learned a lesson in this respect," he said.

Maddonald added that reprimands have gone forward through the army. "They know that we regard this with some seriousness and I feel that it will not be repeated," he said.

The attorney-general said reports he has received on the incidents indicate that the patrons of the Tudor House were "badly scared" at the presence of the armed soldiers.

"I am happy to know that the battle of Tudor House ended without effusion of blood," he said.

"Operation Nasty Deal" was originally intended by the forces to have been a week-long exercise. It was called off after about four days and the commandant apologized for inconveniencing the public.

Benson Scandal Hinted

OTTAWA (CP) — While a cabinet minister in 1968, Edgar Benson gave the accounting firm in which he had been a partner a two-year contract to audit the government-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

CMHC records reveal that Benson, as minister responsible for housing between January and April, 1968, gave the contract to a member of the Kingston, Ont., firm of England, McPherson.

Benson was a partner in the firm from 1952 to June 29, 1964, when he first joined the cabinet as revenue minister. He was appointed president of the Canadian transport commission last September.

Asked Wednesday whether he had appointed the firm during that period, Benson said he could not recall.

"It's possible. I'm not sure."

But authoritative sources confirmed the appointment was made by the former minister.

Officials refuse to disclose the value of the auditing contract, considered a confidential business arrangement.

Industry sources say, however, that the price of an annual audit of an organization the size of CMHC might reach into the six-figure range.

Benson, a chartered accountant himself has also been mentioned in recent news reports involving the audit of Canadian National Railways and Air Canada.

Unlike the CMHC audit, Parliament must name the CN-Air Canada auditors in a financing bill introduced annually.

While he was finance minister in 1971, Benson decided to switch the CN-Air Canada account to Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. from Touche Ross and Co., which had held the job the better part of 40 years.

Peat, Marwick is the firm from which James Brown took a five-year leave to help Benson draft the mammoth 1971 bill revising the income tax.

As the tax changes became law, Brown returned to Peat, Marwick and within months the firm had the CN-Air Canada contract, the record shows.

Benson rejects any suggestion of patronage.

"We didn't owe Peat, Marwick anything."

Pierre Shows He's a Real Swinger

PIERRE!

By PAT DUFOUR

Pierre is people.

Ask the folks he lives with and the gang he runs around with at Windsor Park.

He has them all convinced.

Pierre, was born four years ago, owing his stocky frame to the marriage of a demure white French poodle mom and an audacious black Maltese terrier dad.

Since then he's become a hybrid human, relishing the part he plays in the family life of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Mitchell of 1245 St. David.

★

"Six, including Pierre!"

There, oblivious to passing pooches or giddy romps in the grass, Pierre waits his turn on the swings or a fast skoot down the chute with Maureen and his master, her 12-year-old brother Bruce.

Not that he's completely divorced himself from his former way of life.

★

Maureen said he's impatient to meet his new family, presented to him by "his girl down the street — a French poodle just like his mom!"

And, in deference to his genetical beginnings, he still condescends to sample a little of the stuff his forbears were brought up on.

To get rid of the taste, however, he camouflages it with chip cookie and cake, macaroni and cheese, potato chips and ice cream (soft variety only).

Elevator Dispute on Verge Of Blowing Up Once Again

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

The three-week break in the seven-month strike by elevator installers and repairmen appeared ready to blow up today.

Underlying optimism voiced Wednesday after a meeting between representatives of the International Union of Elevator Constructors and Labor Minister Bill King evaporated when initiatives to settle the dispute were dashed by elevator companies in the east.

John Neil, the union's western representative, said he has been informed that the elevator companies have "set up machinery to lock out their employees in B.C."

Asked if the union will strike immediately it receives the report of mediation officer Gus Leonidas, Neil said: "I would just as soon not make any comment."

The 200-member union in B.C. has voted 99 per cent in favor of strike action and 72 hours strike notice has been posted. But a strike or lockout cannot begin legally until Leonidas' report is received.

Neil said the report is expected to be in the union's hands in a day or two.

The seven-month strike, part of a national walkout, was ruled illegal by B.C. courts because bargaining had not occurred in B.C.

After union members returned to work in early April, there were several negotiating meetings and Leonidas was appointed to try to settle the dispute.

Neil, who said immediately after meeting King Wednesday he thought everything would turn out "all right," said the union told King it was prepared to accept the Ontario arbitration decision in B.C. if the elevator companies would drop lawsuits against union members as a result of the illegal strike.

"We are willing to gamble on the arbitration," he said.

Union representatives met King again Wednesday afternoon and were told that the elevator companies said "in no way will B.C. employees get the arbitration award," said Neil.

Asked if the elevator companies want B.C. union members to have less than whatever the Ontario arbitration decision may be, Neil said he didn't know.

King declined comment today, saying only that "I'm still working on the situation."

The five elevator companies in the dispute are Montgomery Elevator Company Limited, Turnbull Elevator Division of Dover Corporation (Canada) Limited, Otis Elevator Company Limited, Armor Elevator Canada Limited and Westinghouse Canada Limited.

Buses Coming for Pensioners

Pensioners north of Keating Cross Road may start using a new bus service before the end of May.

A pilot project under the federal government's New Horizons program for the elderly is being organized to provide a weekly pick-up service for persons wanting to attend Old Age Pension, Silver Threads or other activities in Sidney.

Co-ordinator Bill Booth, of OAP No. 25 serving the northern end of Saanich Peninsula, said the grant is available to any group of 10 or more pensioners for organized activities.

So far about 45 persons have shown an interest in the arrngements being worked out with Pacific Commuter Ltd. bus company.

At a cost estimated at $75 to $80 a week, a bus would make a circuit of the area on alternating Wednesdays and Thursdays, depositing the group in Sidney and returning members to their homes later.

Esquimalt Reverses Decision on Library

Esquimalt council reversed itself late Wednesday and agreed to accept an 18.7 per cent increase in the Greater Victoria Public Library's 1973 budget.

The library budget had been threatened with a $51,000 slash when Esquimalt council refused to pay more than a 15 per cent increase over the 1972 figure.

Decision to accept the higher 18.7 per cent increase was passed by a narrow 4-3 vote, a 3-3 tie that was broken by Mayor Art Young in favor of the higher increase.

Young said today council reallly didn't change its mind on the library budget increases.

"They really did think that 15 per cent was enough," he said.

But council believes in democracy, said Young, and if the majority of municipalities are willing to accept the higher increase, they felt they should go along.

"The tail was wagging the dog," said Young, and that wasn't right.

The original library board budget of $1,135,772, a 21 per cent increase from 1972, was approved by Oak Bay, Saanich and Central Saanich, but Victoria drew the line at an 18.7 per cent increase.

All municipalities must pay their share of the lowest approved budget.

Esquimalt Ald. Art Mebs, who is chairman of the library board, said today he was relieved council had agreed to the 18.7 per cent figure.

"We can live with that," he said. "The other one would have been very, very difficult."

The extra amount Esquimalt will have to pay between the 18.7 increase and the 15 per cent one, said Mebs, is $2,500. Esquimalt's total share of the budget will be $80,703.

100% Pay Increases For Region Leaders

Capital Regional District directors voted 100 per cent raises Wednesday for chairman Jim Campbell and deputy chairman Mayor Art Young of Esquimalt.

Campbell will receive $4,000 a year and Young, who chairs the regional hospital board, $2,000 a year.

There was little opposition to the move, recommended by the board's executive committee, which said Campbell is spending a minimum of two working days a week on board matters while "the marked increase in hospital matters meant that the deputy chairman's activities were also proving to be significantly more time-consuming than had been the case in the past."

Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said a "more appropriate" increase would be 50 per cent. She said the chairman of the Vancouver Regional District, who is also chairman of the Vancouver Hospital District and the Vancouver sewerage district, gets $50 per meeting which came to about $4,400 last year.

North Saanich Ald. Nell Horth said when a person allows his name to stand for chairman, he must be aware of the duties and of the pay.

Campbell replied that if this was so, "there would be no raises anywhere so I don't accept that as valid." He said those who seek public office should be paid enough so that aspirants are not adversely affected.

Salt Spring Island director Marc Holmes said $4,000 to $5,000 a year is "low remuneration" when the chairman is spending half his time on the job and Victoria Ald. Tom Christie said that at $4,000 "he is still being underpaid."

Sooke director Howard Elder said the 100 per cent raise "reflects our hesitation in the past" in tackling the pay of the regional board chairman.

Regional board directors will continue to be paid $25 for attending board meetings, but directors from unorganized areas will also be paid $25 for attending regular committee meetings of which they are members with a limit of two such meetingr per month.

Ask The Times

Q: How many people belong to unions in British Columbia? DK

A: In 1972, there were 332,091 union members, up 4.9 per cent from the previous year. The labor department reports this amounts to 41.8 per cent of the total number of paid workers, down 0.2 from the previous year.

ARENA ESTIMATES TOO LOW: GERRY

The cost of building an ice arena in Sooke is more like $650,000 to $670,000 than $500,000, the Capital Regional District's local works and services committee was told Wednesday.

The estimate was given by Bill Gerry, the district's director of engineering, who said some capital and equipment cost estimates by a local arena planning committee were low.

District executive director Dennis Young said the indicated costs of building and running the arena are more like four mills than three mills, if the levy is on the entire electoral area of Sooke.

Young said a number of the figures used by the planning committee are realistic, but he thought the operating deficit of $15,000 a year would be more like $40,000.

Sooke director Howard Elder said he has received 12 letters from organizations and 37 letters from individuals supporting a referendum on the arena.

He was uncertain on the boundary for the designation area, whether it should be the entire electoral area or the populated parts of Sooke, Saseenos and Otter Point.

"I have 74 individual letters that East Sooke does not want into the recreation area. That's getting on for 90 per cent of the property owners," he said.

The committee decided to wait until after Elder has met Port Renfrew residents before considering designation of the recreation area. It was expected that the regional board will deal with the proposed arena at its May 9 meeting.

Four-Mill Tax Increase Likely For Esquimalt

Esquimalt's tax rate increase this year will be about four mills, Mayor Art Young said today.

"I doubt if the budget will be cut more," Young said after a marathon budget-cutting session Wednesday night.

Four mills would be a greater increase than the municipality has seen in recent years, he said.

Most of the increase, about three mills, is attributable to $120,000 in increased wages the municipality must pay, he said.

It's a Fact: Women in Lead

Elderly women, tenants, apartments and childless families are on the increase in Victoria, while detached houses, men and mixed housing areas waned.

Census figures recently obtained by city hall's community planning department also reveal that the average age of family heads dropped in the city and the downtown area has the most non-English speakers.

The most noticeable alteration in figures between the 1966 census and the 1971 census, which is only now being analysed here, is in housing.

The number of detached houses has dropped from 10,000 to 9,600 while apartments have increased from 9,625 to 13,965. In the general metropolitan area, apartments show a similar swift growth, although detached houses in the area still show some growth — from 39,000 to 43,000.

The largest number of apartments in the city is in James Bay (3,050), and the foot of Blanshard area (2,530). These areas also show an extreme disparity between owner-occupied and tenant-occupied dwellings.

In James Bay only 735 dwellings were occupied by owners; 3,260 occupied by tenants. In the foot of blanshard area owners occupied 355 and tenants, 2,610. Tenants were in a strong majority in the downtown and eastern Fort Street area.

Only areas showing a strong owner-occupier element were the north-eastern sectors of the city.

The city had only 960 French speakers in a population of 53,000, although 7,745 had non-English mother tongues, mostly located in the downtown area.

Women over 70 showed a proportionate increase with the population increase, although men over 70 in the city dwindled, only just holding their own in the metropolitan area.

Families are getting younger and smaller, with 1,340 family heads under 25 years, compared with 736 in 1966. The average size of the family dropped from 3.2 to 3.0 and children per family dropped from 1.2 to 1.1.

Half the families in Victoria, and just under half the families in the metro area are childless or their children have left home.

The number of families with five or more children is negligible — only 455 out of 14,775.

The metropolitan area population went from 175,000 to 196,000.

Four Held in Home Robberies

More than $5,000 worth of stolen goods were recovered during the night following a police check on an Oak Bay home.

As a result of that check, three escapers from the Lower Mainland Correctional Institute at New Westminster and a 16-year-old boy are in custody, facing charges arising from five-break-ins in the Greater Victoria area this week.

The three adults will appear in provincial court later today when precise details of the charges will be read.

Oak Bay police inspector Jack Groves said by this morning "everything from television sets to ski-boots" had been brought into the police station, as part of hauls from housebreakings in Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich.

Police said they have identified some of the stolen property as belonging to radio newsman Joe Easingwood, whose home at 2000 Lansdowne was broken into Wednesday afternoon.

Other items appear to have been part of the robbery haul from a Vista Bay housebreaking, in which $1,100 worth of items were stolen Wednesday.

OIL FIRMS HIKE EAST PRICES

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. announced Wednesday it has increased the price of its main products by one cent a gallon in areas east of the Ottawa Valley.

Shell Canada Ltd. said today it also will be increasing the prices of its products east of the Ottawa Valley but the amount of the increase and the timing are still undecided.

Meanwhile, John Coleman, chief of Maryland's gasoline tax division, said Wednesday that, despite claims of a shortage by major distributors, there was more gasoline in the state last December than in the previous year.

"Judging from our figures there is no shortage in Maryland and we have no evidence there will be a shortage," said Coleman. "The only place we hear there will be one is from the major fuel companies."

Harry Waller, owner of seven small stations in the Baltimore area, said, "they're playing games, pure and simple. The major companies are out to kill the independent guys and increase their own pocketbooks."

In Ohio, the East Toledo division of Sun Oil Co. said it will ration gasoline this summer.

The company said dealers in the Toledo area will be given 90 per cent of their projected need. He said further cuts could be made in the next few months.

Joey Will Join China Commune

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Smallwood says he's so impressed with China he's going to join a Chinese commune—perhaps this fall.

The 72-year-old former Newfoundland Liberal premier said in an interview here Wednesday he was so taken with China on a visit last year he will join a commune "for several months at least."

"I'll work with my hands in the fields," he said. "I'll do any of the jobs required of me as a full-fledged member of a commune. I'll be able to attend all the commune meetings, to listen—and talk, too."

He was in a sprightly mood as, fresh from writing his memoirs—300,000 words for a 600-page book—he talked at his publishers, Macmillan Co. of Canada.

"If I were 10 years younger, I would want to settle down for two or three years in China to help them build the society they are building," said the man who brought Newfoundland into Canada in 1949.

He said Mao's cultural revolution, which rocked China several years ago, was necessary to prevent the creation of a new aristocratic class of professors, doctors and officials.

"They sent the college professors out to clear the latrines — they got the dirtiest jobs until they understood that everyone was the same."

"I'm excited about China — they are working like Trojans with incredible devotion, love and affection. There's nothing more ludicrous than saying the Chinese are being bludgeoned into submission."

Smallwood added "for no moment have I been a Communist" but "we are shipmates tonight with the greatest revolutionary change in the world, now or in the past," and he called Chairman Mao Tse Tung of China the "greatest practising revolutionary in the history of man."

Copper Smelter Start This Year

By ALAN FORREST
Times Staff

Construction of a long-awaited copper smelter in British Columbia is expected to begin this year, the Times learned today.

G. H. D. Hobbs, president of Cominco Ltd., said in an interview an agreement in principle had been reached with the provincial government for Cominco to build a $20 million smelter near its fertilizer complex at Kimberley.

The project would be completed in 18 months and would have a capacity of 70,000 tons of copper per year.

Hobbs said the company would make an official announcement of the project "very soon."

He said: "There are no contentious matters outstanding between ourselves and the provincial government. They are as anxious to begin this project as we are."

Provincial Mines Minister Leo Nimsick was not available for comment. He had said earlier he was hopeful the province and Cominco would soon come to terms on the proposed smelter.

Construction of a copper smelter is a high priority for the New Democratic Party government which came to power on a pledge to convert British Columbia's economy to secondary processing and manufacturing and reduce export of raw materials.

Hobbs said the smelter would be available to any company wishing to supply concentrate.

The fertilizer plant would be used to absorb sulphuric acid used in the smelter and would reduce or eliminate the sulphur smell, a major air pollutant.

Hobbs said he was not concerned about provincial anti-pollution standards because the company's technology had advanced to the stage where it believed it can run an operation virtually pollution-free.

"The company would not be proceeding with this project if we thought there might be a pollution problem," he said.

Proximity of the fertilizer plant will greatly reduce costs of the smelter.

Normally, to construct a new smelter from nothing would cost between $50 million and $70 million, he said.

"In effect we are expanding our present facilities in Kimberley."

The $20 million, however, was just a ballpark figure, he said.

"It should be about $20 million. And I cannot define precisely when the project is likely to begin. We are still in negotiation. But it will be very soon. It will start this year."

He said negotiations are continuing with the federal government as well to obtain a grant under the Department

BRINK'S MEN SURRENDER

TORONTO (CP) — Two employees of Brink's Canada Ltd., wanted for a $700,000 theft from the security company's Saint John, N.B., office, surrendered today to Toronto police.

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne of the Metropolitan Toronto police announced that Leslie Dominey, 32, and Melvin Edward Downs, 36, gave themselves up shortly after midnight.

"A large sum of money . . . a considerable amount over $600,000 was recovered," said Supt. Payne.

The money was recovered from a large suitcase, he said.

Supt. Payne said the men were being held for officials of the Saint John police department expected to arrive this afternoon.

The theft occurred during the weekend after two employees of Brink's Saint John branch had collected the Saturday collections from supermarkets, liquor outlets and other stores.

And Now TV Poll Rigged

By BOB WOODWARD and CARL BERNSTEIN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon's re-election committee rigged Washington television station WTTG's poll on the public's response to the president's decision to mine Haiphong Harbor last year by sending 2,000 — 4,000 phony ballots to the station.

The Metromedia station asked its viewers last May to send in cards indicating whether they agreed or disagreed with the mining decision and placed a sample ballot in newspaper ads. The final result of the poll as announced by the station was 5,157 viewers agreeing with the president and 1,158 disagreeing.

One former Nixon committee official said Wednesday that committee employees sent in at least 4,000 of the responses agreeing with the president, which would have completely distorted the poll's results.

Another official DeVan L. Shumway, spokesman for the Nixon re-election committee, confirmed the effort but said the committee sent in only "about 2,000 ballots and responses."

James Dooley, former head of mail room at the Nixon committee, said Wednesday committee workers were sent to buy about 1,000 newspapers from which the ballots were clipped and sent to the television station. In addition, Dooley said, 2,000 postcards were filled out and mailed in — all showing total support of the president.

"Work ground to a halt in the press office while everyone filled out 15 post cards," Dooley, 19, said in an interview. "Ten people worked for several days buying different kinds of stamps and postcards and getting different handwriting to fake the responses."

Asked to comment on the tampering with the poll, Ed Turner, news director for Metromedia, said: "I think it's a most unfortunate abuse of an honest attempt to survey public opinion."

Nixon committee spokesman Shumway said: "When you're involved in an election, you do what you can. That type of voluntary poll is the most stackable type thing. We assumed the other side would do it also. On that assumption we proceeded. I don't know if the other side did."

Frank Mankiewicz, a top official in the Democratic presidential campaign of Sen. George S. McGovern, said that "we didn't do it. It didn't occur to us. Jesus, these guys (the Nixon committee) are something. They assume we have the same sleazy ethics as theirs."

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that the Nixon committee also conducted a campaign last May to distort the over-all view of the U.S. public's response to the mining.

That effort included paying for telegrams supporting the president to be sent to the White House and the placing

PHNOM PENH — Cambodian insurgents have overrun a string of weakly-defended government positions across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh and now control a long stretch of the east bank parallelling the capital city, refugees from the area said today.

Phnom Penh was also menaced from the west. More than 20 rockets hit the airport 2½ miles west of the capital and an adjoining shantytown crowded with refugees early today, killing 19 persons and wounding 62.

Reuter news agency said 24 persons were killed and 55 wounded.

No aircraft were damaged, but one rocket killed an officer and wounded seven soldiers at the entrance to the military part of the airfield.

The assaults across the rivers are the closest the anti-government forces have struck to the capital since Viet Cong sappers raided northern Phnom Penh Oct. 7.

Heavy ground fighting was also reported in areas six, nine and 11 miles from Phnom Penh as the Communists slowly tried to close a noose on the city. The military situation was reported as "critical" in some of these outer defense areas.

Baby Bonus Boost Seen By Jan. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial backing for proposed changes in the social security system practically guarantees a boost in family allowance payments by next Jan. 1, Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

Legislation that would roughly triple to $20 the average monthly payment to children will be introduced in the Commons within weeks, he told reporters after the opening session of a three-day federal-provincial welfare minister's meeting.

All provinces agreed in their opening position statements with recent federal suggestions to increase family allowances and modify Canada Pension Plan provisions.

Further word on the pension changes came today with the statement that legislation probably will be introduced in the Commons next fall following further high level talks.

Under recently proposed federal suggestions to revamp pensions, the two-per-cent escalation limit on CPP increases would be dropped.

As a result, there appeared nothing to prevent an increase from the current average $7.21 a month per child in family allowance payments by the federal target date of Jan. 1.

B.C. welfare minister Normen Levi suggested Canada should take a "real initiative" and come up with a plan to provide all orphans, regardless of race, culture or nationality, with a family of their own.

In a short position paper, buried in a mass of disserations on ways and means to rework the country's welfare system, the B.C. government said there are "growing numbers of families" who want to adopt children.

"While adoption is a matter that falls within provincial jurisdiction, the existing legislation could reasonably be amended to accord uniformity across our boundaries to make for a singular approach to international adoption proceedings," the paper said.

It suggested the federal government set up a study group to come up with a uniform method of dealing with international adoptions, establish and inter-provincial agency to "expedite and facilitate inter-country and inter-

Police Raid Broker

MONTREAL (CP) — Inspectors from the provincial department of financial institutions and RCMP officers Wednesday raided the offices of Onyx Investments Ltd. and L. J. Forget and Co. Ltd., a Montreal-based brokerage firm.

At the same time, the Quebec Securities Commission suspended the brokerage firm's registration and stopped trading in eight stocks on the Montreal stock market.

In a separate move, the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges have suspended the brokerage firm's membership "in view of the failure of the member firm to conform to the exchange requirements."

In recent weeks, stocks involving either Onyx or L. J. Forget have accounted for about 50 per cent of trading on the CSE and for about one-third of combined trading on the two Montreal exchanges.

Pirate Yukon Station Kidnaps Playoff TV

Times News Services

ROSS RIVER, Y.T. — The 300 residents of this isolated mountain mining community have "kidnapped" a CBC television signal in time for the Stanley Cup play-offs.

And they face the wrath and full weight of the law from the federal and territorial governments, The Canadian Radio-Television Commission or the CBC.

Calling it Radio Free Ross River, the people erected their own relay station to snare a legal signal from Faro, 40 miles away.

The people claim they are willing to pay the price, which could include fines or jail, to keep the station alive.

Ross River is about 150 miles north of Whitehorse, the territorial capital, in the heart of the Yukon mining country, and prior to the private TV relay station had no radio or television service.

Its residents have been battling bureaucrats and red tape for years in an effort to get television into their community, but with a marked lack of success. The final straw was when the federal government's multi-million-dollar Anik northern communications satellite went into orbit at the New Year, bringing northern communities with more than 500 residents live television for the first time.

Ross River missed the boat because it was 200 people short of the criteria set for construction of legal TV relay facilities, and the CBC wasn't allowed to build a relay station here.

The problem was especially vexing to millionaire mining prospector Al Kulan of Ross River—once the proud owner of the only Rolls-Royce limousine in the Yukon. He's a hockey fan and has had a color TV set sitting in his living room collecting dust for several years in anticipation of the advent of TV service.

When he learned that Ross River wouldn't be joining the Anik network, he took the matter up with some engineering and electronics experts in Whitehorse.

Although Faro, which has a legal Anik relay station, is only 40 miles away, Ross River is nestled in the Pelly Mountains, which effectively block reception of the Faro signal.

They established a company known as Total North Communications, and bankrolled by Mr. Kulan, started shopping for a suitable peak, mountain-hopping by helicopter.

NASTY DEAL REPRIMAND

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald today criticized Canadian forces personnel who took part in "Operation Nasty Deal," which resulted in soldiers with rifles entering a local tavern as part of an army exercise.

Macdonald said, however, that he will not intervene in his capacity as attorney-general to ask that criminal charges be laid against any soldiers.

The attorney-general was referring to an exercise which originated from CFB Esquimalt. Two civilian employees of Chew Excavating Ltd. were held at gunpoint April 2 while working at HMC Dockyard.

They were released, they said, after two hours.

The following day, two soldiers armed with rifles entered Tudor House beer parlor in Esquimalt and stood at attention at each of two entrances. They apparently had been pursuing two other soldiers who had gone into the pub for a beer while the exercise was taking place.

"This was an exercise in which the army boys exhibited some bad judgment and a great deal in the way of animal spirits," Macdonald said.

He said the two civilian employees — Hans Gajowski and Jose Maceiras — have not asked that charges be laid against the soldiers who subjected them to false imprisonment, "and I rather congratulate them for that decision."

"They have made their protest and the matter has gone to the higher echelons of the army so that I hope that it will never happen again. I feel pretty sure that the army has learned a lesson in this respect," he said.

Maddonald added that reprimands have gone forward through the army. "They know that we regard this with some seriousness and I feel that it will not be repeated," he said.

The attorney-general said reports he has received on the incidents indicate that the patrons of the Tudor House were "badly scared" at the presence of the armed soldiers.

"I am happy to know that the battle of Tudor House ended without effusion of blood," he said.

"Operation Nasty Deal" was originally intended by the forces to have been a week-long exercise. It was called off after about four days and the commandant apologized for inconveniencing the public.

Benson Scandal Hinted

OTTAWA (CP) — While a cabinet minister in 1968, Edgar Benson gave the accounting firm in which he had been a partner a two-year contract to audit the government-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

CMHC records reveal that Benson, as minister responsible for housing between January and April, 1968, gave the contract to a member of the Kingston, Ont., firm of England, McPherson.

Benson was a partner in the firm from 1952 to June 29, 1964, when he first joined the cabinet as revenue minister. He was appointed president of the Canadian transport commission last September.

Asked Wednesday whether he had appointed the firm during that period, Benson said he could not recall.

"It's possible. I'm not sure."

But authoritative sources confirmed the appointment was made by the former minister.

Officials refuse to disclose the value of the auditing contract, considered a confidential business arrangement.

Industry sources say, however, that the price of an annual audit of an organization the size of CMHC might reach into the six-figure range.

Benson, a chartered accountant himself has also been mentioned in recent news reports involving the audit of Canadian National Railways and Air Canada.

Unlike the CMHC audit, Parliament must name the CN-Air Canada auditors in a financing bill introduced annually.

While he was finance minister in 1971, Benson decided to switch the CN-Air Canada account to Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. from Touche Ross and Co., which had held the job the better part of 40 years.

Peat, Marwick is the firm from which James Brown took a five-year leave to help Benson draft the mammoth 1971 bill revising the income tax.

As the tax changes became law, Brown returned to Peat, Marwick and within months the firm had the CN-Air Canada contract, the record shows.

Benson rejects any suggestion of patronage.

"We didn't owe Peat, Marwick anything."

9 IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTONE, Edith. In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, passed away April 26, 1972.
Death came stealing over her pillow
At the waning of the day
Without a sigh or a murmur
Silently she passed away
Without a farewell spoken
To sit and talk with her awhile
To be together in the same old way
Would be our dearest wish today
Others are taken, yes we know
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Sadly missed by Husband John, Jim, Arlene and Grandchildren.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Down-to-Earth Facts About Skin

In the past I have spoken favorably in this column about books on the skin by Dr. I. I. Lubowe, Now a new book has come out by Dr. Lubowe, with H. L. Ober, entitled The Modern Guide to Skin Care and Beauty.

Dr. Lubowe, an expert on drugs, has practiced medicine for 40 years. He has been a much-honored professor of skin diseases, and he has written several books on the care of the skin and the hair.

This book can be of great help not only to physicians, but to laymen who are much worried by skin troubles. He tells of some things that can be done to relieve baldness, acne, psoriasis and other skin troubles.

Dr. Lubowe tells some down-to-earth facts about such cosmetics as underarm deodorants; he says, the term, perspiration odor, is misleading, because recent research has shown that perspiration itself is odorless.

The odor comes from the bacteria that thrive in moist body areas such as the armpits and genital and anal region. Many people have noticed that children and older people seldom have body odors unless they do not frequently bathe. This is because they have no underarm or genital hair to trap moisture.

Experts now know, also, that there are two types of sweating; the kind caused by heat alone does not usually create much odor; but the sweat released by anxiety or nervous tension does have a strong odor.

He says that the most effective prevention of body odor is simply proper and frequent bathing, daily changes of undergarments, regularly cleaned outer garments, and if possible, a daily change of shoes.

Dr. Lubowe does have a good discussion of the various antiseptic soaps and anti-perspirants on the market today, and their advantages and disadvantages. In another chapter, Dr. Lubowe has a list of the ingredients used in cosmetics that have been found to cause allergic reactions. This should be helpful to women who get a "contact dermatitis" from a new cosmetic or perfumed soap or shampoo.
